Southeast Missouri's Leading Semi-Weekly

VOLUME 27 | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI | FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1939 | NUMBER 87

THE STANDARD- ONLY Streamlined Newspaper IN SIKESTON DISTRICT

The P. C. Editor Says:

Postal inspectors are checking on country newspapers in this territory to find out how many, if any, are complying with orders to not use the mails to send out papers to subscribers who are one year or more in arrears. In complying with this order The Standard can make affidavit that out of more than 2,000 subscribers now receiving the paper not a single one is as much as one year in arrears and but 136 are more than six months in arrears. Can any other Southeast Missouri's newspaper, or paper, show to the inspector a cleaner list?

The Legion Park is under the supervision of the Sikeston Legion and was placed in their care by the Missouri Pacific Railway Co. to be used for park purposes and to be kept in a clean and orderly manner. The supervision of the care of this park was placed in charge of a committee who sees that the flower beds are taken care of and the grass cut regularly. This park was not supposed to be used for traveling fakers, itinerant preachers, band concerts, etc. It has come to our attention that a recent protest was made against one of these committeemen for asking the Swift Cowboys to move from the park as several hundred people were trespassing against the rules of the care of the park. This is printed in order to set right those who complained of the man who was doing his duty.

The flare-up at Oran was a deplorable affair that has caused much comment. Some said a few young negroes around that community were more or less impudent and needed taking down a few notches. Then in the same community are a few young white men who were willing to perform that act. However, several negroes were placed in jail at Benton and none of the white men have been arrested. It might have been that the negroes were placed in a jail to protect them from harm at the hands of the unruly whites, and they are to be released as the storm has about blown over, who is to pay for the damage done to the property of the innocent and respectable negroes is the question.

Wednesday evening of this week Sikeston Lions, and invited guests of which The Standard editor was of the number, held their regular weekly meeting at the Jackson-Vaughn Cafe at Reel Foot Lake, Tenn., and enjoyed a fish and fried chicken dinner. Forty-one good fellows sat down at the long table and the way fish and chicken disappeared was a caution. Eight cars filled with passengers loaded on board of the barge and towed across the river and were met by Lion Dushane of Tiptonville who is the owner of the ferry and escorted to the Cafe where the banquet was soon spread and the fish and chicken fast disappeared. It was decided the next meeting would be ladies night and held at New Madrid next Wednesday evening with the Catholic ladies at which it is hoped a large turnout will attend. The Reel Foot Lake affair was pronounced the outstanding event of the many given by the Lions and they hope in the future to again visit Reel Foot and have their wives and sweethearts with them.

While we would like to be considered a good citizen and a law abiding citizen, we, at times, don't measure up to either. While old in years we get het up over things that should not concern us and wish we could turn the Hands of Time back in order that we could get into some of the fights that young fellows get into, but it's no use, for the Sands of Time are running low.

We are glad that we will not be called upon to say who will be dropped from the WPA force when the time comes for the reduction. To find work of any sort at this time for those who are now out of employment is a hard matter and to turn loose a lot who have been on the WPA rolls at small pay is pretty sad.

Four Thieves Raid North End Grocery

Captured Negro Tells of Theft; Expensive Cash Register Ruined by Fire

Four negro burglars who broke into the North End Grocery & Market, on Hunter, stole about $40 in merchandise and ruined a $225 cash register by fire in an attempt to open it early Tuesday.

Clyde Henson, 19 years old, of Chicago, Ill., was caught a few hours after the crime by City Officer Claude McManus and confessed, naming three accomplices.

A State aPtrol radio broadcast was sent out for Lonzo Barnes, 20-year-old light-skinned Chicago negro who parted company with Henson a few minutes before the latter was captured. Barnes, and two negroes known to Henson only as "Peck" and "Rip", helped in the burglary, the captive said. They also escaped.

SOME LOOT RECOVERED

A large part of the merchandise loot was recovered by Officer McManus on the Frisco right-of-way south of the depot, but Barnes is believed to be carrying several cartons of cigarets and a number of candy bars.

Henson told officers the burglary took place at 2 a. m. Entrance was gained by removing a screen on the east side and smashing a window pane. The thieves took 19 cartons of cigarets, half a boiled ham, three cans of pork and beans, a box of Hersheys, 5-pound loaf of cheese, half a box of cigars and some miscellaneous candy bars.

The cash register, which was empty, was carried a half block down the alley from the store, and a fire kindled beneath it. The burglars failed to open it, but it was damaged beyond repair.

TALKS TO BURGLAR

Shortly after Officer McManus came on duty at 6 a. m. he spied Barnes sitting in a boxcar near the Frisco depot. The policeman was unaware of the burglary, but recalled that a week before Barnes had been ordered in police court to leave town. Officer McManus asked Barnes why he had not left. Barnes appeared nervous, but promised to depart immediately.

Going back to police headquarters, the officer learned of the theft. Immediatey, he drove back to the railroad, did not find Barnes but saw Henson walking up the tracks. Searching Henson, he found several packages of cigarets. Henson admitted his part in the burglary and said Barnes had

Convicted in FHA Case

Man Accused of Posing Here as Agent to Obtain Miss Lula Sparks' $120

Deliberating six hours Tuesday and Wednesday, a Circuit Court jury at Benton convicted Fred E. Holland, Farmington, of swindling Miss Lula Sparks of Sikeston but failed to set the punishment.

Judge Kelley indicated he would fix the penalty himself Friday.

Holland was charged with representing himself as an agent of the Federal Housing Administration, procuring $120 from Miss Sparks on pretext of obtaining an FHA loan for her. The plaintiff testified Holland had promised he could get the loan for her. Later he came to her, she told the Court, and said the government loan was ready provided she paid him $120. She did not get the loan.

Prosecutor Blanton said there was evidence Holland had misrepresented himself in other cases.

Holland denied he had claimed to be connected with the FHA. He testified he merely acted as a contact man between banks and his clients, aiding the latter to secure loans.

The case began at 3 p. m. Tuesday and went to the jury at 7:10. Out until 9:30 p. m., the jury retired and took up deliberation again Wednesday morning at 9:30. At 11:45 the body reached a verdict.

CIVIL CASES

In a civil suit, a jury found for the plaintiff, C. E. Clark, awarded him $63.72 for his account against Lawrence LeGrand. The parties are from Chaffee.

Thelma Powers was granted a divorce from Eddie Powers and restoration of her maiden name, Thelma Caulk.

MURDER SCENE AND VICTIM IN WISCONSIN

Lonely cabin in northern Wisconsin woods, near Grandon, where a hermit was clubbed to death, a Sikeston farm youth confessing he aided a Crandon farmer in the crime. They failed to find a hoard of money believed in the cabin. In front of the cabin beneath the blankets, is the body of the slain man, William Worniak. His body was badly decomposed when found three weeks after the murder, lying as indicated in the picture, before the open cabin door. Shriff Elmer H. Frey of Antigo, Wis., brought the picture here Monday.

FARM YOUTH TAKEN TO WISCONSIN

Sheriff Elmer H. Frey and District Attorney Thomas McDougal left Monday afternoon for Antigo, Wis., with William Bernell Wilkerson, 18, Sikeston farm boy, who confessed to complicity in the robbery-slaying of an aged Wissonsin recluse near Crandon. The sheriff said the youth is charged with first degree murder.

Wilkerson confessed here Saturday he was with Willie Cook, 31, farmer near Crandon, when Cook hit William Worniak a fatal blow with a baseball bat one night last May at the hermit's lonely north woods cabin. Worniak was known to natives as "Beggar" John Smith and was believed to have hoarded a large sum of money. Wilkerson said he and Cook found only a watch when they searched the cabin.

The sheriff said here Monday that after the body of Worniak, dead for three weeks at the isolated shack, was discovered, a youth named Robinson came to him and revealed Cook had asked him to help rob Worniak. Investigating, the sheriff learned Cook and Wilkerson, who was visiting an aunt in Wisconsin, had left there for Sikeston shortly after the murder was discovered. The murder warrant was then issued for Wilkerson and Cook.

Cook remained at the farm of Wilkerson's parents south of the city for three days and then left, nearly four weeks ago, apparently to work in Western wheat fields. Wilkerson was arrested by local officers Saturday.

The youth's father, Jewel Wilkerson, accompanied his son in the sheriff's car to Antigo, seat of the county where the crime was committed.

Canalou Man Has Strange Paralysis

A strange paralysis that is creeping over his entire body has beset Otto Gipson of Canalou.

For two years the disease has been slowly attacking the farmer's arms and legs, and two weeks ago he lost the use of his legs. Taken Tuesday in the Albritton ambulance to the Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, Mr. Gipson was told by attendants that nothing could be done about his condition and he was brought home. His condition was termed similar to that of Lou Gehrig, the baseball player who was forced to quit the game because of a spinal disease. The farmer's condition, however, is more aggrevated that Gehrig's.

About two years ago, during his work, Mr. Gipson suddenly found he could no longer hold tools. Now he is paralyzed from the hips down and has very little use of his hands and arms.

Jury, Suspect and Wife Disagree Over Slaying

A coroner's jury, an accused negro and his wife all disagreed Monday evening as to who killed George Hoskins, 20-year-old negro, in a Scott County murder seven miles northwest of Charleston.

Despite the fact that W. T. Taylor denies the shooting that occurred Saturday night at Hoskins' farm tenant house, while his wife claims to be the actual murderer, the coroner's jury after an inquest Monday afternoon decided Taylor shot and killed Hoskins.

Coroner John F. Nunnelee, Jr., and Prosecutor David Blanton conducted the inquest at the Rowe Bonnifield farm, where the slaying took place.

Taylor, who disappeared after the shooting, was arrested with his wife at his parents' home near the levee north of Charleston by Mississippi County Deputy Fletcher Reichart Monday afternoon.

Testimony at the inquiry brought out that Hoskins had quarreled with his wife and slapped her Saturday night at Charleston. They came home, and Taylor, brother of Hoskins' wife, followed them.

Hoskins mother said Taylor came into the house and called to Hoskins, who was upstairs. When Hoskins came down, she said, Taylor shot him three times with a pistol, two bullets passing through his chest and one through his arm. The victim bled to death internally almost instantly.

Taylor's wife, however, told officers she was downstairs when Hoskins appeared and that she shot him. Taylor denied that he did the killing, but did not say his wife was guilty. Taylor and his wife were apprehended after the inquest. They were taken to the Benton jail to await a hearing. Despite the wife's story, Taylor was charged with murder in a warrent.

Willie Currie, negro who drove Taylor to the Hoskins home, was arrested and later released.

Mr. Bonnifield termed Hoskins "a good negro."

'Rock Wool' Blown From Walk to Attic

A machine that blows insulation against a wall, making it stick, was being operated Wednesday afternoon at the Franklin Moore residence, 517 Park, by the Reid Roofing & Siding Co.

The only machine of its kind in the city, it stood on the sidewalk in front of the home. Workmen fed "rock wool" into a hopper. The wool was pulverized and blown through a large tube leading through an upstairs window into the attic. The wool sticks to the wall as it strikes, and it is further made fast with strips of paper.

Against the wall, a 4-inch thickness provides an ideal insulation against hot and cold weather.

Waterloo Padlock Hearing Monday

A hearing will be conducted Monday morning at Benton in the Circuit Court before Judge Kelly to determine if the Waterloo Tavern at Pop City should be padlocked under a temporary injunction. The motion was made in court last week by Prosecuting Attorney Blanton when the proprietor, Charles Waters, and an aide, Otis Morris, pleaded guilty to illegal sale of liquor at the tavern. They received a fine and suspended jail sentence. Persons favoring or opposed to the padlocking will be heard Monday.

Miss Schaefer spent last summer in Sikeston as the guest of Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Rains. She is the daughter of missionaries, who have lived in India for the past 25 years. Miss Schaefer completed her education in the United States.

Jim Petty Serves Notice on Some Rash Burglars

The burglar who has visited Jim Petty's house in Sunset Addition twice since Sunday is invited by the colored man to return again.

Jim himself will form the reception committee.

Jim works at the McKnight-Keaton Wholesale Grocery Co. and his wife is employed, so the couple is fairly well-fixed for residents of Sunset Addition, owning an electric refrigerator and so fourth.

Last Sunday night, while Jim and his wife were attending church like respectable folk, someone cut a screen at his house, ransacked the interior and disconnected the refrigerator. Tuesday night neighbors heard burglars at the rear of the house. They warned Mrs. Petty, who frightened the prowlers away.

Jim has taken down his Winchester rifle and oiled it. He says he's going to be waiting for the next burglar.

WPA Has New Release Rule

Certified Workers for 18 Months to Go Off Rolls for 30 Days

Leon Groves of Sikeston, WPA supervisor of three counties, said Wednesday certified WPA workers employed for 18 months would be released in his area for a period of 30 days under the new regulations.

He has not received any instructions as to the quota to be kept at work, but he expects it to be released from Jefferson City between now and the middle of August. The ruling is a national law designed to curb WPA expenditures. Those coming under the release requirements may be replaced on the rolls after 30 days, so that a revolving system of hiring and discharging will be in effect.

All certified employes who have been on WPA projects continuously for 18 months will be released as soon as possible under a new law governing workers, according to word here from George B. Snider, district director at Farmington.

A certified worker is one who has been declared in need of relief and therefore eligible for the WPA.

A section of the law states:

"There shall be removed from employment on WPA projects all WPA certified workers who have been continuously employed on such projects 18 months."

All whose continuous employment ends in August or earlier will be released during July or August and those whose service ends in subsequent months will be released when their 18 months employment has expired. The period of separation of such workers from the projects has not been determined except that they shall remain off the job at least 30 days and until their relief status has been fully investigated and they are again certified.

This reduction as stated above is required by law and the state and district offices have no choice about it. In many cases whole projects will be closed for it is expected that WPA employment for the next few months at least will be lower than it has been for several years. Since the quota of workers for September will be considerably lower than it is now, no authority to assign workers now on the waiting list has been authorized nor is it expected soon.

Oran Quiet After 3-Day Race Riot

Saturday Night Slashing Prompts Mob to Drive All Negroes From Town

Oran simmered into peacefulness Tuesday after three days of white-negro clashes—with negroes mainly on the receiving end—that concluded with a white youth nursing knife wounds, negro houses damaged and abandoned and six negroes in jail over the slashing.

Eight peace officers were called to the town Monday evening after a mob had nearly demolished a negro house there and hanged a dummy negro. The officers were State Trooper Melvin Dace, John Tandy and Constable Walter Ancell, of Sikeston; Troopers Percy Little and H. F. Wickham of Jackson, and Sheriff John Hobbs and two deputies.

Furniture in the house was broken and the structure itself damaged, officers said.

Since Saturday night a negro was not seen in Oran. Four families live within the town limits, near the edge. They departed hurriedly after the initial free-for-all Saturday night.

THREATENING NOTE

A merchant was reported to have received a threatening note because he refused to deliver several negro customers to a crowd of whites Saturday evening. The whites said they wanted to run all negroes out of town. Some of the colored customers were women with babies. They departed through another exit after the front door was bolted.

The feeling between the whites and negroes is reported to have started Saturday evening when a colored youth allegedly shoved a white boy off a downtown sidewalk. After a street quarrel, and argument between a white and colored faction was carried into an alley. The entire crowd was engaged in a free-for-all fight. Albert Heisserer, farm youth, was slashed three times, across the chest, hip and arm. He is expected to recover. The negroes fled from the town, and the negro families followed shortly afterward as an oraganized band of whites began a search to run all negroes out of the city.

MORE NEGROES ARRESTED

Sheriff Hobbs said Wednesday he had arrested another negro man and a negro woman for questioning in the slashing of Albert Heisserer. This makes a total of six negroes in the Benton jail. He expected to make other arrests of negroes.

The sheriff said Heisserer was slashed by two negroes. One wielded a knife that was left sticking in his hip. A razor or sharper knife was used to cut him across the chest and arm.

The sheriff wanted it known that he called for state troopers from Sikeston and Cape Girardeau during the Oran melee Monday night. He explained he wanted a large enough force to handle any crowd.

SOUND BUSINESS PAYS GOOD DIVIDENDS

A judge in a bankruptcy court says that incompetence is the chief cause of failure in business. Then he proceeds to enlarge on this statement by saying that many people have no right to be in business for themselves because they are ignorant of the basic principles of business procedure.

Thousands of people who go in business do so because they may have acquired a small amount of cash and feel the urge to conduct a business of their own. Many of them apparently give no thought to whether training and knowledge is necessary in the kind of business they select—they simply know they want a business of their own and take the plunge sinking every dollar they own and often mortgage property and personal effects to the limit with no thought of what will happen if they fail.

Thousands who wind up in a court of bankruptcy have never kept a set of books. They have no knowledge of what they owe, what is owing them, or the value of an inventory. They have no fixed salary, but simply take from the business what they need and the "need" often exceeds the amount good judgment should tell them is more than the business can stand. When collections fail because of poor credit risks or lack of system, and creditors begin to clamor and bring suit, bankruptcy is as unexpected and inexplicable as an earthquake.

One reason for this lamentable condition is that our bankruptcy laws are too lenient, although, some progress has been made in the last few years to correct some of the faults. Anyone can clear his debts in court and then return to his folly. They often do. In England, however, the business man who does not keep proper books of account is regarded as a criminal. The court refuses to clear his debts and denies him the right to enter business again. He can also be punished for negligence.

Yet the American system has some merit. It compels the wise seller to be on his guard. Ways and means of finding out all he needs to know are available in every community. There is no real excuse for failure to find out what an applicant for credit has in the matter of assets and ability to pay. Exactly the same rule applies to retail credit on a smaller scale because the individual, in a way, is simply conducting a miniature business in handling his daily affairs.

The merchant who sells to irresponsible people knowing in advance that he is taking a big chance on getting his money is as much to blame as the man who receives the credit and who in many instances knows beforehand that he will be unable to pay.

Safe, sound and profitable business requires strict application of certain rules. It requires forethought and training, system and exact knowledge of where it stands and where it's headed by those who are responsible for its success.

In this enlightened day when facts are known, or can be obtained, about almost every human being who exists, it doesn't pay to guard a thousand dollars in cash with a shotgun and at the same time sell thousands of dollars worth of merchandise to those you know (or can find out) who will not or cannot pay.

MISSOURI MELANGE

A Callaway county farmwife, on a recent visit with relatives in Fulton, told a story worthy of Ripley's Believe it or Not. Her husband, without advising her, hid his billfold containing $100 in a new teapot she had never used. Breaking her utility teapot, she filled the new one with water and placed it on the stove. Her husband entered the kitchen, grabbed the pot off the stove and, before the eyes of his startled wife, poured out the water and his shrunken wallet. The money was dried out and proved to be in good condition.

Several Jefferson City mothers are worried with that perpetual worry of mothers of sons: What to do with Junior's newest pet. Convicts cutting weeds on a state-owned vacant lot adjoining the State Capitol disturbed a number of young rabbits, which scurried about and many of which fell into the hands of small boys.

Mrs. Evelyn Pinchert Kilgore, sister of Mrs. J. D. Miller, who resides near Carthage, and of Ernie Pinckert, a Carthage boy who is now a professional football player, has purchased a half interest in an airport at Loma Linda, Calif., which she plans to operate.

Resurfacing of approximately seventy blocks of streets in the state capital will be carried out before winter under direction of W. A. Curtis, Jefferson City street commissioner, as a result of a recent survey.

Traffic over the Osage river bridge on highways 50 and 63 east of Jefferson City is being halted for short intervals between 10 P. M. and 6 A. M. to permit replacement of the old wooden floor with a laminated creosote floor. There is no interruption of traffic during daylight flours.

Four fishermen with hooks attached to jugs landed a ninety-pound catfish in the Mississippi river four miles south of Caruthersville recently. It was five feet long.

The first Texas county farmer to complete terracing his farm is T. K. Coats of Clara. Every acre of crop land, totaling seventy-five acres, is terraced, except two bottom fields which are level and do not need this protection.

The baseball team of Prison Farm No. 2 scored its eleventh and twelfth consecutive victories July 9, defeating L. Hall at the state prison in Jefferson City and the Marion Sawmill, both scores being 9 to 0. The Prison Farm team has defeated several strong semi-pro nines in chalking up their impressive string of victories.

Only 175 closed state banks remain to be liquidated, R. W. Holt, state finance commissioner, reports. The affairs of ten were wound up during June.

David H. Powell, native Sedalian and former assistant manager of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the Kansas City region, has been named director of the Federal Housing Administration for Western Missouri, with headquarters in Kansas City. He succeeds James F. Trimble, who resigned July 1.

The Battle of the Apostrophe in Jackson county is ended! The name of the Missouri city—Lee's Summit—no longer can be spelled properly without the apostrophe. The Postal Guide gives the spelling as Lee's Summit, while the Railway Guide uses the apostrophe. Citizens took the matter up with their Representative in Congress, C. Jasper Bell, protesting that the omission is historically incorrect, and postal officials backed up the protest, so the name plate on the new postoffice there will read Lee's Summit.

T. E. (Ed) Pratt, retired chief special agent for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, has opened a "loafing office" at Palmyra, Mo., so that he may have some place to meet and talk with his friends. "When a man retires and goes back to his old home town, he naturally wants to meet and talk with his friends," Pratt explains. "If he does that on the street, pretty soon people get to calling him an old fool wants people to listen to him talk about his experiences. Well, I don't want that to happen to me, so I opened an office."

James Hilton's GOOD BYE, MR. CHIPS

ADAPTED FROM THE METRO-Goldwyn-MAYER PICTURE

SYNOPSIS

Mr. Chipping has been a master at Brookfield School ever since 1870—for twenty years—and has not succeeded in winning the friendship and liking of the boys, partly because of his diffidence, but mostly because he had got off on the wrong foot his first few weeks at the school by keeping his class in as a matter of discipline on the day of the cricket match with Sedbury. Colley, one of his pupils, was a star player for his team. The match was lost and the Cup surrendered, after three years, to the rival school. And then Max Staefel, the Viennese German master, asked him to go along on a walking tour of the Tyrolean mountains. Out alone one day in the mountains, Chipping is caught in a fog and hears a woman's "hello" far above him. He starts to scramble upward.

Chapter Five

THE GIRL IN THE MIST

After an hour of climbing in the fog, feeling every step of his way, often loosening stones that bounded and rumbled into some hidden abyss below, Chipping drew himself carefully upon a narrow ledge. Mist floated thickly past. Above his head was one of those mountain monuments begging the traveller to pray for the soul of one who had perished there. Giving it a grim, sidelong glance, Chipping continued on the slightly ascending ledge, often obstructed by outjutting rocks.

At one of the bends he halted to utter a stentorian "Hel-lo-o!"

"Hello! answered a girl's voice so close by that Chipping gave a startled jump.

"You don't imagine I'd ride side saddle, do you?"

"But what happens to...your dress?"

"Oh, they breed female bicycles now. Didn't you know?"

"I don't like all this rushing about on wheels. Human beings were never intended to go at such a speed! I suppose you think I'm old-fashioned?"

"I like men to be old-fashioned. Have another sandwich. We'll reserve the rest for emergencies. It's chilly, isn't it?" She turned up her collar.

"Oh, I say — I should have thought of it. Here, take my coat. I'm rather too warm."

"I wouldn't think of it! Put it back on at once!"

"No, really, you must take it. I insist...please."

"Look here, why don't we share it? It's big enough for both of us." She started to put it about him.

"Good heavens no! If someone were to see you!"

"On this mountain? And what if they did? I insist. Look—like this. Catch hold of it." She put half of the jacket about Chipping. He accepted, stiff and shy and dazzled.

They continued to sit there in the mist, now talking, now silent, until it grew dark, hoping the fog would lift. But it still drifted about the marooned pair, giving them a spectral air. Chipping was sunk in reverie.

"A penny for your thoughts," said Kathie Ellis at length.

"Er—" he said, startled. "As a matter of fact, I was thinking about you. I see very little of ladies at Brookfield. I was rather realizing what I had missed."

"If I may say so, Mr. Chipping, I think the ladies have missed a great deal, too."

"That's very kind of you, but I'm really not a ladies' man."

"Afraid of them?"

"Terrified!" he replied half-humorously.

"Not of me, I hope?"

"Not up here in the clouds—perhaps the altitude has gone to my head. But if I'd met you at the inn—"

"Because I'm a strong-minded female who rides a bicycle and wants the vote?"

"No, on the contrary—because—because you are so very nice looking, I think—and charming."

"And so are you, Mr. Chipping, frankly."

"Good heaven!" he cried aghast. "No one has ever called me that!" At her gay laugh, he pondered a moment, tickled at being called charming. "What extraordinary ideas come into one's head up here! Do you experience a sort of exhilaration?"

"Definitely. It's the altitude."

"It's as though we owned the mountains. We're pretty superior persons."

"We're gods."

"Up here there's no time," he said, gravely now, "no growing old—nothing lost."

"We're young," said Kathie softly.

"We believe in ourselves," he said.

"We've faith in the future." It was a sort of antiphonal chant.

"It must be the future," said Chipping with a shy laugh. He dug his stick into the ground, and continued, without looking at her. "Do you suppose a person—in middle age—could start life over again—and make a go of it?"

"I am sure of it—quite sure," she said with sudden warmth and understanding. "It must be tremendously interesting to be a school master."

"I thought so once."

"To watch boys grow up and help them along, see their characters develop, and what they become when they leave school and the world gets hold of them. I don't see how you can ever get old in a world that's always young."

"I never really thought of it in that way. When you talk about it, you make it sound exciting and heroic."

"It is."

"And the schoolmaster—is he exciting and heroic, too?"

"I've met only one—a reckless person who climbed the Glockner in a mist to—" His intense gaze stopped her. "Is my nose shiny?"

"There's a light on your face—a strange light—"

The moonlight had fallen on her face and gave it a striking beauty.

"Look at the lights in the valley. The mist has lifted!"

They stood up. "Yes," he said, and paused. "We can go down now."

"Yes...I'm almost sorry. It was an adventure, wasn't it? I wonder if we're not leaving it behind us."

"Will you—er—take my hand? It's rather tricky just here."

She took his hand and they started to descend the mountain.

She put half the jacket about Chipping. He accepted, stiff and shy and dazzled.

"Why, well—er—I don't see you," he said, stepping around the bend.

"Here I am," said the voice quite close to him. He saw nothing but mist at first, but as he advanced slowly, the form of a fair, beautiful girl, wearing suit, scarf and a feathered hat, took shape. She was sitting on a low rock, a sandwich in her hand.

"Hello, there! I thought I heard a voice."

"Are you all right?" he asked anxiously.

"Yes, quite, thanks. The mist is a nuisance, isn't it?"

"You're not in any danger?" There was unconscious indignation in Chipping's voice.

"No." Her eyes twinkled. "Do you mind?"

"No—no, of course not."

"You shouldn't be moving about, you know. It's awfully foolish of you."

"Foolish!" Chipping all but choked. "I—I heard you call. I thought you were in some difficulty."

"Don't tell me you climbed up here to rescue me!"

"As a matter of fact, I did," he responded huffily.

"Now really I should be very angry with you. Suppose you had fallen?"

"I must say I—"

"I never heard of such utter stupidity! Where were you?"

"On the Gamsteig."

"And you climbed up in that mist—to rescue me—when I'm probably a better climber than you are!"

"Then what were you screaming about?" he demanded.

"I wasn't screaming. I just let out a shout at random. So that was why?" She pointed downwards, and shuddered. "When I think that road might have been paved with your good intentions! Really, it was idiotic of you—and rather wonderful!" She gave him a sudden smile.

"Not at all," he began uncomfortably.

"Anyhow, I'm awfully glad you came. It was going to be very lonely. Won't you sit down?"

"Er—thanks. E—my name is Chipping—Charles Edward Chipping."

"Mine's Ellis—Katherine Ellis." She withdrew her hand from the pocket for the jacket. "Won't you have a sandwich? I've got loads of them."

"Well, thanks. I ate mine early. I am hungry."

"And I'm sorry I wasn't in any danger," she said contritely.

"It was rather inconsiderate of you," he agreed humorously as he took a sly peep at her, wondering at her youth and beauty. "What are you doing alone on a mountain? Isn't it rather unusual for a young lady?"

"I'm not usually alone. I have a friend at the inn."

"So have I. We're on a walking tour."

"Really? We're bicycling."

"Bicycling? Through Austria?" He was incredulous. "Good heavens, I didn't know that ladies rode those awful things! With—er—a leg on each side of the saddle?"

Governor Zenon Trudeau

Before the United States purchased the Louisiana territory no governor stationed in what is now Missouri did more to build up a Spanish empire in America than Zenon Trudeau.

His term as lieutenant-governor of Upper Louisiana began on July 21, 1792, one hundred and forty-seven years ago this week. During his first months at St. Louis he learned that British traders were building forts in Spanish territory on the upper Missouri, and in order to drive them out and to expand the influence of Missouri traders he encouraged the organization of the Missouri Company. Through this organization he proposed to exploit new Indian tribes on the upper Missouri, discover a route to the Pacific ocean, and build forts as a buffer against British and Russian aggression into the rich provinces of California and Mexico. As a government agency for defense and exploration the company only fairly succeeded, for although it constructed two forts and captured one that had been built by the British, none of the three existed long. As a business venture the company failed completely, for because of bad management and Indian trouble three expeditions, costing the stockholders more than $200,000, were lost.

An empire builder and not a provincial official, Trudeau did not limit his interests to the northwest. In order to control the troublesome Osage Indians he helped arrange with Auguste Chouteau for the building of Fort Carondelet in 1794-1795. This fort, evidently built near Halley's Bluffs in the present Vernon county, was the most western fort built in Missouri during the Spanish regime.

In his capacity as a colonizer, however, Trudeau did his greatest work. As early as 1770 his predecessors had developed a plan for allowing colonists to settle in Spanish territory. Under this general arrangement the governor had the power to confer grants varying in size from 200 to 1000 arpents to actual settlers, although in special cases he was allowed to make larger grants. Trudeau was impressed with the military and economic importance of immigration and not only accepted the plan but made a direct effort to get outstanding American frontier leaders to settle in Spanish Louisiana. The great pioneer, Daniel Boone, and hundreds of Americans were courteously received, accepting Spanish citizenship and generous grants of land from this noted governor.

Governor Trudeau objected to the requirement that all colonists must accept the Catholic religion. Possibly he might have been tinctured with the French irreligion of that time, but at least he seems to have administered the religious oath in a most perfunctory manner. He was under a strict obligation to expel all Protestant ministers, but John Clark, a Methodist preacher, periodically visited the region now included in Jefferson county and was never materially interferred with.

Under his progressive colonizing and commercial policies, business became more active. St. Louis took on a new air of prosperity and new towns and communities were founded. Not until the closing years of the nineteenth century, almost a hundred years later, did the wave of immigration so carefully nurtured by Trudeau, subside.

Zenon Trudeau, who with a policy encouraging immigration, trade, exploration, and fortification to protect the region against invasion, became one of the most progressive governors of Upper Louisiana, was born in New Orleans on November 28, 1748. A man with a high sense of patriotism and unquestioned personal integrity, Trudeau was popular among the people and held the respect of his superiors. When he was offered retirement with a pension in 1797 he refused because of the war with England. He was succeeded as lieutenant-governor by Charles Dehault Delassus on August 29, 1799. Trudeau died in St. Charles Parish, Louisiana, soon after 1803.

JAPAN HINTS BOYCOTT OF AMERICAN COTTON

Tokyo, July 13.—In retaliation against Senator Key Pittman's resolution prohibiting export of war supplies to violators of the Nine-Power Treaty, Japanese authorities today hinted Tokyo would refuse to continue buying American raw cotton.

Japan purchases approximately $252,000,000 worth of raw cotton from the United States yearly, according to Tokyo figures.

(Trade figures show Japan buys about 800 million dollars worth of cotton yearly from the United States.)

Japan, according to the Domei, official Japanese news agency, considers the Pittman measure aimed directly at Nippon. The Nevada Democrat's measure, the agency stated, is considered as "economic provocation" which may lead to eventual suspension of Japanese-American trade relations.

MUNICIPAL OPERA REVIVES SMETANA'S MASTERPIECE, "THE BARTERED BRIDE"

St. Louis—Friedrich Smetana's farcial Bohemian folk opera, "The Bartered Bride," which attracted nightly capacity audiences two years ago, will be revived by the Municipal Opera, with another group of costly of singers, selected from the New York Metropolitan Opera roster, beginning Monday night, July 24. The final performance will be given Sunday night, July 30.

The original hilarious English translation of the "Bartered Bride" given at the Municipal Opera two summers ago, will be repeated. The translation has preserved all of the characteristics of the original text. The plot centers around the love of a servant for his master's daughter. The music is an endless series of beautiful arias, trios, quartets and choruses.

Muriel Dickson, famous Scottish soprano, will sing the leading faminine role of Marie, a part in which she made her Metropolitan debut with sensational success in 1936. She came to this country in 1935 as the leading prima donna of the world-renowned D'Oyly Carte Opera Co., of London, producers of Gilbert and Sullivan works, and captivated audiences with her beauty and glorious voice. Before the company had completed its brief tour she was engaged as a principal of the New York Metropolitan Opera Co. She made her debut at the Metropolitan immediately after the Gilbert and Sullivan players completed its American engagement. At the Metropolitan she also has sung the roles of Musette in "La Boheme," Caroline in "Clandestine Marriage" and Amelia in "Amelia Goes to the Ball." She made her American recital debut in Town Hall, New York, last December, and received tumultous praise.

George Rasely, Metropolitan opera tenor, has been re-engaged for the role of the stuttering half-witted Vashek, a part in which he created a sensation at both the Metropolitan and on his debut at the Municipal Opera two summers ago. Rasely was seen as Captain Andy in "Show Boat" at the amphitheatre last summer.

Myron Taylor, another New York Metropolitan principal, will sing the leading man's role of Jenik. Engene Loewenthal, famous bass-baritone, will return to sing the role of the marriage broker, a part in which he scored a great hit for comedy and vocal artistry at the Municipal Theatre on the first St. Louis presentation of the Smetana success. Annamary Dickey, the Decatur, Ill., soprano, who won the Metropolitan opera auditions last winter for a contract at the famous operatic institution, also will return to the outdoor theater.

Other roles will be filled by the regular favorites, including Arthur Kent, Joseph Vitale, Al Downing, Frederic Persson and Dorothy Johnson.

There will be plenty of folk dancing in the comic opera, with solo roles filled by Valya Valentinoff, a star of "On Your Toes," Nina Stroganova and Vladimir Doukoudovsky, all former members of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo.

U. S. TRIO TO COMBAT BURNING ARABIAN WELL

New York, July 17.—Three men arrived today on the first leg of an airplane trip half way around the world to extinguish an oil well fire.

Myron M. Kinley of Houston, Tex., and his assistants, Charles Hengst and Cleo Jobe, leave on a Pan-American Airways clipper for Marseilles, France, Wednesday, and fly from there to Arabia by Imperial Airways. They hope to reach a burning Arabian well a week from today.

The fire has been burning since July 8 and could burn six months or a year.

An oil fire specialist, Kinley was in Boston when Standard Oil Co. officials called him to San Francisco to discuss the Arabian fire. He flew to California and then to Houston to get Hengst and Jobe, then here.

Kinley went to Rumania to extinguish a fire several years ago. Fighting oil well fires is dangerous and difficult. Experts are few.

Speed is still one of the big contributing factors to our serious accidents.

Back in 1903, Charles F. Young was the speed demon who literally burned up the track at Mount Holly, New Jersey, with his single-cylinder, eight horsepower, four speed, double chain drive auto. It had a breath-taking speed of 35 miles an hour, and driver Young usually came in first.

Today some people insist on going through a busy thoroughfare, past school houses, and other dangerous locations on our highways at, not 35, but 55 and more. A car traveling 60 miles an hour, hitting a dead object, has the same force of impact it would have if it were dropped from the top of a 10-story building to the pavement.

Before you drive fast—think.

Ministers of Madison, Wis., last week demanded "freedom of speech" in their prayers before they would open the Wisconsin Senate with the usual solemnity. Reason was that a Wisconsin Senator recently objected to a preacher's opening prayer because he called down the "wrath of God upon little men in large places who stooped to canny shrewdness to thwart the people's will."

At the time of his death Rembrandt's personal property consisted of his painting materials and a few linen and woolen garments. In recent years as much as one-half million dollars has been paid for one of his pictures.

The ancient Turkish nobles employed many lackeys and footmen, called peichs, as messengers. These couriers ran in their bare feet until continuous exercise of this sort over all types of roads so deadened and calloused their feet that they were able to shoe themselves with horseshoes. To increase the resemblance between themselves and horses they carried a silver bit in their mouths while on errands for their masters.

PAINT the underside of porch floors as a protection against moisture.

Frequently space and soil beneath flooring is damp, due to insufficient ventilation. Such conditions bring about moisture absorption, causing topside paint to blister and peel. If allowed to continue, rotting of the porch floor often results.

To prevent this, apply coat of high quality exterior paint to underside of porch floor. Such treatment protects flooring and reduces porch painting costs.

Experience has proved that an excellent paint for back priming purposes is composed of equal parts soft paste white lead and raw linseed oil. Add 1 pint of drier for each 3 gallons of linseed oil.

Q.—Is a permit necessary for home plumbing installations and must a licensed plumber do the job?

A.—In most communities plumbing installations are controlled by ordinances which usually require a permit for new as well as remodeling work, and likewise specify that work be done by licensed plumbers.

In many cases inspection is required after completion of work to see that it compiles with plumbing and health laws.

Q.—Suggest remedy for moisture condensation on interior walls during hot weather.

A.—Interior condensation is usually caused by improper ventilation. Air circulation created by opening windows should improve, if not entirely correct, this trouble.

Q.—Kitchen stairs, recently shellaced, are water-spotted. Is it necessary to refinish the surface to remove spots?

A.—No. Such spots are readily removed by the application of household ammonia.

(The Home Owners Forum of the Home Service Bureau will be glad to help you solve home maintenance problems relating to plumbing, painting, etc. Write care of this paper.)

Modern Housewife Enjoys Her Modern Kitchen

Efficiency and Charm Join Hands in This Delightful Room

TODAY'S KITCHEN is as inviting in appearance as any other room in the house. Its complete array of efficient labor-saving electrical devices accents the decorative scheme with gleaming surfaces and superb design. That is why the homemaker whose modern kitchen expresses her own personality and charm delights in repeating to her friends: "Do come into the kitchen!"

A prize-winner in the Modern Kitchen Bureau's "Kitchen of the Month" contest, this pleasant little kitchen makes a bid for national prominence. Its delighted owner enjoys the luxury of electric cooking, electric water heating and electric refrigeration. The capable help of such tireless servants as her electric mixer, coffee maker, roaster and waffle iron shortens the hours and brightens the minutes spent in preparing meals for the family.

With her capacious refrigerator well stocked, the homemaker is always certain that food supplies will be fresh and ready for use, no matter how many unexpected guests may drop in. If her dinner is in the oven, she is free for the afternoon, knowing perfectly well that the automatic controls on her range will shut off the heat at the correct time and still keep everything hot until it is time for the meal to be served. A sure supply of hot water at all times lightens many tasks and comfortably solves one more domestic problem.

The electric kitchen is increasing in popularity at an amazing rate of speed, as women everywhere are learning its many advantages and the ease and economy with which it can be installed.

WOMAN HIT BY CAR AT DOWNTOWN CROSSING

Mrs. Kirby Edmondson received bruises Tuesday when knocked down by an automobile at the New Madrid-Center Street intersection. Mrs. R. C. O'Brien of Fredericktown, according to City Officer McManus, going north, almost overran a red light. In backing out of the intersection, she struck Mrs. Edmondson, who was treated by Dr. H. M. Kendig.

STATE TO CUT 8500 OFF WPA IN JULY

Jefferson City, July 18.—Missouri's shrinking WPA rolls will take another cut of 8500 in the next two weeks to bring the state within its August quota of 71,500 workers.

Deputy State Administrator E. M. Bayse said the reduction would be made from those who have been on the rolls continuously during the last 18 months—who must be laid off for 30 days under a new federal law.

Bayse said a canvass to see how many of the 80,000 now on the state rolls would come under the lay-off order had not been completed, but one federal estimate placed the number in Missouri at approximately 24,000.

The reductions will be made gradually, Bayse explained, as the survey advances. Those laid off will be eligible to return to work after 30 days if the quota permits.

George Bernard Shaw's first years in London were spent in desperate want. "My clothes turned green," he says. "And I trimmed my cuffs to the quick with scissors, and wore my tall hat with the back part in front, so that the brim should not bend double when I took it off to an acquaintance."

Charles Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore, Misses Lucille and Mary Ethel Moore, left Thursday morning for San Francisco, Calif. to attend the Golden Gate Exposition. They will visit Mr. and Mrs. Tim Moore and George Steel, Jr., at Casper, Wyo. en route to Calif.

William O. Calboun of Livingston, Mont., was not so sure last week there was justice in the world. He saw a tomcat stalking a robin. His humane instincts aroused, he threw a rock at the cat, missed. But Calhoun went to the hospital, his arm broken by the heave.

And this explains that innocent odor of alcohol on the breath of Frank O'Neal when he was arrested after he had an automobile accident in St. Petersburg, Fla. O'Neal was cold sober at the time of the accident, he explained to the Judge, but he had a half pint of wine on the seat beside him and he knew that would look bad. So he quickly drank it before police arrived to keep them from finding it. But it still looked bad to the Judge, who gave O'Neal choice of $100 or 90 days.

After all, it's just another way of making a living. George Brann, 82-year-old resident of Kent, England, is a bird scarer and has supported himself as such for 73 years. Possessed of a powerful voice, he shouts at the birds, frightening them away during the sowing season. Such was his success that at the age 16 he was the most sought-after bird scarer south of the Thames. But, alas, he is now the last of a lineage of noted Kentish bird scarers.

PLANNING LOW-COST, HEALTHFUL MEALS

By Katharine Fisher

Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

It is a well-known fact that the smaller the budget the narrower the choice in foods. And a narrow diet can so often be a deficient diet, one that invites less fitness. So, if the size of your grocery bill is important to you, it is even more important that you know just what can be safely left out of economical meals.

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

Our Daily Guide to Low-Cost Meals has saved the day for thousands of budgeteers. We are giving it below because it will help you who are tackling budget meals to come through with flying colors. Take a long look at this guide, and you'll quickly see why it has become so popular.

It's all too easy to be thrifty at the expense of your family when it comes to fruits leafy, green and yellow vegetables, milk, and so forth. However, with our guide at your elbow when meal-planning hour comes around, you can tell at a glance just what fruits, vegetables and other foods, as well as how much of each, you must include in your daily meals to keep your family well and fit, and still respect your modest budget.

Because we try to stretch food dollars as far as is safe, our guide calls for generous quantities of cereals and breads, a full quota of milk, and less expensive but mineral- and vitamin-rich vegetables, fruits, etc. However, more vegetables, fruits, meat, fish and eggs may always be added if your pocketbook allows. More expensive vegetables, fruits and meats may also be substituted for those suggested.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE'S DAILY GUIDE TO LOW-COST MEALS

What to Serve Each Day for Grownups and Children Over 5 Years

Milk: 1 qt. for each child; 1 pt. for each adult daily—to drink or in cooked food. Evaporated or dried whole milk or cheese may replace part of the quota.

Vegetables and Fruit: A leafy, green or yellow-colored vegetable once a day, sometimes twice. Tomatoes, canned or fresh, or citrus fruit in season, daily if possible. Potatoes, sweet or white, frequently. One additional fresh or dried fruit or an additional vegetable daily. Dried beans, peas, lentils, peanut butter or nuts two or three times weekly.

A Cereal Dish: Once a day, sometimes twice. This may include breakfast cereals, rice, macaroni, spaghetti, etc., as well as flour and meal products.

Bread or Crackers: At every meal—at least half of them whole grain.

Eggs: Two or three weekly for adults; four or five for young children. A few extra in cooking.

Meat, Fish, Poultry, or Cheese: Three to four times a week or oftener if combined with cereals listed above.

Desserts: Once a day; fruits and milk puddings especially recommended.

Fats: Butter or margarine and salad oil, vegetable shortenings, lard, salt pork and bacon, as budget permits. Margarines reinforced with Vitamins A and D are now available.

Sugars: Molasses, sugar, jellies, honey, and syrups may be used for sweetening.

Plenty of Drinking Water.

Note: To insure against Vitamin D deficiency, cod-liver oil or its equivalents in fish-oil concentrates or Vitamin D milk will be found helpful and beneficial.

The Men's Bible Class of the Methodist Church surprised J. Z. Sutton with a party Monday evening at his home on Dorothy. Refreshments were served by the class members.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McDougal and J. S. Wallace returned Sunday night from Rochester, Minn. where Mrs. McDougal had spent two weeks with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lee McDougal who is there recovering from an operation. Mr. Wallace visited his wife who sustained an operation in a hospital there last week.

Mrs. Lee Bowman and Mrs. Milem Limbaugh expect to leave next Tuesday to spend a month in Los Angeles, Calif. with the former's sister, Mrs. C. E. Pancoast. They will motor to San Francisco to the Golden Gate Exposition, Yosemite National Park, and other points of interest in the state.

Margaret Ann White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar White, is visiting her cousin, Josephine Sherwood in Dexter this week.

Automobile Wrecks Laid To Drivers

"I AM fully convinced," writes Isabel Dean in the July issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine, "that the biggest accident cause is not the car or the highway or even the demon rum—it is a loose screw in the mind of the driver." Miss Dean's article, "I've Had an Accident" is one of an aggressive series in a campaign for greater motor safety and the reduction of highway accidents now in progress.

"Getting behind the wheel of a car has a curious effect on human nature and normally decent people become unpleasantly transformed and discourteous when they drive. In addition to danger to life involved, bad motoring manners hold up traffic and waste time and fuel. Of all traffic delays, 25% grow out of common discourtesy. Psychoanalysts have been uncovering reasons for some kinds of childish misbehavior in an automobile. A car is everything that the small boy wanted and it seems to bring out the small boy in men," says Miss Dean.

Most people admit they drive too fast when there is no need for it. The human eye makes a deceptive accommodation to the sensation of speed, so that high speeds seem slow when the eye has accustomed itself to higher ones. Most people are convinced that accidents happen only to other people and not to themselves. As a veteran of an accident, Miss Dean says they can happen to anybody.

TWO MEN AND WOMAN ACCUSED OF EXTORTION

Kennett, Mo., July 14.—Two men and a woman, held in the Dunklin County jail here in default of $2500 bond each, will be arraigned July 22 before Justice of the Peace Albert Biggs on charges of third degree robbery and extortion filed yesterday in connection with the alleged blackmail of a wealthy farmer who lives near here.

Sheriff G. D. Miles said the amount involved in the purported extortion totaled at least $2000, and added that the men, Raymond Killian, about 23 years old, and Barney Clifton, 41, had admitted that they took money from the farmer, whose name is being withheld.

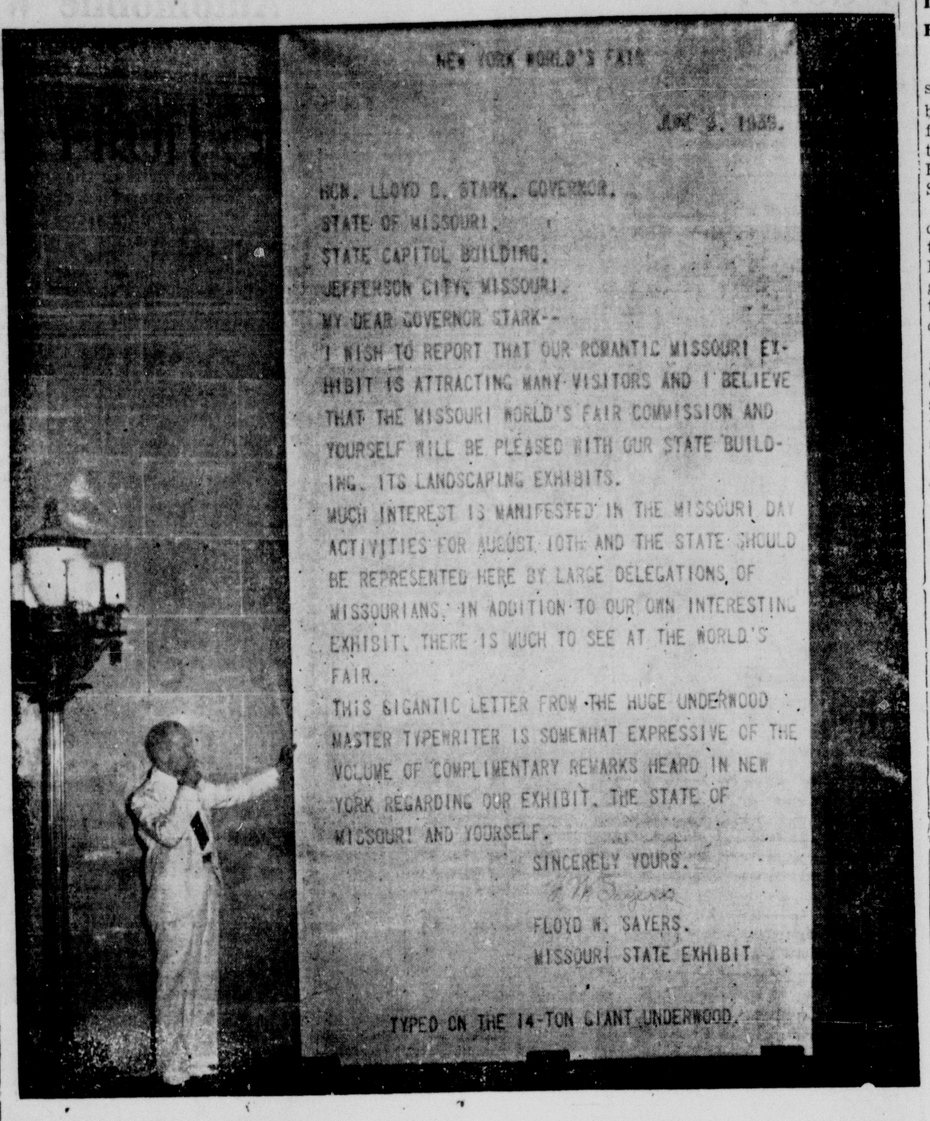

The woman, Mrs. Barney Clifton, was arrested for investigation Monday. The purported extortion is alleged to have occurred in April but the filing of charges was delayed because of the farmer's reluctance to prosecute the three.

Killian also is accused of impersonating an officer, and Clifton, of abetting the impersonation, and the preliminary hearing on these charges, which were filed July 1 on the complaint of Deputy Sheriff A. C. Schult, also will be held July 22.

Under the latter charges, it is alleged that Killian, representing himself as a Deputy Sheriff from Pemiscot County, accompanied Clifton to the farmer's home, where the Cliftons had been staying, last April and told the farmer he intended to arrest him. The farmer immediately told a friend of the incident, and the latter asked Schult to investigate Killian's authority. Killian and Clifton were arrested and held a few minutes April 10. Further investigation by the officers resulted in the re-arrest of the two men.

BILL WHITE APPRAISES VANDENBURG: A CHEESE

"There is nothing wrong with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg as a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination," opines William Allen White, dean of American editors and G. O. P. oracle, "and there is very little right about him in the matter of record and public experience . He is far and away the best candidate but at the present moment the American public is allergic to him. Now he has the perfectly inevitable lineaments and unblemished outline of a man cut out of a cheese paring—a good cheese, a big cheese, indeed, but somehow lacking political animation, just now."

Governor Lloyd C. Stark is shown standing by the side of a huge, 17-foot letter of invitation to the New York World's Fair in the capitol at Jefferson City. The letter, written by Floyd W. Sayers, director of the Missouri exhibit, on a 14-ton master typewriter, is a reminder of the special Missouri day at the fair on August 10. Governor and Mrs. Stark and a number of state officials will go to New York for this event via the special Missouri train. All Missourians who wish are invited to accompany them on the special train. Individual rates are priced as low as $38 round trip. Colonel Claude C. Earp, Highway Building, Jefferson City, is the chairman in charge of arrangements.

Zander, 34 years old, known as the "Swiss Adolf Hitler," is head of the largest and best organized of the three Nazi-type parties in Switzerland. He and several of his lieutenants, also on trial, were accused of plotting to set up a Nazi dictatorship in Switzerland and of espionage for Germany.

MISSOURI MELANGE

Bates county was the first Missouri county on the 1939 Kansas City wheat market with a car of No. 2 red wheat shipped June 23 by the Farmers Grain Elevator Company of Butler.

The banking house of J. S. Hughes & Company of Richmond observed its 80th anniversary, June 23.

The Kansas City Southern Railroad has filed formal application to operate an air transport service between Kansas City and New Orleans, following the route of the railroad. Intermediate stops would be made at Joplin, Fort Smith, Texarkana, Shreveport, Alexandria and Baton Rouge. Three fourteen-passenger planes, requiring an investment of $255,000 would be used.

Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown and Mayor Bradley of Poplar Bluff were among more than 1000 guests of the Costal Petroleum Company and the Great Northern Land Company at a picnic dinner, June 19, at location of Pearson No. 1 deep-test oil exploration in the Coon Island community of Southeast Missouri. It was the first opportunity for many of those present to see an oil rig in operation.

The editor of the Charleston Enterprise-Courier predicts that the first frost of next fall will come on September 25. He bases his prediction on the fact that the first katydid of this summer sounded off at 7:15 p. m., June 25. That means frost within ninety days, he says.

The governor has named Karl Marshall of Charleston as associate judge of the Mississippi county court, to fill the unexpired term of the late H. D. Sutherland.

Residents of Monroe, Mich., woke up the other morning to find a strange shower had fallen during the night. It had rained dollars. In the yards and on the streets were found nearly $6000 in currency ranging from $1 to $10 bills. Defect in the start of a perfect day was that the bills were spurious. Federal agents surmised a counterfeiter had discarded the notes in fear of being caught.

Shopping For Health

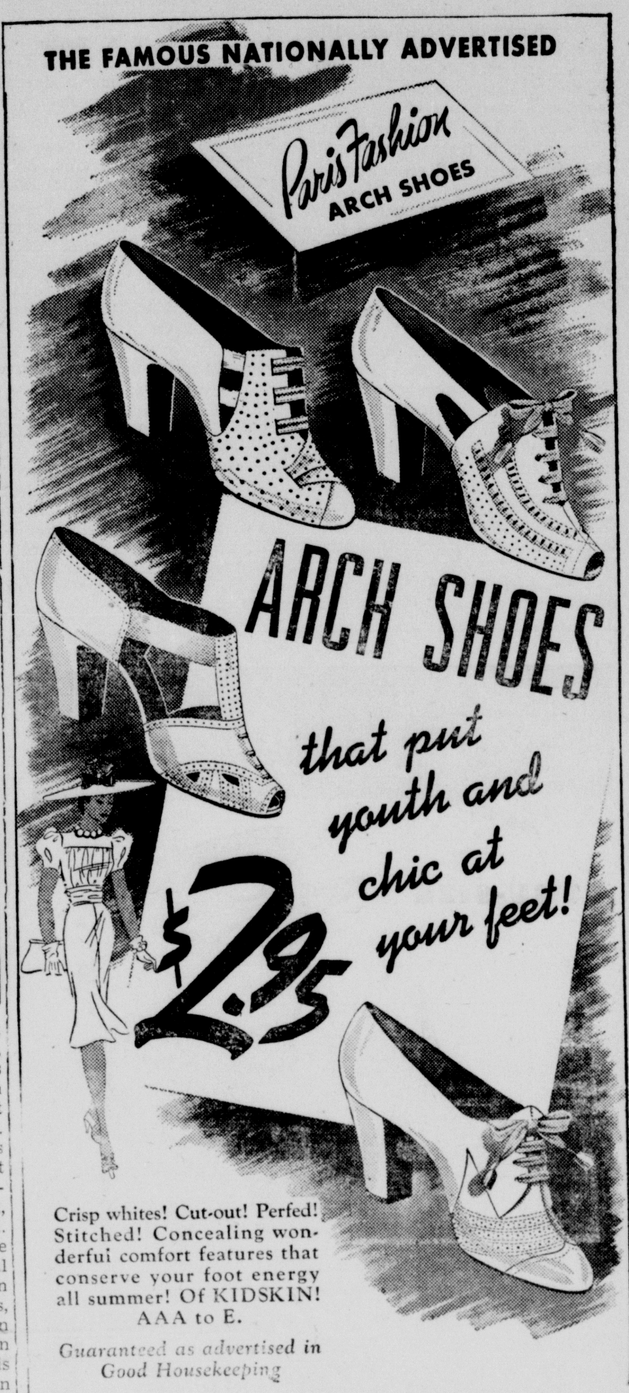

For over five years we have examined many of those who are "shopping for health." Most of them have been interested primarily in how cheap can it be restored—not how well. It has been our privilege to know several of this type. Today they still make the rounds of physicians' offices, spending many dollars, annually, and their health just where it was years ago. Many professional men call them bargain hunters. But there are no bargains in health. The best advice and treatment is still far short of being perfect when human suffering is concerned. When surgery is indicated, the best surgeon is none too good. When medicine is wanted the best, not the cheapest, medical doctor should be called. When pressures exist on delicate nerves, only one skilled in the detection and adjustment of pressure can correct this condition. Health is priceless. Too often but little can be done by those best qualified to treat the case. What can be expected of those whose ability is reflected by the fee they feel their services are worth?

Remember it's fun to be healthy. Take Chiropractic adjustments and "keep smilling"

MYSTERY SHIP FOUND SUNKEN OFF U. S. COAST

Washington, July 19.—Government scientists discovered a mystery ship today at the bottom of the ocean eight miles off Brigantine Inlet, on the New Jersey coast.

The vessel's location did not fit into any recent unsolved mystery of the sea. It was discovered by the crew of the Oceonographer, a survey ship of the Coast and Geoditic Survey, which was dragging for undersea menaces to ships.

The wreck was found in about 60 feet of water and the highest part of it was about 35 feet below the surface. Experts said the wreck might endanger large ocean-going ships and would have to be broken up.

SEMO 4-H CLUB CAMP AT IRONDALE THIS YEAR

The annual 4-H Club camp for the Southeast Missouri District, which includes New Madrid County will be held at Irondale Boy Scout Camp this year, rather than Arcadia, according to an announcement just received by the agents from the committee in charge of location. Those selecting the location are of the opinion that the facilities at the Scout camp will adequately take care of the whole group from Southeast Missouri rather than having two camps like last year. The camp will be opened at 1:30 on Monday, August 21, and will be continued through Thursday morning.

Cost of this year's camp is as follows: Enrollment fee, $3.50; transportation, $1.00; lunch on return trip, 25 cents, and incidental, 10 cents, making a total of $4.80. It is suggested that everyone take his lunch for Monday rather than buying something. The group will stop on the way at noon. This will take care of all expense except what each one may desire to spend for refreshments. However, it is suggested by the agents this be held to a minimum as past experience shows that there is likely to be less sickness and more regularity of habits if the youngsters do not eat too many nicknacks and drink too much soda water between meals. Parents are urged to cooperate in this respect.

Sugar beets, botanically speaking, belong to the same species as the garden beet. Although they contain less than 20 per cent sugar, they furnish nearly one-half of the world's supply of that commodity.

Funny the proverbial absent-minded professor never thought of trying this one. Whitey Long of Elk City, Ok., lighted a firecracker with a cigarette. In a moment of dreamy preoccupation he tossed away the cigarette, put the firecracker in his mouth. Now he is minus a tooth and has severe lip lacerations.

The Antarctic composes half of the earth's unexplored territory. Other great areas are in the Arctic regions, many islands of northern Canada, and large areas in the Canadian mainland, northern Siberia, Tibet, Arabia and high mountains of the Himalayan chain, Africa Australia, and South America.

THREE CCC YOUTH HURT IN COLLISION

Three members of the New Madrid CCC Drainage Camp had an automobile accident Friday, July 14. Raymond Page of Lilbourn, owner and driver, Albert Williams and Cletus Williams of Charleston, enroute to East Prairie to play in a softball game, were going over the levee east of LaForge when a collision occured with an on-coming truck in the middle of the road. The boys were taken to the hospital at Cairo, and were returned the following day to the camp hospital. Page and Ab Williams were the least injured in the wreck, while Cletus Williams sustained a broken left arm, fractured in three places.

MISSOURI FARMER KILLED BY BULL

Higginsville, Mo., July 19.—John Dittmer, farmer of near Concordia, was killed today when he was knocked down and gored by a bull as he was taking cows back to pasture. The farmer was found by his son, Edwin, a quarter mile from the house.

He was a trustee of the Board of Directors of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Concordia. Surviving are his mother, his widow, four sons, two brothers and three sisters.

NEW MADRID FARMERS ON STONEVILLE TOUR

New Madrid County was very well represented on the Stoneville Tour this year, by seven gin managers and farmers out of a total of thirty-five attending from the Missouri Cotton Counties, according to County Agent Broom. Farmers were somewhat in the majority, there being four out of the seven. This seemed to be true of the other counties represented, also. Those who attended reported a good time and they felt the trip was well worthwhile both from an educational and pleasure standpoint. Those attending were: J. K. Robbins, and Lloyd Turner, New Madrid; Bill Baker, LaForge; Arline Avery and C. B. Alsobrook, Jr., of Marston; C. S. Smith of Malden; Bert Femmer, of Gideon, and County Agent Broom.

Property owners will find a wealth of information in a booklet published especially for them by the Federal Housing Administration. Ask your local Better Housing Committee for a copy of the "Property Owners'" Booklet.

VITAMIN "A" NEEDED FOR NIGHT DRIVING

Can you see in the dark? When you step from the lobby into the semi-darkness of a movie theatre, do you have difficulty adjusting your vision? After facing the glare of automobile headlights in night driving, can you see the road ahead?

Night-blindness has been the cause of an alarming number of traffic accidents, and science has traced it to a condition resulting from dificiency of vitamin A in the diet. Milk is exceptionally rich in vitamin A, and thus for outomobile drivers milk-drinking is a form of insurance.

Serious accidents often result from such minor hazards as a faulty basement stairway. Take advantage of the liberal financing plan made available by the National Housing Act to put your house in good condition.

Every type of business will benefit from the National Housing Act. It is to the interest of every business man to support his local Better Housing Program.

RED SPIDER DAMAGES COTTON

R. Q. Black of Oran reports a field of cotton heavily infested with red spider on his farm, seven miles southwest of Oran. Farmers are urged to watch their cotton carefully for these insects, because it require much less expense to stop them when they are still in small spots.

These insects are not much larger than a pin point, but they are very prolific. It requires them about two weeks to complete a life cycle. They are spread by the wind, by plowing through the infested spot, by walking through the spots; they travel very little of their own accord.

Method of control recommended is a thorough dusting of the infested area with finely ground sulphur. Apply about 6 to 8 pounds per acre.

Floors very often make or break a home. Do yours need resurfacing? An expenditure of this kind may prove a wise investment now that the National Housing Act has made credit available to property owners on such liberal terms.

Monday when the negroes visited the relief office they were told in no uncertain terms to move on and later in the day to move out which they promptly did. TOUGH TASK FOR WINDMILLS

WINDMILLS have a much more difficult time of it here in Curacao than they do in their homeland, Holland. Very little water comes naturally to Curacao, little Dutch isle lying just off the coast of Venezuela. There are only a couple of springs, and very little rainfall. Much of the water is brought to the island in ships and bought by the inhabitants, or is distilled from the sea. Besides this, Curacao—largely of volcanic origin—is rocky and hilly, rimmed round with limestone cliffs. Yet in spite of all this the island is one of the most spotlessly clean and attractive places in the whole Caribbean.

Gardens have been planted and carefully tended. Buildings have all been designed along Dutch lines—some with steep-roofed gables, narrow fronts, and red tiled roofs; others with columns, porches and Dutch domes. And the colors which nature has withheld in the form of trees and vegetation, man has supplied by painting buildings in bright blues, yellows, and reds—so that they look like confetti scattered along the waterfront.

Furthermore business booms on the island for here much of Venezuela's oil is refined. The Port of Willemstad is one of the most popular on the globe—with more than 5600 ships annually docking at her pier—and last year was included in the itinerary of the regular weekly 18-Day Caribbean cruises from New York.

HARVEST LESPEDEZA HAY NOW FOR RESULTS

J. T. Huey, Fred Black and and other farmers of Scott County are harvesting lespedeza for hay. Harvesting hay now will insure a better seed crop this fall than would have been secured had no hay been harvested, says County Agent Lane.

Because of the nature of its growth lespedeza begins shedding the bottom leaves when it has reached a height of about four inches. When this leafless area reaches a height from the ground high enough to clear a mower blade that is the time the hay crop should be removed. With a normal stand lespedeza six inches high will yield one ton of hay per acre. The hay dries quickly; hay cut in the morning may be baled in the afternoon.

MISSOURI NIGHT CLUB TO BE REVIVAL SCENE

Hayti, Mo., July 15. — The Okeena Night Club on Highway 84, seven miles west of here, will be the scene of a revival meeting, starting next week, according to the Rev. E. J. Morgan, living near the night club, who will conduct the services for three weeks, assisted by other ministers in this area.

The Rev. Mr. Morgan, who has attacked the night culb from time to time from pulpits in churches near by, said he had told the owner that he wishes his business would fail. The club was closed sometime ago, and the owner, the Rev. Mr. Morgan declared, told him that he intended to reopen, but in the event business did not improve over what it had been before, he would close the club and turn it over complete with chairs, lights, fans and other equipment for a revival meeting.

The anticipated business did not materialize and the night club owner made good his promise, the Rev. Mr. Morgan said.

6 INJURED AS TRAIN WRECKS FARM WAGON

Poplar Bluff, July 15.—Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wolverton and their four children were injured, the children critically, when a team of mules Wolverton was driving became frightened at a train today and ran across the railroad tracks.

Wolverton said at a hospital where he and his family were taken that the mules, hitched to a farm wagon, ran across the tracks ahead of a Frisco passenger train.

He and Mrs. Wolverton were thrown out of the wagon, but their four children, Bethel, 13; Roy, 4; Martha, 3, and Willia, 16 months old, were pushed along ahead of the train as the wagon was wrecked. Their escape from death, he said, was miraculous.

HERE'S PROOF that it's Cool in the Kitchen

MAKE THESE DISHES AHEAD OF TIME

It's a grand feeling, when you are giving a dinner or luncheon to know that your last minutes before the meal is served will be passed in tranquil coolness instead of in a mad scramble in a hot kitchen. You can assure yourself of this comfort if you choose dishes that may be prepared hours ahead of time and packed in the refrigerator. Here is a luncheon menu that requires a magically short time for last-minute preparation.

Ice Tomato Juice
Jellied Vegetable Salad
Cold Sliced Baked Ham
Marmalade Biscuits
Frozen Apple Sauce
Cookies
Hot Coffee

Make your vegetable salad the night before. Bake the ham the day before and in the morning slice paper thin and place in the ice box wrapped in wax paper so that it will remain moist. Prepare the biscuit dough and form biscuits in the morning ready to pop into the oven 15 or 20 minutes before serving. Freeze apple sauce in the morning.

JELLIED VEGETABLE SALAD

3 tablespoon gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 quart canned tomatoes
2 or 3 onion slices
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
2 tablespoon chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 cup shredded cabbage

Soak the gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Boil the tomatoes and onion for 5 minutes, strain through a fine sieve. Pour the hot tomato juice over the softened gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add the salt and sugar and chill. When the gelatine mixture is slightly soft, add the finely chopped vegetables and mix well. Add more salt if needed. If the mixture is not tart enough add a little lemon juice or vinegar. Pour into wet custard cups and place in refrigerator. When ready to serve turn out on crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

MARMALADE BISCUITS

Roll baking powder biscuit mixture ¼ inch thick. Cut in ovals 6 inches long and 3 inches wide. Make ½ inch cuts one inch from and parallel with ends. Put 1 teaspoon of marmalade in center. Bring one end of dough through hole in other end. Bake in a hot oven.

If you do not wish to heat the oven to prepare these biscuits you may serve date nut bread in place of them.

DATE NUT BREAD

1½ cups dates
1½ cups boiling water
2 tablespoon shortening
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
2¾ cups pastry flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup walnut meats chopped
½ teaspoon vanilla

Wash and stone dates, quarter, pour boiling water over them. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool, add egg, flour sifted with soda, cream of tartar, nuts and vanilla. Beat well, turn into greased bread pan and bake in moderate oven for 1¼ hours.

FROZEN APPLE SAUCE

Drain 4 cups apple sauce. Add 1 cup shredded pineapple, 2 tablespoons finely chopped preserved ginger and ½ cup steamed chopped raisins. Freeze in trays in automatic refrigerator until about the consistency of a sherbet. Serve with crisp sugar cookies or plain white cake.

PINEAPPLE CHARLOTTE

18 to 24 small strips sponge cake
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoon sugar
½ cup cubed canned or fresh pineapple
10 maraschino cherries

Stand 3 or 4 strips of cake in each sherbet glass . Whip the cream, add the sugar and fold in the pineapple. Place in glasses and let stand in refrigerator for 1 hour. Sprinkle with chopped maraschino cherries.

PEANUT BRITTLE ICE ICE BOX DESSERT

Stir 1 1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk and 3 tablespoons lemon juice together till mixture thickens. Put ½ cup peanut brittle through food chopper, using coarse knife. Combine two mixtures. Line an oblong pan with wax paper, cover with graham crackers. Put in layer of peanut brittle mixture, repeat graham crackers till mold is full. Let stand 12 hours. Unmold. Slice, serve with whipped cream.

CATCHES HUSBAND

Grays Harbor, Wash., July 15.—Mrs. Richard Meserve's catch while fishing made her husband speechless.

Making a cast, she hooked him through the tongue.

Use Your Refrigerator in Preparing Summer Menus

Your automatic refrigerator will prove a valuable aid in the creation of cool and colorful dishes for summer meals. Not only are such dishes fine in flavor but they have the great advantage of being prepared in advance. Salads, meat loaf, desserts—all may be prepared with the aid of this efficient adjunct to modern housekeeping.

JELLIED BEEF BROTH

But 3 pounds of lean beef cut in small pieces into 3 quarts of cold water. Add 1 small onion, 1 carrot, 2 tablespoons chipped celery, 2 sprigs parsley and simmer for 2 hours. Strain through cheesecloth, add salt to taste and beaten white of 1 egg. Boil until clear, strain. Add 2 tablespoons gelatine dissolved in cold water to each quart of stock. Pour into individual molds.

HAM MOUSSE

1 tablespoon gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup boiling water
2 cups chopped cold boiled ham
1 teaspoon mixed mustard
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt
(if needed)
½ cup cream, whipped

Soak gelatine in cold water about 5 minutes, dissolve in boiling water. Cool, add to chopped ham, add mustard, paprika, salt and whipped cream. Turn into mold and chill. When firm unmold and garnish with tomatoes, hard-cooked eggs, and lettuce or parsley.

BEEF LOAF

2 pounds lean beef
1 cup diced salt pork
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped parsley
1½ cups milk
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
4 dashes tabasco sauce

Put the meat through grinder. Fry the diced salt pork until light brown and crisp and remove pieces from the pan. Make a sauce of the flour, milk and 3 tablespoons of pork drippings. Cook the celery, parsley and onion for a few minutes in the rest of the pork drippings and add to this the bread crumbs and seasonings. Combine all the ingredients and use the hands to mix thoroughly. Lay on a piece of parchment paper on a rack in an open roasting pan. Mold the meat loaf on the paper with the hands. Bake in a moderate over for 1¼ hours. Remove from the paper and chill. Slice very thin and serve with watercress garnish.

½ teaspoon salt
½ cup evaporated milk
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup cold water
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoon grated horseradish
½ cup chopped nut meats

Soak gelatine in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add the salt and sugar and cool slightly. Add the lemon juice, the milk, the mayonnaise, cheese, horse-radish and nut meats. Pour into single or individual molds and chill. Unmold and serve on lettuce with additional mayonnaise.

Crochet This Table Runner For National Honors

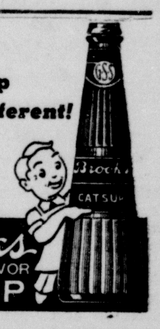

DAINTY table runners will vie with heavily impressive bedspreads for the nation-wide honors of the Third National Crochet Contest this fall. In the 1938 Contest the championship was won with a small filet tablescarf done in medieval design. And here is a pattern measuring 21 x 10 inches, calling for only three or four balls of mercerized crochet cotton, that may well take a prize. For a small summer hall console table it will take a proper place in your home besides. Directions for crocheting it, and details of The National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Bureau, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify runner No. 7118.

HOT SANDWICHES FOR QUICK LUNCH

Here's a quick and easy kind of hot sandwiches which will "hit the spot" after a game of golf or hours at the beach or any other vacation diversion. It is a satisfying lunch or supper dish on any day, says Inez S. Willson, home economist. If your emergency shelf of ready-to-serve foods is as well supplied as it should be, you'll be able to serve this "quick snack" on any occasion.

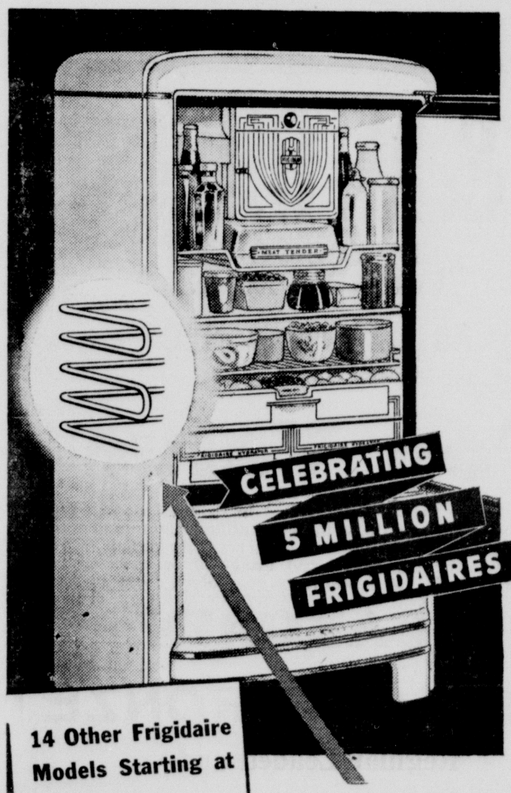

Toasted Sausage Sandwiches:
Ready-to-serve sausages.
6 slices buttered bread
6 slices tomato
6 slices American cheese

Place a slice of tomato on each piece of buttered bread. On top place a thin slice of American cheese. Cover with ready-to-serve sausage slices. Pork sausage links which have been partially cooked may be used instead. Place under broiler or in a hot oven until the sausages are well browned, the cheese melted and the bread toasted.

OPPORTUNITY COLUMN

Dear friends:

It's practically impossible for anybody to do personal canvassing for a buyer, regardless of what you have to sell, unless you can devote your entire time to that purpose.

And anyway, it is so unnecessary to expend time and energy that way when the cost of a few cents for a Want-ad will bring the customers quickly.

Let the Want-ads do your canvassing for you. They are silent workers and never spoil a sale by over-talking.

WANTED BY U. S.

Henson denied helping burn the cash register. "Peck" and "Rip" earlier had parted company with the other pair. The prisoner said he and Barnes had "bummed" from Chicago to Sikeston, and had been around here several days. He said Barnes was wanted by federal officers for allegedly stealing a truckload of army clothes in Illinois and selling them.

The other two negroes, one described as tall and slim and the other as very short, had toured with a medicine show operated by Tom Saylors, who lives east of the Henington body works, officers learned. Lately, the pair had been sleeping in a truck at the Saylors home, but the owner had ordered them to find more permanent lodging.

Officers plan to question Henson about attempted burglaries of two Sikeston homes and the South Side grocery over the week end, and a theft last week at a Morley store. Henson waived preliminary hearing on a charge of burglary and larceny at the North End Grocery, owned by Russell Walker, and was taken to the Benton jail when he could not post $1000 bond.

The Sikeston Better Housing Program, now under way, is bringing capital, labor, and materials together in a practical manner so that the property owner can make needed improvements. Now is the time to do the work.

Mr. and Mrs. John Swinney and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Swinney visited a short while here Sunday afternoon with the men's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edith Swinney, en route to Big Spring near Van Buren, Mo., to spend their vacations.

Oran Quiet

when he arrived in the town. Remarks had been made in Oran that the sheriff's force failed to respond to the first calls for officers.

HOMES ABANDONED

After the fracas Monday night, when negroes in five houses were driven out of the city, the homes stood open and deserted Tuesday. Windows and furniture were smashed. Mattress and feather beds had been slit and their stuffing strewn over the floor. Chickens wandered unattended in pens and some strolled through the houses.

One or two of the houses were reported to be owned by the negroes. Most of the houses were occupied by two families, so an estimated 40 negroes abandoned the dwellings, only negro homes inside the Oran limits. Where the negroes went, no one could say.

The effigy hanging on one porch consisted of an old coat, stuffed trousers and a pair of good leather boots fastened to the trousers. They were placed on the stick framework, and a hat was put on top. The dummy was hanged on the front porch of one negro home.

ST. LOUIS YOUTH NAMED

Officers learned that one of the main white ringleaders in the mob was a St. Louis youth who had been visiting in Oran. This person has left Oran since the Monday night affair. He and several young men of Oran were considered responsible for keeping the conflict alive.

Only rumor can give the reason for the beginning for the clashes. Some persons said it began when a white man or white woman was shoved off a sidewalk downtown by a negro.

NEW MADRID FARM BUREAU PICNIC AUG. 10

New Madrid County Farm Bureau will hold its second annual basket picnic on August 10, as decided by the board at its regular monthly meeting, according to Charley Hawkins, secretary.

No definite arrangements have been completed as yet, but it will probably be held at Bullocks' Grove again on Highway 61 between 62 junction and Marston.

Hawkins stated that although the Farm Bureau is sponsoring the picnic, everyone in the county is cordially invited and urged to attend. It is the desire of the Farm Bureau that Farm and Town families alike come out for a day of recreation, fun and old time get-to-gether with your neighbors, and of course everyone is asked to bring well-filled baskets.

There were some 150 persons who attended last year. All reported a good time and asked that another be held this year.

There was one mistake in the program of athletic and rodeo events at Arizona's all-Indian powwow at Flagstaff. The Indians were allowed to present their rain dance. Result was a downpour which soon made the pow-wow grounds a mire, anent which a stoical redskin tersely commented, "Ugh, rain dance too good."

ODD FELLOWS, CHICKS TO PLAY CARBONDALE

Balloting Begins to Pick Players For Inter-League All-Star Game

Game Between Teams Chosen by Fans Will Be Played August 8

Get ready for the big annual softball poll.

Beginning with this issue of The Standard, ballots will be carried so that Sikeston fans may select their ideal American and National League players and managers for the big inter-league all-star clash August 8.

Those people who heretofore have been content to sit in the stands and whose only authority has been some informal shouting will be the ones to name the players for each position. A manager for each league will be chosen.

Ballots may be turned in at four drug stores, Malone's, Heisserer's, City Drug and Bowman's, or at the soft drink stand at the softball field. Those sent by mail should be addressed to Dr. W. M. Sidwell of the softball committee.

DEADLINE AUGUST 5

The deadline for voting is midnight Saturday, August 5.

The team will be picked in the order of the player's vote popularity, and selections as near as possible will be placed in their customary playing position.

Standings of each league will be published from time to time.

The Nationals are overdue. Last year the American Leaguers won, 8-4, and in 1937 the Americans took it, 15-9.

In the counting last year Jimmy Lam and Ray Bandy tied for the highest vote in the American League, and Allen Swaim led the National. The year before Shorty Crain topped the American and Smokey Sutton the National.

MILLERS WILL PLAY DEMPSTER'S

The preliminary game to the all-star clash will be the outgrowth of a minor feud. The Millers, who have swept all before them in the "ham" league, have remarked from time to time that they could conquer some of the teams in the major leagues, including Dempster's in the list. Dempster's took up the challenge, so for the first time in history of Sikeston softball a team of the organization league will play one of the upper brackets. The outcome of this game, with interest being what it is, may prove a bigger drawing card than the all-star game itself.

To Play Bluff Return Game

Dempster's team, reinforced with several players from other Sikeston softball clubs, will go to Poplar Bluff this Friday night to play a return game with all-stars of that city.

An all-star team here recently defeated Poplar Bluff, 6-4.

Manager Robert Dempster has announced the following lineup for the Bluff game:

Pitcher—Marshall or Law.
Catcher—Sutton.
First base—Clark or Lockhart.
Second base—Lambert or Jones.
Third base—Price Marshall.
Shortstop—Bray.
Center field—Miller.
Right field—Weeks.
Short center—Hale.

TO BLUFF HOSPITAL

Martha Rouch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Rouch of Morehouse, was taken in the Albritton ambulance to the Lucy Lee Hospital at Poplar Bluff Tuesday night for a major operation.

Welch Wins, Kansan Sets Roberts Down

George Bennett of Salt Lake City substituted for Mike Nazerian, detained in police court at Nashville, Tenn., for biting a chunk out of a referee's ear, in the Legion matches Wednesday night, but his opponent, Joe Welch, made George wish Nazerian had come instead. Welch won in two straight.

The Oklahoma bouncer pinned Bennett in 14 minutes after a barrel roll, then came back in four minutes with a head scissors and body slam to conclude the match. Bennett is a wrestler but not the man to tame Welch.

Another substitute, Bill Canny, heavyweight champion of Kansas, fared better. He replaced Buddy Knox, of Carthage, against Rough Red Roberts and won the last two falls.

Canny started out to wrestle according to the regulations, but Roberts, one of the leading roughers in the circuit, cured the Kansas of abiding by the rules. Canny gave up in the first round, but in the second he was canny enough to pin Roberts in two minutes, despite the rough-housing of the Arkansan. In the third Canny won in 14 minutes with monkey flips.

Mike Meroney said earlier Wednesday that Nazerian would be here provided he could post bond for nibbling on the referee's ear at Nashville.

Mrs. Leatherbury Dies in St. Louis

Funeral services were held Thursday morning at St. Rose's Church in St. Louis for Mrs. Elizabeth Leatherbury who died Tuesday. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, Robert Leatherbury, sons, Gilbert and Robert, and one daughter, Mrs. Grace Hunter.

Mrs. Leatherbury resided with Mrs. Hunter in Sikeston for two years and is well known here.

ISCO Hands Hiway First Defeat, 11-3

An epoch-making event took place Tuesday night at the softball diamond.

Highway got beat.

That's news. Furthermore, it was the first time in his mound history that Jimmy Law was driven from the box.

The power behind this assault was none other that the Shoe Factory. After his team was thoroughly subdued the night before in a one-hit game, Manager Froggy Vinson promised vindication against the Highway. He delivered. It was 11-3.

While the Shoe Makers were rapping the ball for 12 solid hits, the Highway juggled and muffed the ball for nine errors. The Road Makers landed seven safeties off Bennett.

For three innings its was a game as close as a sausage skin. Each team scored three runs in the first. The next two frames saw only one hit apiece and no runs. It was the fourth that set the Shoe Factory rambling. On two hits, four errors and a walk, the team in green collected five runs. Two more hits in the fifth, and two more errors, added two more. Another run came in the sixth.

Highway meanwhile managed a hit in the fifth and two in the sixth, but advanced men only to second base.

After allowing 10 hits, Law retired in favor of Ray Marsh. Sam Vinson of the ISCO hit three singles and a double in four tries. Altogether, 21 Shoe Factory men got on base. For the two state patrolmen on the Highway team it was a race riot Monday evening and a base riot Tuesday evening.

For the record books, the loss was the first for the Highway aggregation in city play since August 16, 1938, when they fell before the Flower Basket, 3-2. Counting the city series last year, which they took in a clean sweep, Highway men had won 11 straight games until Tuesday night. The team lost three games last season and only one the season before.

No. 2 shows a tee with a magnetized horseshoe attachment, which permits the tee's recovery by means of iron clubs.

Truckers Toss In Sponge in Third Inning

After Company K had wore down the bases for 24 runs in three innings, the scoreless Truckers decided tomorrow was another day and the game was called by agreement Tuesday night.

In those three innings, Guardsmen drove the ball almost everywhere for 16 hits. Some of the Soldiers spent a good part of their time running around bases. For instance, Price Marshall socked a homerun and a double in the same inning, the first, and smashed two hits in the third inning, a record of four in four in only two innings.

Company K picked up 11 runs on seven hits the first frame, dropped down to three scores on three hits the second but came back for 10 more runs on six safeties the third.

Potashnick gained one hit off Johnny Marshall, a single by Matthews in the first. Ten errors by the team did a lot in allowing the big Guard score.

Grocers Miss ISCO Shutout By Home Run

Only one hit—a home run—was issued Billy Simmons as his North End Grocery team set back the Shoe Factory Monday evening, 3-1.

The Grocers used five hits and four errors in their part of the batting, while only two Shoe Factory men got to third base and two to second.

North End had already laid aside three runs when the home run came. In the first Nelson walked and counted when another play went for an error. Two hits in the second failed to avail the Grocers, but in the third Nelson opened with a double, Lee hit into an error and Simmons doubled, scoring the first two.

Sam Vinson knocked the terrific four-base wallop that deprived Simmons of a no-hit shutout, making it in the fourth.

In the third an error and two walks loaded the bases for ISCO, but two timely strike-outs stopped this threat. Simmons fanned eight and walked six.

Y Goes Into Second Place, Beating Lodge

Jack's Y uncorked an eight-run surge in the last two innings, breaking a 3-3 tie that stuck until the sixth, and displaced the Odd Fellows for second place in the National League Monday night, 11-3.

Until the rally, the teams after every inning stood on even terms. Hill doubled and counted on a passed ball for the Y in the second, and Cox singled, traveled to third on Foster's two-bagger, and likewise scored on a passed ball, tying the score in the same frame.

In the fourth Hill walked and converted on Watson's double. Watson came in on James' two-sacker. Ragains singled for the Lodge in the same inning, and two errors brought him around. Dick Swaim, who had gained first on one of the errors, came home on Chaney's swat for two bases.

In the sixth the Y got into its victory stride. Hill singled and again scored on a passed ball. Kindred walked, and Watson's single added the second run of the inning. The final drive, in the seventh, added six runs. In this session, Dickerson, Kindred and Watson smacked doubles, and Mow and Manager Lancaster singles.

The Y made 12 hits off Mize, and Buck Carter allowed five.

CHOOSING THE NEW CAMERA

For sharp pictures of fast-moving vacation-time games, you'll need a camera with high shutter speeds. A fast lens is helpful, too, when light conditions are adverse.

ABOUT this time of year—and especially with vacations in the offing—many of us feel the need of a finer camera, with greater picture-taking ability.

A fine camera is about as easy to operate as any other, once you are familiar with it. But there is a difference in usefulness between the finer camera and the inexpensive model. Under adverse conditions, especially on dull days or with moving subjects, the inexpensive camera is handicapped. It may fail to get the very picture you want most. But under the same conditions, the fine camera performs capably—insuring good pictures within much wider limits.

In choosing your finer camera, consider these points carefully, so that you can select a model which exactly fits your picture-taking needs:

If you want to be able to take pictures outdoors under all daylight conditions, bright or dull, early morning or late afternoon, choose a camera with a fast lens—an f.6.3, f.4.5 or faster. For night snapshots by ordinary electric light, without "flood" lamps, get a camera with f.2 lens. If "flood" lamps are used, a slower lens will do.

If you want to take pictures of moving subjects—or those likely to move—choose a camera which has a precision shutter with high speeds. A shutter speed of 1/400 or 1/500 second is needed for sports and fast action shots; 1/200 for moderate action; and 1/100 for snaps of slow action or subjects such as babies or pets which may move suddenly and unexpectedly.

Some camera shutters now have built-in self-timer devices, which enable you to appear in pictures taken by yourself. Naturally, the self-timer is an advantage in a vacation or family camera.

Now for picture size. If you expect to have your pictures finished as contact prints for album use, don't choose a camera that takes too small a picture. If, however, you plan to make enlargements, it's safe to pick a camera in the "miniature" group. And, if you want to take full-color transparency pictures, for large-size projection on a home screen, a miniature camera is just what you need.

It's wise to obtain your finer camera well in advance of your vacation, and practice using it. Since these fine cameras are precision instruments, see that yours receives proper care. If treated well, such a camera will give long and meritorious service—service that far outweighs its cost. Just ask the camera hobbyist who owns one!

'MIRACLE IF EUROPE GETS BY THIS SUMMER WITHOUT WAR'

New York, July 17.—Joseph E. Davies, arriving today for a vacation from his post as Ambassador to Belgium, said he would back President Roosevelt by "foot, horse and dragoon" if he ran for a third term.

"The stronger you make that, the better," said Davies, but he added: "I don't think the President wants to run. If he became a candidate, it would be by being compelled to."

Asked about the possibility of war in Europe, the Ambassador said:

"I believe a preponderant majority feel if they get by this summer, it will be a miracle. The people are resigned and fatalistic, tragically so."

Washington Comment

The word "Washington", which holds its accustomed place at the head of the column, is something of misnomer this week, since the copy is being prepared in Van couver, British Columbia, a young city, as cities go, having been on the map but fifty-four years. During that time, it has assembled a population of three hundred and twenty five thousand, yet it remains a city of contrasts. One can get a moderately priced room in a ten million dollar hotel. In the foreground, from the tourist's window, can be seen the changing traffic signals that bespeak the bustle of a busy and up to date metropolis. A little more remote, but clearly visible, are the log booms, saw mills and sawdust burners of the still-continuing lumber days. Behind all, rise the eternal mountains, still crested with a portion of the winter's snow, and accessible in most instances only afoot, or by pack animal and trail. Moving in the shadow of these heights is a water-carried commerce that streams away to every port of the seven seas.

There is talk here of the "depression", the ingenuity of the tax collector is in evidence, and upon the whole, the dividing line between Canada and the United States does not seem to run between national troubles and problems that are essentially different. To those accustomed to the Washington vehicular snarl, in which fender contends with fender and bumper smites bumper, British Columbian traffic seems mild, and driving circumspect and considerate; yet the conservative Canadian brethren are not satisfied and are in the midst of a safety-first campaign to better conditions that on our side of the boundary would be regarded as a close approach to the ideal. Vancouver is heated up over the invasion of the salmon grounds by the Japanese, a matter that has given the United States some concern, especially as to Alaskan waters, but on the whole, the American salmon trouble does not go much deeper than trying to find the can opener.

The course that Administration plans have to travel, like the course of true love, seldom runs absolutely smoth, as Presidents Republican and Democratic can testify. Mr. Roosevelt, therefore, did not find himself in an unknown predicament when the Senate foreign relations committee voted to put aside until the next session, consideration of the neutrality bill: yet it was a setback for the White House nevertheless. Congress sometimes has raised its foot with good grace, after having set it firmly down. Again, the foot has remained where it was planted in the first place, a good example of abiding by an original planting being the payment of the veterans' bonus. The President is represented as intending to go right ahead with the neutrality fight. Some of his generals would discharge the committee and battle out the issue on the open floor. With an adjournment-minded Congress on the one hand, and an Administration eagerly pressing for action and not particularly concerned about adjournment, on the other, there are side issues which, of themselves, and independent of the merits, are sufficient to give pep, to say nothing of downright bitterness, to the doings of concluding portion of the session. According to common report, Congress has earmarked enough labor of the "must" variety to satisfy even those who think that the body on Capitol Hill draws its pay and gives little in return. Among the measures scheduled for consideration before closing time are extension of the powers of the Tennessee Valley Authority, limiting political activities on the part of federal employes, the lending bill and amendments to the social security act.

The Work Projects Administration is an organization which, upon the whole, has been looked upon with wide favor. If a man wants work, perhaps it is up to the government to supply it. Upon the other hand, a job, under existing conditions, is a gift horse that should not be looked too critically in the mouth. There is general disapproval of strikes on public work projects. Still stronger is the condemnation of the killing of a Minneapolis policeman during a violent demonstration against the WPA. Both Congress and the Administration are to be commended for lack of interest in fomented disorders based upon the theory that the federal government is a slave driver and a penny pinching boss.

HEAVY RAIN RUINS ANNUAL GOLF TOURNEY

Charleston, Mo., July 20.—A combination of rain, wind and an electrical display caused postponement of the second annual golf tournament and barbecue scheduled for last Sunday. The new play date was moved up one week, to Sunday, July 23.

Thirty out-of-town players appeared here in spite of bad weather. One of the first automobile loads carried a player from Lexington, Ky., and three from Paducah. Five men from the Cape Girardeau club were here by 8:15 o'clock, ate breakfast, and later returned home when the tournament was definitely postponed. Other players came from Poplar Bluff, Dexter, and several clubs in the "Boot Heel" section of Missouri.

"We regret the inconvenience caused by this postponement," announced Ernest Moxley, president of the Charleston Club, "but in view of the circumstances that was all we could do."

Robt. Leslie of Fredericktown was the guest of his brother, Leroy Leslie, Saturday night.

Why be a Ham in Carving One? Expert Shows Easy, Modern Way

If they snicker when you start to carve, you'll be comforted by these kind words from Max O. Cullen, carving authority. "It's easy to learn the right way, and the right way is the easy way," says Cullen, who is shown at the right explaining to Pete Smith, producer of motion picture shorts bearing his name, and Ann Morriss, M-G-M player, the fundamentals of carving a ham, during the recent filming of "Culinary Carving," an educational short in which Cullen was featured.

Proper tools and a sharp knife are of first importance, says the expert. Then you can proceed with confidence, if you will follow his simple directions as shown by the diagrams and instructions below.

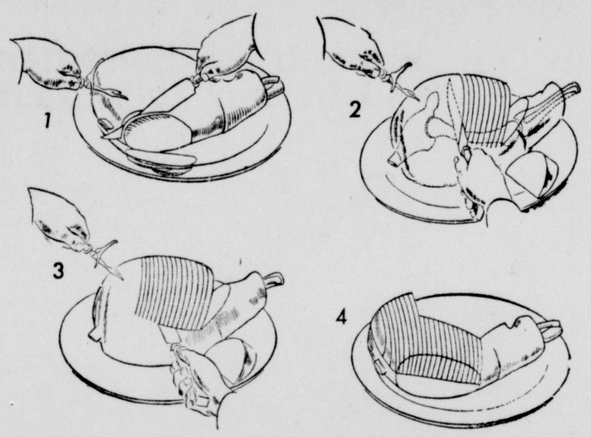

1. Place ham with fat side up, shank end to carver's right. Cut two or three slices parallel to the length of the ham from the smaller meaty section.

2. Turn the ham so that it rests on the cut surface. Holding firmly with the fork, cut a small wedge shaped piece from the shank end. Then proceed to cut thin slices down to the leg bone until the aitch bone is reached.

3. With the fork still in place, release the slices by running the knife along the bone and at right angles to the slices. For additional servings, turn and carve other side of ham.

4. If more servings are required, the ham is turned back in its original position on the platter with the fat side up and the slices are carved at right angles to the bone. These slices are not so large as those from the cushion section, but they make attractive servings for second helpings.

MILK CASH INCOME

Three-fourths of the farms of America contribute to the annual production of the nation's milk supply, and according to government figures, the cash farm income which they shared for 1938 was $1,430,000,000. By this figure milk made the best record of the year as a producer of farm cash income.

Compared with the year before, most of the crop totals of 1938 fell off. Estimated receipts were $3,160,000,000, which is only 82 per cent of the $3,846,000,000 realized in 1937. Milk, however, came up to 93.5 per cent of the 1937 figure.

THE CARE AND EATING OF CARROTS

The carrot is a stringy, off-color, flavorless vegetable, much favored as a diet by rabbits, burros, goats and such undiscriminating animals. Latterly someone has made the great discovery that somewhere in the innards of the carrot is something called a vitamin which is not seen, smelled, tasted, or felt, but must be accepted on faith as being there.

As a result the carrot has definitely gone high society on the menu. This is somewhat unfortunate, because the carrot does not lend itself gracefully to human consumption. Even the dietary experts, who write the menus on the woman's page, recognize this.

The result is a sustained effort, praiseworthy for its determination and endurance, but thus far, to us at least, lacking in tangible achievements, to devise some way to serve the carrot so that it is fit to eat. Douse carrots in butter and brown sugar and cover them with chopped peanuts; run carrots through a food chopper and dilute them with real food like grated cheese and buttered bread crumbs; cook carrots in salt water, butter them and embalm them in vinegar—these are a few of the recipes suggested. And when all that is done the carrot still remains—well, a carrot.

What we really deplore is the woeful waste of ingenuity, imagination and industry in a hopeless struggle. No matter how disguised it is with unguents and condiments, no expert is required to detect a carrot—the natural food of the rabbit, the goat, or the burro but not of man.

Wherefore we offer our own carrot menu: Fry a couple of tender spring chickens, provide a heap of mashed potatoes and a big bowl of chicken gravy, some watermelon, corn bread and butter. Then take your carrot. Throw it as far into the back yard as you can heave it and sit down and enjoy your meal.—Kansas City Star.

Moths Don't Take A Vacation!

Says Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

Remember this when you close your house to take your vacation. It may be the signal for the busy season of the moths in your household. They get in their best—or worst—work when undisturbed in a quiet, dark place. So before starting on your holidays, go around the house and check up very carefully to be sure that your possessions are well protected against these destructive little pests.

You have the choice of a number of different methods which are effective for defeating the moth. But none of these will do a good job unless it is effectively used. Few people seem to know what these effective methods are. Some manufacturers and sellers are pretty casual, too, in the way they try to tell you. I am dismayed by department store advertisements which say: "Just hang this in your closet. It will release a vapor fatal to moths."

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

If properly used, this vapor is fatal to moths, their eggs and the larvae. But used in this casual way, the only good it can do is give you a false sense of security. To be fatal to moths, the vapor must be present in a strongly concentrated form. This becomes possible only when you use a sufficiently large quantity of the vapor-producing material. Then, to keep the vapor from escaping and weakening, and moths from entering, the closet must be kept as airtight as it is possible to make it.

This is easily done by covering the cracks around the closet door, including the one along the floor, and even the keyhole, with gummed paper or the sealing tape used by fumigators, and sold in drug and department stores. Hang in one closet all the woolen clothes you wish to store, seal it, and keep it sealed until the things stored in it are needed.

The larger the closet, the greater the quantity of vapor-producing material or fumigant will be needed to get the desired strength of fumes. A pound of fumigant for a very small closet measuring 2' x 2' x 7', or 28 cubic feet, gives good protection. A closet 3' x 3' x 7', or 63 cubic feet, will need 2¼ pounds, and so on.

These fumigants or vapor-producing materials are made of paradichlorobenzene or naphthalene and are usually sold under brand names. They come in cake form and in loose crystals or flakes. The latter are sprinkled evenly on the top shelf and floor of the closet. Because of the smaller surface exposed, those in cake form give off their fumes more slowly. Therefore they may not be quickly effective, and a greater amount may be needed to give prompt protection. Weigh these cakes before using them and compute the amount you need, according to the size of your closet. It takes three or four days to fumigate a closet after it is sealed.

Woolens, such as your blankets and rugs, may also be fumigated by sprinkling them generously with one of these fumigants and then wrapping them very closely in heavy paper. Don't think that your woolens are safe if you put them in dresser drawers and sprinkle in some moth bails or other fumigants. So much of the fumes will escape through the cracks around the drawers that there seldom remains sufficient strength to give complete protection.

They laughed when he sat down at the piano—. But that's another story. In this one Mayor Bardwell of Burns, Ore., did not sit down at a piano. Instead, while viewing a WPA project he stooped over and picked up a weather-worn wallet. A group of near-by WPA workers leaned on their shovels and guffawed merrily, scoffed: "Throw it away; it's been looked over at least 15 times." Red-faced, but stubborn, Bardwell pulled the dusty zipper. Their laughter froze when, wide-eyed, the Mayor extracted $110 in currency.

Right, both these husbands were wrong. In a Chicago courtroom last week appeared two wives. One, Mrs. Margaret Taylor, complained that she couldn't keep her husband home at night. The other, Mrs. Eva M. Barletta, grumbled that she couldn't get her husband to go out at night. Both were granted a divorce.

The State Board of Health, through the Food and Drug Division has just opened a drive for a more thorough compliance with the laws regulating hotels and rooming houses. All inspectors were called in and instructed to see that proprietors and owners of hotels and rooming houses were necessary information about requirements and what constitutes reasonable time to meet these requirements.

"I am going to see that every hotel and rooming house in the State is inspected for infractions of the law in regard to the comfort and safety of its guests," said Dr. Harry F. Parker, Commissioner. The inkeeper has an obligation to the travelling public and if he is to continue in business he must live up to that obligation."

"Safety regulations as set out in the law in regard to fire equipment must be met. These regulations are not unreasonable or expensive in most cases. Some buildings not suited for occupancy as hotels must be reconditioned or closed. I am not going to have lives endangered in them. The State has its obligations to the public as well as the proprietor in watching after the traveling public."

"I have also given instructions for thorough inspection of all sanitary conditions in the hotels especially as to the kitchens and as to those who prepare the food. Contaminated food and dishes can cause much illness, especially during the summer months when foods spoil so easily."

"I do not intend to relicense hotels and rooming houses that do not meet the requirements after they have been given a reasonable time in which to comply," said the Commissioner.

Do Not Take Chances

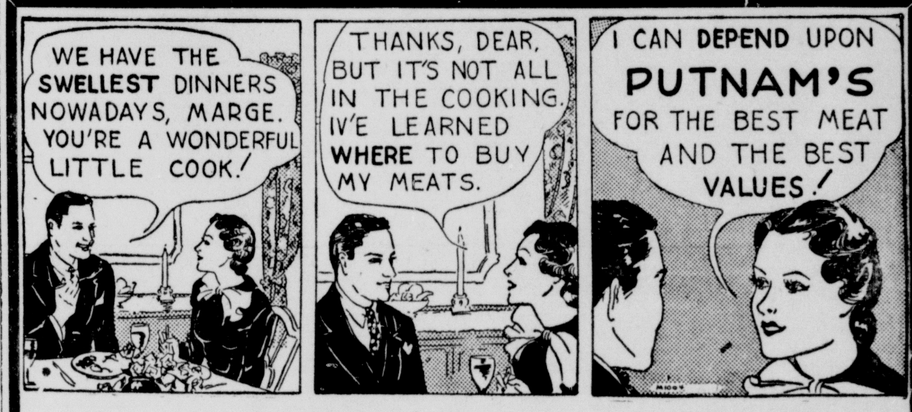

At this time of the year especially, it is imperative that you be careful in the selection of the Dairy Products you use . . . milk, cream, butter and the other dairy products. Now milk is not the only carrier of epidemics and communicable diseases, but it is one of the first suspects when an epidemic breaks out. Typhoid, diphtheria, colitis, and Malta fever are a few of the more common ones.

The City Health Inspector of a neighboring city in Missouri was in our office last week inquiring where a certain milk producer or dairyman lived. The inspector said three cases of typhoid had been traced to this dairyman, and he wanted to inspect his farm. The dairyman had been "bootlegging" a little milk into the town at cut-rate prices. Pity the poor children who are suffering now because the mother wanted to save two cents on the gallon of milk over the prevailing price of milk in that town. And the milk in that particular town is pasteurized.

We have made a lot of improvements in the Dairy Plant we have here in Sikeston. Yes we have improved the appearance, but the underlying motive for the remodeling was to make our milk cleaner, safer and more wholesome. Pasteurization will make milk safe, but we must also have CLEAN milk.

July and August, especially, are months in which you must be careful about the Dairy Products you use.

FOUR-POINT BUCK KILLED NEAR POPLAR BLUFF

Sherman Carter of Chicago, Ill., son of Mrs. Lilly Carter of this city this morning killed a deer—but not intentionally.

Carter with his wife, Pauline Credit and Pete Price were driving along the Farm to Market road that leads from Highway No. 67, near Greenville to Williamsville about 1:30. At what is known to Wayne county residents as the "old deer crossing" a four point buck and a doe leaped in front of the car. The buck hung one of his rear legs in the front bumper and was killed.

One headlight on the car was smashed and a fender was bent. Carter brought the deer to Poplar Bluff and called Conservation Commission agent Loren Lewis at Dexter. Lewis was scheduled to arrive here this morning to take charge of it.

The buck weighed about 175 pounds and its horns were in the velvet. The meat will probably be turned over to hospitals.

Carter has been visiting his mother here.—Poplar Bluff American.

WEDDING PARTY 'FUN' DOESN'T AMUSE LAW

Philadelphia, July 16.—Five gay young blades of the upper social bracket were arrested today—accused of pelting limousines and the law with stones.

To pep up a fete for some newlyweds, the socialities started winging stones at passing cars.

When law officers hove into sight they, too, were showered. The officers collared the miscreants and carted them—top hats, white ties, tails and all—off to headquarters.

In their wake came a bevy of excited young postdebs in evening gowns.

Justice of the Peace Ernest Dupille held each prisoner in $30 bail, with the comment: "I'm going to fine them good and plenty. They ought to be ashamed of themselves."

Arrest and conviction of Glen Lineberry, operating under the name of the Brookfield Food Storage Company, at Brookfield, on charges of storing game in a commercial establishment was announced this week. A fine of $50 and costs of $13.25 were assessed against Lineberry for the 5 ducks and 17 quail held illegally.

THE STANDARD- ONLY Streamlined Newspaper IN SIKESTON DISTRICT

The P. C. Editor Says:

Postal inspectors are checking on country newspapers in this territory to find out how many, if any, are complying with orders to not use the mails to send out papers to subscribers who are one year or more in arrears. In complying with this order The Standard can make affidavit that out of more than 2,000 subscribers now receiving the paper not a single one is as much as one year in arrears and but 136 are more than six months in arrears. Can any other Southeast Missouri's newspaper, or paper, show to the inspector a cleaner list?

The Legion Park is under the supervision of the Sikeston Legion and was placed in their care by the Missouri Pacific Railway Co. to be used for park purposes and to be kept in a clean and orderly manner. The supervision of the care of this park was placed in charge of a committee who sees that the flower beds are taken care of and the grass cut regularly. This park was not supposed to be used for traveling fakers, itinerant preachers, band concerts, etc. It has come to our attention that a recent protest was made against one of these committeemen for asking the Swift Cowboys to move from the park as several hundred people were trespassing against the rules of the care of the park. This is printed in order to set right those who complained of the man who was doing his duty.

The flare-up at Oran was a deplorable affair that has caused much comment. Some said a few young negrces around that community were more or less impudent and needed taking down a few notches. Then in the same community are a few young white men who were willing to perform that act. However, several negroes were placed in jail at Benton and none of the white men have been arrested. It might have been that the negroes were placed in a jail to protect them from harm at the hands of the unruly whites, and they are to be released as the storm has about blown over, who is to pay for the damage done to the property of the innocent and respectable negroes is the question.

Wednesday evening of this week Sikeston Lions, and invited guests of which The Standard editor was of the number, held their regular weekly meeting at the Jackson-Vaughn Cafe at Reel Foot Lake, Tenn., and enjoyed a fish and fried chicken dinner. Forty-one good fellows sat down at the long table and the way fish and chicken disappeared was a caution. Eight cars filled with passengers loaded on board of the barge and towed across the river and were met by Lion Dushane of Tiptonville who is the owner of the ferry and escorted to the Cafe where the banquet was soon spread and the fish and chicken fast disappeared. It was decided the next meeting would be ladies night and held at New Madrid next Wednesday evening with the Catholic ladies at which it is hoped a large turnout will attend. The Reel Foot Lake affair was pronounced the outstanding event of the many given by the Lions and they hope in the future to again visit Reel Foot and have their wives and sweethearts with them.

While we would like to be considered a good citizen and a law abiding citizen, we, at times, don't measure up to either. While old in years we get het up over things that should not concern us and wish we could turn the Hands of Time back in order that we could get into some of the fights that young fellows get into, but it's no use, for the Sands of Time are running low.

Four Thieves Raid North End Grocery

Captured Negro Tells of Theft; Expensive Cash Register Ruined by Fire

Four negro burglars who broke into the North End Grocery & Market, on Hunter, stole about $40 in merchandise and ruined a $225 cash register by fire in an attempt to open it early Tuesday.

Clyde Henson, 19 years old, of Chicago, Ill., was caught a few hours after the crime by City Officer Claude McManus and confessed, naming three accomplices.

A State aPtrol radio broadcast was sent out for Lonzo Barnes, 20-year-old light-skinned Chicago negro who parted company with Henson a few minutes before the latter was captured. Barnes, and two negroes known to Henson only as "Peck" and "Rip", helped in the burglary, the captive said. They also escaped.

SOME LOOT RECOVERED

A large part of the merchandise loot was recovered by Officer McManus on the Frisco right-of-way south of the depot, but Barnes is believed to be carrying several cartons of cigarets and a number of candy bars.

Henson told officers the burglary took place at 2 a. m. Entrance was gained by removing a screen on the east side and smashing a window pane. The thieves took 19 cartons of cigarets, half a boiled ham, three cans of pork and beans, a box of Hersheys, 5-pound loaf of cheese, half a box of cigars and some miscellaneous candy bars.

The cash register, which was empty, was carried a half block down the alley from the store, and a fire kindled beneath it. The burglars failed to open it, but it was damaged beyond repair.

TALKS TO BURGLAR

Shortly after Officer McManus came on duty at 6 a. m. he spied Barnes sitting in a boxcar near the Frisco depot. The policeman was unaware of the burglary, but recalled that a week before Barnes had been ordered in police court to leave town. Officer McManus asked Barnes why he had not left. Barnes appeared nervous, but promised to depart immediately.

Going back to police headquarters, the officer learned of the theft. Immediatey, he drove back to the railroad, did not find Barnes but saw Henson walking up the tracks. Searching Henson, he found several packages of cigarets. Henson admitted his part in the burglary and said Barnes had

Man Accused of Posing Here as Agent to Obtain Miss Lula Sparks' $120

Deliberating six hours Tuesday and Wednesday, a Circuit Court jury at Benton convicted Fred E. Holland, Farmington, of swindling Miss Lula Sparks of Sikeston but failed to set the punishment.

Judge Kelley indicated he would fix the penalty himself Friday.

Holland was charged with representing himself as an agent of the Federal Housing Administration, procuring $120 from Miss Sparks on pretext of obtaining an FHA loan for her. The plaintiff testified Holland had promised he could get the loan for her. Later he came to her, she told the Court, and said the government loan was ready provided she paid him $120. She did not get the loan.

Prosecutor Blanton said there was evidence Holland had misrepresented himself in other cases.

Holland denied he had claimed to be connected with the FHA. He testified he merely acted as a contact man between banks and his clients, aiding the latter to secure loans.

The case began at 3 p. m. Tuesday and went to the jury at 7:10. Out until 9:30 p. m., the jury retired and took up deliberation again Wednesday morning at 9:30. At 11:45 the body reached a verdict.

MURDER SCENE AND VICTIM IN WISCONSIN

Lonely cabin in northern Wisconsin woods, near Grandon, where a hermit was clubbed to death, a Sikeston farm youth confessing he aided a Crandon farmer in the crime. They failed to find a hoard of money believed in the cabin. In front of the cabin beneath the blankets, is the body of the slain man, William Worniak. His body was badly decomposed when found three weeks after the murder, lying as indicated in the picture, before the open cabin door. Shriff Elmer H. Frey of Antigo, Wis., brought the picture here Monday.

FARM YOUTH TAKEN TO WISCONSIN

Sheriff Elmer H. Frey and District Attorney Thomas McDougal left Monday afternoon for Antigo, Wis., with William Bernell Wilkerson, 18, Sikeston farm boy, who confessed to complicity in the robbery-slaying of an aged Wisconsin recluse near Crandon. The sheriff said the youth is charged with first degree murder.

Wilkerson confessed here Saturday he was with Willie Cook, 31, farmer near Crandon, when Cook hit William Worniak a fatal blow with a baseball bat one night last May at the hermit's lonely north woods cabin. Worniak was known to natives as "Beggar" John Smith and was believed to have hoarded a large sum of money. Wilkerson said he and Cook found only a watch when they searched the cabin.

The sheriff said here Monday that after the body of Worniak, dead for three weeks at the isolated shack, was discovered, a youth named Robinson came to him and revealed Cook had asked him to help rob Worniak. Investigating, the sheriff learned Cook and Wilkerson, who was visiting an aunt in Wisconsin, had left there for Sikeston shortly after the murder was discovered. The murder warrant was then issued for Wilkerson and Cook.

Cook remained at the farm of Wilkerson's parents south of the city for three days and then left, nearly four weeks ago, apparently to work in Western wheat fields. Wilkerson was arrested by local officers Saturday.

The youth's father, Jewel Wilkerson, accompanied his son in the sheriff's car to Antigo, seat of the county where the crime was committed.

Canalou Man Has Strange Paralysis

A strange paralysis that is creeping over his entire body has beset Otto Gipson of Canalou.

For two years the disease has been slowly attacking the farmer's arms and legs, and two weeks ago he lost the use of his legs. Taken Tuesday in the Albritton ambulance to the Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, Mr. Gipson was told by attendants that nothing could be done about his condition and he was brought home. His condition was termed similar to that of Lou Gehrig, the baseball player who was forced to quit the game because of a spinal disease. The farmer's condition, however, is more aggrevated that Gehrig's.

About two years ago, during his work, Mr. Gipson suddenly found he could no longer hold tools. Now he is paralyzed from the hips down and has very little use of his hands and arms.

Jury, Suspect and Wife Disagree Over Slaying

A coroner's jury, an accused negro and his wife all disagreed Monday evening as to who killed George Hoskins, 20-year-old negro, in a Scott County murder seven miles northwest of Charleston.

Despite the fact that W. T. Taylor denies the shooting that occurred Saturday night at Hoskins' farm tenant house, while his wife claims to be the actual murderer, the coroner's jury after an inquest Monday afternoon decided Taylor shot and killed Hoskins.

Coroner John F. Nunnelee, Jr., and Prosecutor David Blanton conducted the inquest at the Rowe Bonnifield farm, where the slaying took place.

Taylor, who disappeared after the shooting, was arrested with his wife at his parents' home near the levee north of Charleston by Mississippi County Deputy Fletcher Reichart Monday afternoon.

Testimony at the inquiry brought out that Hoskins had quarreled with his wife and slapped her Saturday night at Charleston. They came home, and Taylor, brother of Hoskins' wife, followed them.

Hoskins mother said Taylor came into the house and called to Hoskins, who was upstairs. When Hoskins came down, she said, Taylor shot him three times with a pistol, two bullets passing through his chest and one through his arm. The victim bled to death internally almost instantly.

Taylor's wife, however, told officers she was downstairs when Hoskins appeared and that she shot him. Taylor denied that he did the killing, but did not say his wife was guilty. Taylor and his wife were apprehended after the inquest. They were taken to the Benton jail to await a hearing. Despite the wife's story, Taylor was charged with murder in a warrent.

Willie Currie, negro who drove Taylor to the Hoskins home, was arrested and later released.

Mr. Bonnifield termed Hoskins "a good negro."

'Rock Wool' Blown From Walk to Attic

A machine that blows insulation against a wall, making it stick, was being operated Wednesday afternoon at the Franklin Moore residence, 517 Park, by the Reid Roofing & Siding Co.

The only machine of its kind in the city, it stood on the sidewalk in front of the home. Workmen fed "rock wool" into a hopper. The wool was pulverized and blown through a large tube leading through an upstairs window into the attic. The wool sticks to the wall as it strikes, and it is further made fast with strips of paper.

Against the wall, a 4-inch thickness provides an ideal insulation against hot and cold weather.

Jim Petty Serves Notice on Some Rash Burglars

The burglar who has visited Jim Petty's house in Sunset Addition twice since Sunday is invited by the colored man to return again.

Jim himself will form the reception committee.

Jim works at the McKnight-Keaton Wholesale Grocery Co. and his wife is employed, so the couple is fairly well-fixed for residents of Sunset Addition, owning an electric refrigerator and so fourth.

Last Sunday night, while Jim and his wife were attending church like respectable folk, someone cut a screen at his house, ransacked the interior and disconnected the refrigerator. Tuesday night neighbors heard burglars at the rear of the house. They warned Mrs. Petty, who frightened the prowlers away.

Jim has taken down his Winchester rifle and oiled it. He says he's going to be waiting for the next burglar.

WPA Has New Release Rule

Certified Workers for 18 Months to Go Off Rolls for 30 Days

Leon Groves of Sikeston, WPA supervisor of three counties, said Wednesday certified WPA workers employed for 18 months would be released in his area for a period of 30 days under the new regulations.

He has not received any instructions as to the quota to be kept at work, but he expects it to be released from Jefferson City between now and the middle of August. The ruling is a national law designed to curb WPA expenditures. Those coming under the release requirements may be replaced on the rolls after 30 days, so that a revolving system of hiring and discharging will be in effect.

All certified employes who have been on WPA projects continuously for 18 months will be released as soon as possible under a new law governing workers, according to word here from George B. Snider, district director at Farmington.

A certified worker is one who has been declared in need of relief and therefore eligible for the WPA.

A section of the law states:

"There shall be removed from employment on WPA projects all WPA certified workers who have been continuously employed on such projects 18 months."

All whose continuous employment ends in August or earlier will be released during July or August and those whose service ends in subsequent months will be released when their 18 months employment has expired. The period of separation of such workers from the projects has not been determined except that they shall remain off the job at least 30 days and until their relief status has been fully investigated and they are again certified.

This reduction as stated above is required by law and the state and district offices have no choice about it. In many cases whole projects will be closed for it is expected that WPA employment for the next few months at least will be lower than it has been for several years. Since the quota of workers for September will be considerably lower than it is now, no authority to assign workers now on the waiting list has been authorized nor is it expected soon.

Waterloo Padlock Hearing Monday

A hearing will be conducted Monday morning at Benton in the Circuit Court before Judge Kelly to determine if the Waterloo Tavern at Pop City should be padlocked under a temporary injunction. They received a fine and suspended jail sentence. Persons favoring or opposed to the padlocking will be heard Monday.

Oran Quiet After 3-Day Race Riot

Saturday Night Slashing Prompts Mob to Drive All Negroes From Town

Oran simmered into peacefulness Tuesday after three days of white-negro clashes—with negroes mainly on the receiving end—that concluded with a white youth nursing knife wounds, negro houses damaged and abandoned and six negroes in jail over the slashing.

Eight peace officers were called to the town Monday evening after a mob had nearly demolished a negro house there and hanged a dummy negro. The officers were State Trooper Melvin Dace, John Tandy and Constable Walter Ancell, of Sikeston; Troopers Percy Little and H. F. Wickham of Jackson, and Sheriff John Hobbs and two deputies.

Furniture in the house was broken and the structure itself damaged, officers said.

Since Saturday night a negro was not seen in Oran. Four families live within the town limits, near the edge. They departed hurriedly after the initial free-for-all Saturday night.

THREATENING NOTE

A merchant was reported to have received a threatening note because he refused to deliver several negro customers to a crowd of whites Saturday evening. The whites said they wanted to run all negroes out of town. Some of the colored customers were women with babies. They departed through another exit after the front door was bolted.

The feeling between the whites and negroes is reported to have started Saturday evening when a colored youth allegedly shoved a white boy off a downtown sidewalk. After a street quarrel, and argument between a white and colored faction was carried into an alley. The entire crowd was engaged in a free-for-all fight. Albert Heisserer, farm youth, was slashed three times, across the chest, hip and arm. He is expected to recover. The negroes fled from the town, and the negro families followed shortly afterward as an oraganized band of whites began a search to run all negroes out of the city.

MORE NEGROES ARRESTED

Sheriff Hobbs said Wednesday he had arrested another negro man and a negro woman for questioning in the slashing of Albert Heisserer. This makes a total of six negroes in the Benton jail. He expected to make other arrests of negroes.

The sheriff said Heisserer was slashed by two negroes. One wielded a knife that was left sticking in his hip. A razor or sharper knife was used to cut him across the chest and arm.

The sheriff wanted it known that he called for state troopers from Sikeston and Cape Girardeau during the Oran melee Monday night. He explained he wanted a large enough force to handle any crowd.

SOUND BUSINESS PAYS GOOD DIVIDENDS

A judge in a bankruptcy court says that incompetence is the chief cause of failure in business. Then he proceeds to enlarge on this statement by saying that many people have no right to be in business for themselves because they are ignorant of the basic principles of business procedure.

Thousands of people who go in business do so because they may have acquired a small amount of cash and feel the urge to conduct a business of their own. Many of them apparently give no thought to whether training and knowledge is necessary in the kind of business they select—they simply know they want a business of their own and take the plunge sinking every dollar they own and often mortgage property and personal effects to the limit with no thought of what will happen if they fail.

Thousands who wind up in a court of bankruptcy have never kept a set of books. They have no knowledge of what they owe, what is owing them, or the value of an inventory. They have no fixed salary, but simply take from the business what they need and the "need" often exceeds the amount good judgment should tell them is more than the business can stand. When collections fail because of poor credit risks or lack of system, and creditors begin to clamor and bring suit, bankruptcy is as unexpected and inexplicable as an earthquake.

One reason for this lamentable condition is that our bankruptcy laws are too lenient, although, some progress has been made in the last few years to correct some of the faults. Anyone can clear his debts in court and then return to his folly. They often do. In England, however, the business man who does not keep proper books of account is regarded as a criminal. The court refuses to clear his debts and denies him the right to enter business again. He can also be punished for negligence.

Yet the American system has some merit. It compels the wise seller to be on his guard. Ways and means of finding out all he needs to know are available in every community. There is no real excuse for failure to find out what an applicant for credit has in the matter of assets and ability to pay. Exactly the same rule applies to retail credit on a smaller scale because the individual, in a way, is simply conducting a miniature business in handling his daily affairs.

The merchant who sells to irresponsible people knowing in advance that he is taking a big chance on getting his money is as much to blame as the man who receives the credit and who in many instances knows beforehand that he will be unable to pay.

Safe, sound and profitable business requires strict application of certain rules. It requires forethought and training, system and exact knowledge of where it stands and where it's headed by those who are responsible for its success.

In this enlightened day when facts are known, or can be obtained, about almost every human being who exists, it doesn't pay to guard a thousand dollars in cash with a shotgun and at the same time sell thousands of dollars worth of merchandise to those you know (or can find out) who will not or cannot pay.

MISSOURI MELANGE

A Callaway county farmwife, on a recent visit with relatives in Fulton, told a story worthy of Ripley's Believe it or Not. Her husband, without advising her, hid his billfold containing $100 in a new teapot she had never used. Breaking her utility teapot, she filled the new one with water and placed it on the stove. Her husband entered the kitchen, grabbed the pot off the stove and, before the eyes of his startled wife, poured out the water and his shrunken wallet. The money was dried out and proved to be in good condition.

Several Jefferson City mothers are worried with that perpetual worry of mothers of sons: What to do with Junior's newest pet. Convicts cutting weeds on a state-owned vacant lot adjoining the State Capitol disturbed a number of young rabbits, which scurried about and many of which fell into the hands of small boys.

Resurfacing of approximately seventy blocks of streets in the state capital will be carried out before winter under direction of W. A. Curtis, Jefferson City street commissioner, as a result of a recent survey.

Traffic over the Osage river bridge on highways 50 and 63 east of Jefferson City is being halted for short intervals between 10 P. M. and 6 A. M. to permit replacement of the old wooden floor with a laminated creosote floor. There is no interruption of traffic during daylight flours.

Four fishermen with hooks attached to jugs landed a ninety-pound catfish in the Mississippi river four miles south of Caruthersville recently. It was five feet long.

The baseball team of Prison Farm No. 2 scored its eleventh and twelfth consecutive victories July 9, defeating L. Hall at the state prison in Jefferson City and the Marion Sawmill, both scores being 9 to 0. The Battle of the Apostrophe in Jackson county is ended! The name of the Missouri city—Lee's Summit—no longer can be spelled properly without the apostrophe. The Postal Guide gives the spelling as Lee's Summit, while the Railway Guide uses the apostrophe. Citizens took the matter up with their Representative in Congress, C. Jasper Bell, protesting that the omission is historically incorrect, and postal officials backed up the protest, so the name plate on the new postoffice there will read Lee's Summit.

James Hilton's GOOD BYE, MR. CHIPS

ADAPTED FROM THE METRO-Goldwyn-MAYER PICTURE

SYNOPSIS

Mr. Chipping has been a master at Brookfield School ever since 1870—for twenty years—and has not succeeded in winning the friendship and liking of the boys, partly because of his diffidence, but mostly because he had got off on the wrong foot his first few weeks at the school by keeping his class in as a matter of discipline on the day of the cricket match with Sedbury. Colley, one of his pupils, was a star player for his team. The match was lost and the Cup surrendered, after three years, to the rival school. And then Max Staefel, the Viennese German master, asked him to go along on a walking tour of the Tyrolean mountains. Out alone one day in the mountains, Chipping is caught in a fog and hears a woman's "hello" far above him. He starts to scramble upward.

Chapter Five

THE GIRL IN THE MIST

After an hour of climbing in the fog, feeling every step of his way, often loosening stones that bounded and rumbled into some hidden abyss below, Chipping drew himself carefully upon a narrow ledge. Mist floated thickly past. Above his head was one of those mountain monuments begging the traveller to pray for the soul of one who had perished there. Giving it a grim, sidelong glance, Chipping continued on the slightly ascending ledge, often obstructed by outjutting rocks.

At one of the bends he halted to utter a stentorian "Hel-lo-o!"

"Hello!" answered a girl's voice so close by that Chipping gave a startled jump.

She put half the jacket about Chipping. He accepted, stiff and shy and dazzled.

"Why, well—er—I don't see you," he said, stepping around the bend.

"Here I am," said the voice quite close to him. He saw nothing but mist at first, but as he advanced slowly, the form of a fair, beautiful girl, wearing suit, scarf and a feathered hat, took shape. She was sitting on a low rock, a sandwich in her hand.

"Hello, there! I thought I heard a voice.'

"Are you all right?" he asked anxiously.

"Yes, quite, thanks. The mist is a nuisance, isn't it?"

"You're not in any danger?" There was unconscious indignation in Chipping's voice.

"No." Her eyes twinkled. "Do you mind?"

"No—no, of course not."

"You shouldn't be moving about, you know. It's awfully foolish of you."

"Foolish!" Chipping all but choked. "I—I heard you call. I thought you were in some difficulty."

"Don't tell me you climbed up here to rescue me!"

"As a matter of fact, I did," he responded huffily.

"Now really I should be very angry with you. Suppose you had fallen?"

"I must say I—"

"I never heard of such utter stupidity! Where were you?"

"On the Gamsteig."

"And you climbed up in that mist—to rescue me—when I'm probably a better climber than you are!"

"Then what were you screaming about?" he demanded.

"I wasn't screaming. I just let out a shout at random. So that was why?" She pointed downwards, and shuddered. "When I think that road might have been paved with your good intentions! Really, it was idiotic of you—and rather wonderful!" She gave him a sudden smile.

"Not at all," he began uncomfortably.

"Anyhow, I'm awfully glad you came. It was going to be very lonely. Won't you sit down?"

"Er—thanks. E—my name is Chipping—Charles Edward Chipping."

"Mine's Ellis—Katherine Ellis." She withdrew her hand from the pocket for the jacket. "Won't you have a sandwich? I've got loads of them."

"Well, thanks. I ate mine early. I am hungry."

"And I'm sorry I wasn't in any danger," she said contritely.

"It was rather inconsiderate of you," he agreed humorously as he took a sly peep at her, wondering at her youth and beauty. "What are you doing alone on a mountain? Isn't it rather unusual for a young lady?"

"I'm not usually alone. I have a friend at the inn."

"So have I. We're on a walking tour."

"Really? We're bicycling."

"Bicycling? Through Austria?" He was incredulous. "Good heavens, I didn't know that ladies rode those awful things! With—er—a leg on each side of the saddle?"

"You don't imagine I'd ride side saddle, do you?"

"But what happens to...your dress?"

"Oh, they breed female bicycles now. Didn't you know?"

"I don't like all this rushing about on wheels. Human beings were never intended to go at such a speed! I suppose you think I'm old-fashioned?"

"I like men to be old-fashioned. Have another sandwich. We'll reserve the rest for emergencies. It's chilly, isn't it?" She turned up her collar.

"Oh, I say — I should have thought of it. Here, take my coat. I'm rather too warm."

"I wouldn't think of it! Put it back on at once!"

"No, really, you must take it. I insist...please."

"Look here, why don't we share it? It's big enough for both of us." She started to put it about him.

"Good heavens no! If someone were to see you!"

"On this mountain? And what if they did? I insist. Look—like this. Catch hold of it." She put half of the jacket about Chipping. He accepted, stiff and shy and dazzled.

They continued to sit there in the mist, now talking, now silent, until it grew dark, hoping the fog would lift. But it still drifted about the marooned pair, giving them a spectral air. Chipping was sunk in reverie.

"A penny for your thoughts," said Kathie Ellis at length.

"Er—" he said, startled. "As a matter of fact, I was thinking about you. I see very little of ladies at Brookfield. I was rather realizing what I had missed."

"If I may say so, Mr. Chipping, I think the ladies have missed a great deal, too."

"That's very kind of you, but I'm really not a ladies' man."

"Afraid of them?"

"Terrified!" he replied half-humorously.

"Not of me, I hope?"

"Not up here in the clouds—perhaps the altitude has gone to my head. But if I'd met you at the inn—"

"Because I'm a strong-minded female who rides a bicycle and wants the vote?"

"No, on the contrary—because—because you are so very nice looking, I think—and charming."

"And so are you, Mr. Chipping, frankly."

"Good heaven!" he cried aghast. "No one has ever called me that!" At her gay laugh, he pondered a moment, tickled at being called charming. "What extraordinary ideas come into one's head up here! Do you experience a sort of exhilaration?"

"Definitely. It's the altitude."

"It's as though we owned the mountains. We're pretty superior persons."

"We're gods."

"Up here there's no time," he said, gravely now, "no growing old—nothing lost."

"We're young," said Kathie softly.

"We believe in ourselves," he said.

"We've faith in the future." It was a sort of antiphonal chant.

"It must be the future," said Chipping with a shy laugh. He dug his stick into the ground, and continued, without looking at her. "Do you suppose a person—in middle age—could start life over again—and make a go of it?"

"I am sure of it—quite sure," she said with sudden warmth and understanding. "It must be tremendously interesting to be a school master."

"I thought so once."

"To watch boys grow up and help them along, see their characters develop, and what they become when they leave school and the world gets hold of them. I don't see how you can ever get old in a world that's always young."

"I never really thought of it in that way. When you talk about it, you make it sound exciting and heroic."

"It is."

"And the schoolmaster—is he exciting and heroic, too?"

"I've met only one—a reckless person who climbed the Glockner in a mist to—" His intense gaze stopped her. "Is my nose shiny?"

"There's a light on your face—a strange light—"

The moonlight had fallen on her face and gave it a striking beauty.

"Look at the lights in the valley. The mist has lifted!"

They stood up. "Yes," he said, and paused. "We can go down now."

"Yes...I'm almost sorry. It was an adventure, wasn't it? I wonder if we're not leaving it behind us."

"Will you—er—take my hand? It's rather tricky just here."

She took his hand and they started to descend the mountain.

IF YOU'RE looking for a sure-fire escape from the heat, take a tip from Otto and the boys. Stag's just the thing when you're hot and thirsty—it's the champion cooler-offer!

Just as in the good old days, Stag is really mellow, really dry, without the slightest trace of bitterness. And it's got a body and flavor that spell "m-o-r-e." That's because it's slow-brewed to a master-brewer's formula generations old.

Make your next drink of beer an event! Call for a tall, cool, foam-covered glass of Stag. And ten to one you'll be a Stag fan from that time on!

Governor Zenon Trudeau

Before the United States purchased the Louisiana territory no governor stationed in what is now Missouri did more to build up a Spanish empire in America than Zenon Trudeau.

His term as lieutenant-governor of Upper Louisiana began on July 21, 1792, one hundred and forty-seven years ago this week. During his first months at St. Louis he learned that British traders were building forts in Spanish territory on the upper Missouri, and in order to drive them out and to expand the influence of Missouri traders he encouraged the organization of the Missouri Company. Through this organization he proposed to exploit new Indian tribes on the upper Missouri, discover a route to the Pacific ocean, and build forts as a buffer against British and Russian aggression into the rich provinces of California and Mexico. As a government agency for defense and exploration the company only fairly succeeded, for although it constructed two forts and captured one that had been built by the British, none of the three existed long. As a business venture the company failed completely, for because of bad management and Indian trouble three expeditions, costing the stockholders more than $200,000, were lost.

An empire builder and not a provincial official, Trudeau did not limit his interests to the northwest. In order to control the troublesome Osage Indians he helped arrange with Auguste Chouteau for the building of Fort Carondelet in 1794-1795. This fort, evidently built near Halley's Bluffs in the present Vernon county, was the most western fort built in Missouri during the Spanish regime.

In his capacity as a colonizer, however, Trudeau did his greatest work. As early as 1770 his predecessors had developed a plan for allowing colonists to settle in Spanish territory. Under this general arrangement the governor had the power to confer grants varying in size from 200 to 1000 arpents to actual settlers, although in special cases he was allowed to make larger grants. Trudeau was impressed with the military and economic importance of immigration and not only accepted the plan but made a direct effort to get outstanding American frontier leaders to settle in Spanish Louisiana. The great pioneer, Daniel Boone, and hundreds of Americans were courteously received, accepting Spanish citizenship and generous grants of land from this noted governor.

Governor Trudeau objected to the requirement that all colonists must accept the Catholic religion. Possibly he might have been tinctured with the French irreligion of that time, but at least he seems to have administered the religious oath in a most perfunctory manner. He was under a strict obligation to expel all Protestant ministers, but John Clark, a Methodist preacher, periodically visited the region now included in Jefferson county and was never materially interferred with.

Under his progressive colonizing and commercial policies, business became more active. St. Louis took on a new air of prosperity and new towns and communities were founded. Not until the closing years of the nineteenth century, almost a hundred years later, did the wave of immigration so carefully nurtured by Trudeau, subside.

Zenon Trudeau, who with a policy encouraging immigration, trade, exploration, and fortification to protect the region against invasion, became one of the most progressive governors of Upper Louisiana, was born in New Orleans on November 28, 1748. A man with a high sense of patriotism and unquestioned personal integrity, Trudeau was popular among the people and held the respect of his superiors. When he was offered retirement with a pension in 1797 he refused because of the war with England. He was succeeded as lieutenant-governor by Charles Dehault Delassus on August 29, 1799. Trudeau died in St. Charles Parish, Louisiana, soon after 1803.

JAPAN HINTS BOYCOTT OF AMERICAN COTTON

Tokyo, July 13.—In retaliation against Senator Key Pittman's resolution prohibiting export of war supplies to violators of the Nine-Power Treaty, Japanese authorities today hinted Tokyo would refuse to continue buying American raw cotton.

Japan purchases approximately $252,000,000 worth of raw cotton from the United States yearly, according to Tokyo figures.

(Trade figures show Japan buys about 800 million dollars worth of cotton yearly from the United States.)

Japan, according to the Domei, official Japanese news agency, considers the Pittman measure aimed directly at Nippon. The Nevada Democrat's measure, the agency stated, is considered as "economic provocation" which may lead to eventual suspension of Japanese-American trade relations.

MUNICIPAL OPERA REVIVES SMETANA'S MASTERPIECE, "THE BARTERED BRIDE"

St. Louis—Friedrich Smetana's farcial Bohemian folk opera, "The Bartered Bride," which attracted nightly capacity audiences two years ago, will be revived by the Municipal Opera, with another group of costly of singers, selected from the New York Metropolitan Opera roster, beginning Monday night, July 24. The final performance will be given Sunday night, July 30.

The original hilarious English translation of the "Bartered Bride" given at the Municipal Opera two summers ago, will be repeated. The translation has preserved all of the characteristics of the original text. The plot centers around the love of a servant for his master's daughter. The music is an endless series of beautiful arias, trios, quartets and choruses.

Muriel Dickson, famous Scottish soprano, will sing the leading faminine role of Marie, a part in which she made her Metropolitan debut with sensational success in 1936. She came to this country in 1935 as the leading prima donna of the world-renowned D'Oyly Carte Opera Co., of London, producers of Gilbert and Sullivan works, and captivated audiences with her beauty and glorious voice. Before the company had completed its brief tour she was engaged as a principal of the New York Metropolitan Opera Co. She made her debut at the Metropolitan immediately after the Gilbert and Sullivan players completed its American engagement. At the Metropolitan she also has sung the roles of Musette in "La Boheme," Caroline in "Clandestine Marriage" and Amelia in "Amelia Goes to the Ball." She made her American recital debut in Town Hall, New York, last December, and received tumultous praise.

George Rasely, Metropolitan opera tenor, has been re-engaged for the role of the stuttering half-witted Vashek, a part in which he created a sensation at both the Metropolitan and on his debut at the Municipal Opera two summers ago. Rasely was seen as Captain Andy in "Show Boat" at the amphitheatre last summer.

Myron Taylor, another New York Metropolitan principal, will sing the leading man's role of Jenik. Engene Loewenthal, famous bass-baritone, will return to sing the role of the marriage broker, a part in which he scored a great hit for comedy and vocal artistry at the Municipal Theatre on the first St. Louis presentation of the Smetana success. Annamary Dickey, the Decatur, Ill., soprano, who won the Metropolitan opera auditions last winter for a contract at the famous operatic institution, also will return to the outdoor theater.

Other roles will be filled by the regular favorites, including Arthur Kent, Joseph Vitale, Al Downing, Frederic Persson and Dorothy Johnson.

There will be plenty of folk dancing in the comic opera, with solo roles filled by Valya Valentinoff, a star of "On Your Toes," Nina Stroganova and Vladimir Doukoudovsky, all former members of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo.

U. S. TRIO TO COMBAT BURNING ARABIAN WELL

New York, July 17.—Three men arrived today on the first leg of an airplane trip half way around the world to extinguish an oil well fire.

Myron M. Kinley of Houston, Tex., and his assistants, Charles Hengst and Cleo Jobe, leave on a Pan-American Airways clipper for Marseilles, France, Wednesday, and fly from there to Arabia by Imperial Airways. They hope to reach a burning Arabian well a week from today.

The fire has been burning since July 8 and could burn six months or a year.

An oil fire specialist, Kinley was in Boston when Standard Oil Co. officials called him to San Francisco to discuss the Arabian fire. He flew to California and then to Houston to get Hengst and Jobe, then here.

Kinley went to Rumania to extinguish a fire several years ago. Fighting oil well fires is dangerous and difficult. Experts are few.

Speed is still one of the big contributing factors to our serious accidents.

Back in 1903, Charles F. Young was the speed demon who literally burned up the track at Mount Holly, New Jersey, with his single-cylinder, eight horsepower, four speed, double chain drive auto. It had a breath-taking speed of 35 miles an hour, and driver Young usually came in first.

Today some people insist on going through a busy thoroughfare, past school houses, and other dangerous locations on our highways at, not 35, but 55 and more. A car traveling 60 miles an hour, hitting a dead object, has the same force of impact it would have if it were dropped from the top of a 10-story building to the pavement.

Before you drive fast—think.

Ministers of Madison, Wis., last week demanded "freedom of speech" in their prayers before they would open the Wisconsin Senate with the usual solemnity. Reason was that a Wisconsin Senator recently objected to a preacher's opening prayer because he called down the "wrath of God upon little men in large places who stooped to canny shrewdness to thwart the people's will."

Responses to subscription cards sent out have been very gratifying to The Standard management. Those who are in arrears must not be surprised if the paper does not reach them as we propose to drop all who do not appreciate the paper sufficient to pay for it. In fact postal officials require newspapers to cease using the mails to serve subscribers who are in arrears.

The quarter ending June 30 The Standard paid more postage for mailing the regular edition than all four other papers printed in Scott County combined, and three times as much as the next competitor, which shows that the paper that is most sought after has the largest paid circulation of any paper in Scott or adjoining counties. Believe it or not.

We are told there are fifty widows living in Ward One in Sikeston which made us wonder if forty-nine of them would get married if the right man would come along with the right sort of a bank account, belonged to the right church and voted the right political ticket. We are not going to say this for fear of a tempest that might come our way.

More than two hundred children took advantage of the free bathing offer of John Dover on Wednesday forenoon and at times the pool was alive with small children enjoying themselves. The only thing asked of the bathers was to bring their own towels. It was very generous of John to give this treat to the little fellows who certainly enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent.

The ancient Turkish nobles employed many lackeys and footmen, called peichs, as messengers. These couriers ran in their bare feet until continuous exercise of this sort over all types of roads so deadened and calloused their feet that they were able to shoe themselves with horseshoes. To increase the resemblance between themselves and horses they carried a silver bit in their mouths while on errands for their masters.

HOME OWNERS FORUM

PAINT the underside of porch floors as a protection against moisture.

Frequently space and soil beneath flooring is damp, due to insufficient ventilation. Such conditions bring about moisture absorption, causing topside paint to blister and peel. If allowed to continue, rotting of the porch floor often results.

To prevent this, apply coat of high quality exterior paint to underside of porch floor. Such treatment protects flooring and reduces porch painting costs.

Experience has proved that an excellent paint for back priming purposes is composed of equal parts soft paste white lead and raw linseed oil. Add 1 pint of drier for each 3 gallons of linseed oil.

Q.—Is a permit necessary for home plumbing installations and must a licensed plumber do the job?

A.—In most communities plumbing installations are controlled by ordinances which usually require a permit for new as well as remodeling work, and likewise specify that work be done by licensed plumbers.

In many cases inspection is required after completion of work to see that it compiles with plumbing and health laws.

Q.—Suggest remedy for moisture condensation on interior walls during hot weather.

A.—Interior condensation is usually caused by improper ventilation. Air circulation created by opening windows should improve, if not entirely correct, this trouble.

Q.—Kitchen stairs, recently shellaced, are water-spotted. Is it necessary to refinish the surface to remove spots?

A.—No. Such spots are readily removed by the application of household ammonia.

(The Home Owners Forum of the Home Service Bureau will be glad to help you solve home maintenance problems relating to plumbing, painting, etc. Write care of this paper.)

Modern Housewife Enjoys Her Modern Kitchen

Efficiency and Charm Join Hands in This Delightful Room

TODAY'S KITCHEN is as inviting in appearance as any other room in the house. Its complete array of efficient labor-saving electrical devices accents the decorative scheme with gleaming surfaces and superb design. That is why the homemaker whose modern kitchen expresses her own personality and charm delights in repeating to her friends: "Do come into the kitchen!"

A prize-winner in the Modern Kitchen Bureau's "Kitchen of the Month" contest, this pleasant little kitchen makes a bid for national prominence. Its delighted owner enjoys the luxury of electric cooking, electric water heating and electric refrigeration. The capable help of such tireless servants as her electric mixer, coffee maker, roaster and waffle iron shortens the hours and brightens the minutes spent in preparing meals for the family.

With her capacious refrigerator well stocked, the homemaker is always certain that food supplies will be fresh and ready for use, no matter how many unexpected guests may drop in. If her dinner is in the oven, she is free for the afternoon, knowing perfectly well that the automatic controls on her range will shut off the heat at the correct time and still keep everything hot until it is time for the meal to be served. A sure supply of hot water at all times lightens many tasks and comfortably solves one more domestic problem.

The electric kitchen is increasing in popularity at an amazing rate of speed, as women everywhere are learning its many advantages and the ease and economy with which it can be installed.

WOMAN HIT BY CAR AT DOWNTOWN CROSSING

Mrs. Kirby Edmondson received bruises Tuesday when knocked down by an automobile at the New Madrid-Center Street intersection. Mrs. R. C. O'Brien of Fredericktown, according to City Officer McManus, going north, almost overran a red light. In backing out of the intersection, she struck Mrs. Edmondson, who was treated by Dr. H. M. Kendig.

STATE TO CUT 8500 OFF WPA IN JULY

Jefferson City, July 18.—Missouri's shrinking WPA rolls will take another cut of 8500 in the next two weeks to bring the state within its August quota of 71,500 workers.

Deputy State Administrator E. M. Bayse said the reduction would be made from those who have been on the rolls continuously during the last 18 months—who must be laid off for 30 days under a new federal law.

Bayse said a canvass to see how many of the 80,000 now on the state rolls would come under the lay-off order had not been completed, but one federal estimate placed the number in Missouri at approximately 24,000.

The reductions will be made gradually, Bayse explained, as the survey advances. Those laid off will be eligible to return to work after 30 days if the quota permits.

George Bernard Shaw's first years in London were spent in desperate want. "My clothes turned green," he says. "And I trimmed my cuffs to the quick with scissors, and wore my tall hat with the back part in front, so that the brim should not bend double when I took it off to an acquaintance."

Charles Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore, Misses Lucille and Mary Ethel Moore, left Thursday morning for San Francisco, Calif. to attend the Golden Gate Exposition. They will visit Mr. and Mrs. Tim Moore and George Steel, Jr., at Casper, Wyo. en route to Calif.

William O. Calboun of Livingston, Mont., was not so sure last week there was justice in the world. He saw a tomcat stalking a robin. His humane instincts aroused, he threw a rock at the cat, missed. But Calhoun went to the hospital, his arm broken by the heave.

And this explains that innocent odor of alcohol on the breath of Frank O'Neal when he was arrested after he had an automobile accident in St. Petersburg, Fla. O'Neal was cold sober at the time of the accident, he explained to the Judge, but he had a half pint of wine on the seat beside him and he knew that would look bad. So he quickly drank it before police arrived to keep them from finding it. But it still looked bad to the Judge, who gave O'Neal choice of $100 or 90 days.

After all, it's just another way of making a living. George Brann, 82-year-old resident of Kent, England, is a bird scarer and has supported himself as such for 73 years. Possessed of a powerful voice, he shouts at the birds, frightening them away during the sowing season. Such was his success that at the age 16 he was the most sought-after bird scarer south of the Thames. But, alas, he is now the last of a lineage of noted Kentish bird scarers.

PLANNING LOW-COST, HEALTHFUL MEALS

By Katharine Fisher

Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

It is a well-known fact that the smaller the budget the narrower the choice in foods. And a narrow diet can so often be a deficient diet, one that invites less fitness. So, if the size of your grocery bill is important to you, it is even more important that you know just what can be safely left out of economical meals.

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

Our Daily Guide to Low-Cost Meals has saved the day for thousands of budgeteers. We are giving it below because it will help you who are tackling budget meals to come through with flying colors. Take a long look at this guide, and you'll quickly see why it has become so popular.

It's all too easy to be thrifty at the expense of your family when it comes to fruits, leafy, green and yellow vegetables, milk, and so forth. However, with our guide at your elbow when meal-planning hour comes around, you can tell at a glance just what fruits, vegetables and other foods, as well as how much of each, you must include in your daily meals to keep your family well and fit, and still respect your modest budget.

Because we try to stretch food dollars as far as is safe, our guide calls for generous quantities of cereals and breads, a full quota of milk, and less expensive but mineral- and vitamin-rich vegetables, fruits, etc. However, more vegetables, fruits, meat, fish and eggs may always be added if your pocketbook allows. More expensive vegetables, fruits and meats may also be substituted for those suggested.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE'S DAILY GUIDE TO LOW-COST MEALS

What to Serve Each Day for Grownups and Children Over 5 Years

Milk: 1 qt. for each child; 1 pt. for each adult daily—to drink or in cooked food. Evaporated or dried whole milk or cheese may replace part of the quota.

Vegetables and Fruit: A leafy, green or yellow-colored vegetable once a day, sometimes twice. Tomatoes, canned or fresh, or citrus fruit in season, daily if possible. Potatoes, sweet or white, frequently. One additional fresh or dried fruit or an additional vegetable daily. Dried beans, peas, lentils, peanut butter or nuts two or three times weekly.

A Cereal Dish: Once a day, sometimes twice. This may include breakfast cereals, rice, macaroni, spaghetti, etc., as well as flour and meal products.

Bread or Crackers: At every meal—at least half of them whole grain.

Eggs: Two or three weekly for adults; four or five for young children. A few extra in cooking.

Meat, Fish, Poultry, or Cheese: Three to four times a week or oftener if combined with cereals listed above.

Desserts: Once a day; fruits and milk puddings especially recommended.

Fats: Butter or margarine and salad oil, vegetable shortenings, lard, salt pork and bacon, as budget permits. Margarines reinforced with Vitamins A and D are now available.

Sugars: Molasses, sugar, jellies, honey, and syrups may be used for sweetening.

Plenty of Drinking Water.

Note: To insure against Vitamin D deficiency, cod-liver oil or its equivalents in fish-oil concentrates or Vitamin D milk will be found helpful and beneficial.

Automobile Wrecks Laid To Drivers

"I AM fully convinced," writes Isabel Dean in the July issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine, "that the biggest accident cause is not the car or the highway or even the demon rum—it is a loose screw in the mind of the driver." Miss Dean's article, "I've Had an Accident" is one of an aggressive series in a campaign for greater motor safety and the reduction of highway accidents now in progress.

"Getting behind the wheel of a car has a curious effect on human nature and normally decent people become unpleasantly transformed and discourteous when they drive. In addition to danger to life involved, bad motoring manners hold up traffic and waste time and fuel. Of all traffic delays, 25% grow out of common discourtesy. Psychoanalysts have been uncovering reasons for some kinds of childish misbehavio in an automobile. A car is everything that the small boy wanted and it seems to bring out the small boy in men," says Miss Dean.

Most people admit they drive too fast when there is no need for it. The human eye makes a deceptive accommodation to the sensation of speed, so that high speeds seem slow when the eye has accustomed itself to higher ones. Most people are convinced that accidents happen only to other people and not to themselves. As a veteran of an accident, Miss Dean says they can happen to anybody.

TWO MEN AND WOMAN ACCUSED OF EXTORTION

Kennett, Mo., July 14.—Two men and a woman, held in the Dunklin County jail here in default of $2500 bond each, will be arraigned July 22 before Justice of the Peace Albert Biggs on charges of third degree robbery and extortion filed yesterday in connection with the alleged blackmail of a wealthy farmer who lives near here.

Sheriff G. D. Miles said the amount involved in the purported extortion totaled at least $2000, and added that the men, Raymond Killian, about 23 years old, and Barney Clifton, 41, had admitted that they took money from the farmer, whose name is being withheld.

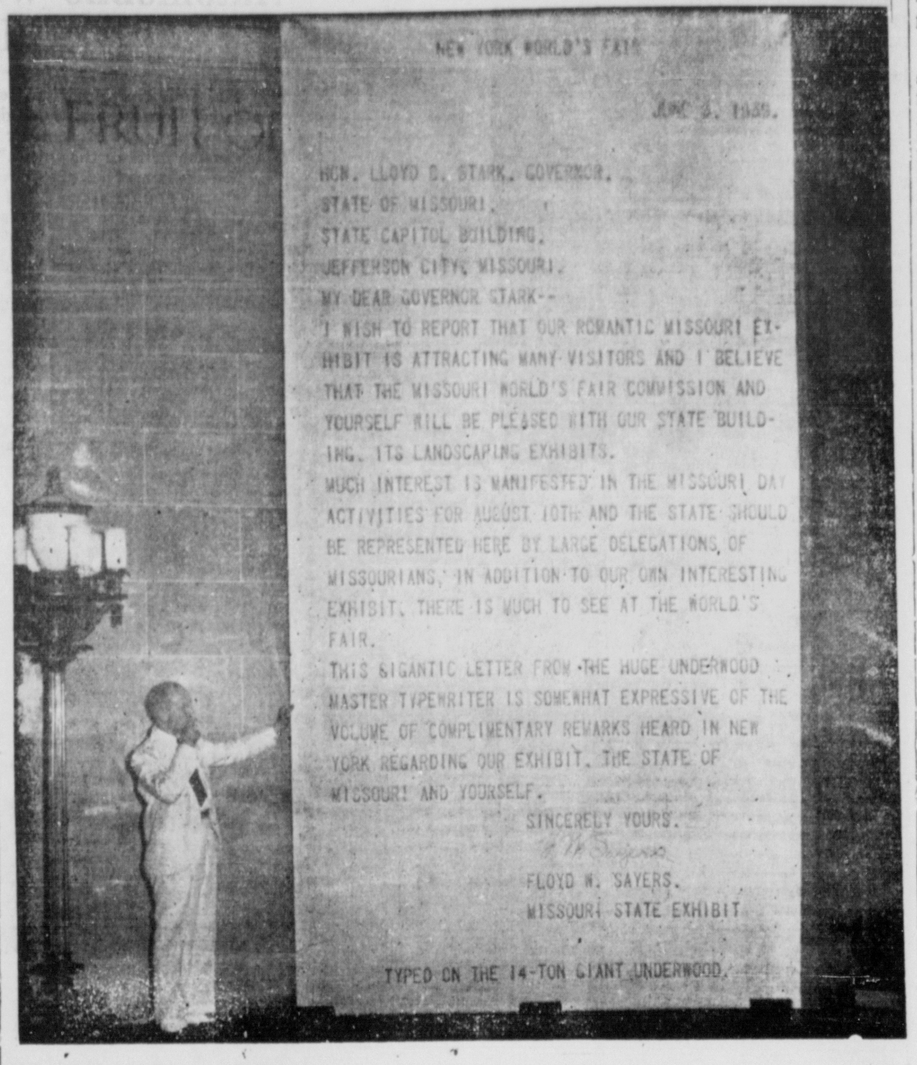

The woman, Mrs. Barney Clifton, was arrested for investigation Monday. The purported extortion is alleged to have occurred in April but the filing of charges was delayed because of the farmer's reluctance to prosecute the three.

Killian also is accused of impersonating an officer, and Clifton, of abetting the impersonation, and the preliminary hearing on these charges, which were filed July 1 on the complaint of Deputy Sheriff A. C. Schult, also will be held July 22.

Under the latter charges, it is alleged that Killian, representing himself as a Deputy Sheriff from Pemiscot County, accompanied Clifton to the farmer's home, where the Cliftons had been staying, last April and told the farmer he intended to arrest him. The farmer immediately told a friend of the incident, and the latter asked Schult to investigate Killian's authority. Killian and Clifton were arrested and held a few minutes April 10. Further investigation by the officers resulted in the re-arrest of the two men.

BILL WHITE APPRAISES VANDENBURG: A CHEESE

"There is nothing wrong with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg as a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination," opines William Allen White, dean of American editors and G. O. P. oracle, "and there is very little right about him in the matter of record and public experience . He is far and away the best candidate but at the present moment the American public is allergic to him. Now he has the perfectly inevitable lineaments and unblemished outline of a man cut out of a cheese paring—a good cheese, a big cheese, indeed, but somehow lacking political animation, just now."

Governor Lloyd C. Stark is shown standing by the side of a huge. 17-foot letter of invitation to the New York World's Fair in the capitol at Jefferson City. The letter, written by Floyd W. Sayers, director of the Missouri exhibit, on a 14-ton master typewriter, is a reminder of the special Missouri day at the fair on August 10. Governor and Mrs. Stark and a number of state officials will go to New York for this event via the special Missouri train. All Missourians who wish are invited to accompany them on the special train. Individual rates are priced as low as $38 round trip. Colonel Claude C. Earp, Highway Building, Jefferson City, is the chairman in charge of arrangements.

MISSOURI MELANGE

Bates county was the first Missouri county on the 1939 Kansas City wheat market with a car of No. 2 red wheat shipped June 23 by the Farmers Grain Elevator Company of Butler.

The banking house of J. S. Hughes & Company of Richmond observed its 80th anniversary, June 23.

The Kansas City Southern Railroad has filed formal application to operate an air transport service between Kansas City and New Orleans, following the route of the railroad. Intermediate stops would be made at Joplin, Fort Smith, Texarkana, Shreveport, Alexandria and Baton Rouge. Three fourteen-passenger planes, requiring an investment of $255,000 would be used.

Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown and Mayor Bradley of Poplar Bluff were among more than 1000 guests of the Costal Petroleum Company and the Great Northern Land Company at a picnic dinner, June 19, at location of Pearson No. 1 deep-test oil exploration in the Coon Island community of Southeast Missouri. It was the first opportunity for many of those present to see an oil rig in operation.

The editor of the Charleston Enterprise-Courier predicts that the first frost of next fall will come on September 25. He bases his prediction on the fact that the first katydid of this summer sounded off at 7:15 p. m., June 25. That means frost within ninety days, he says.

The governor has named Karl Marshall of Charleston as associate judge of the Mississippi county court, to fill the unexpired term of the late H. D. Sutherland.

Residents of Monroe, Mich., woke up the other morning to find a strange shower had fallen during the night. It had rained dollars. In the yards and on the streets were found nearly $6000 in currency ranging from $1 to $10 bills. Defect in the start of a perfect day was that the bills were spurious. Federal agents surmised a counterfeiter had discarded the notes in fear of being caught.

Shopping For Health

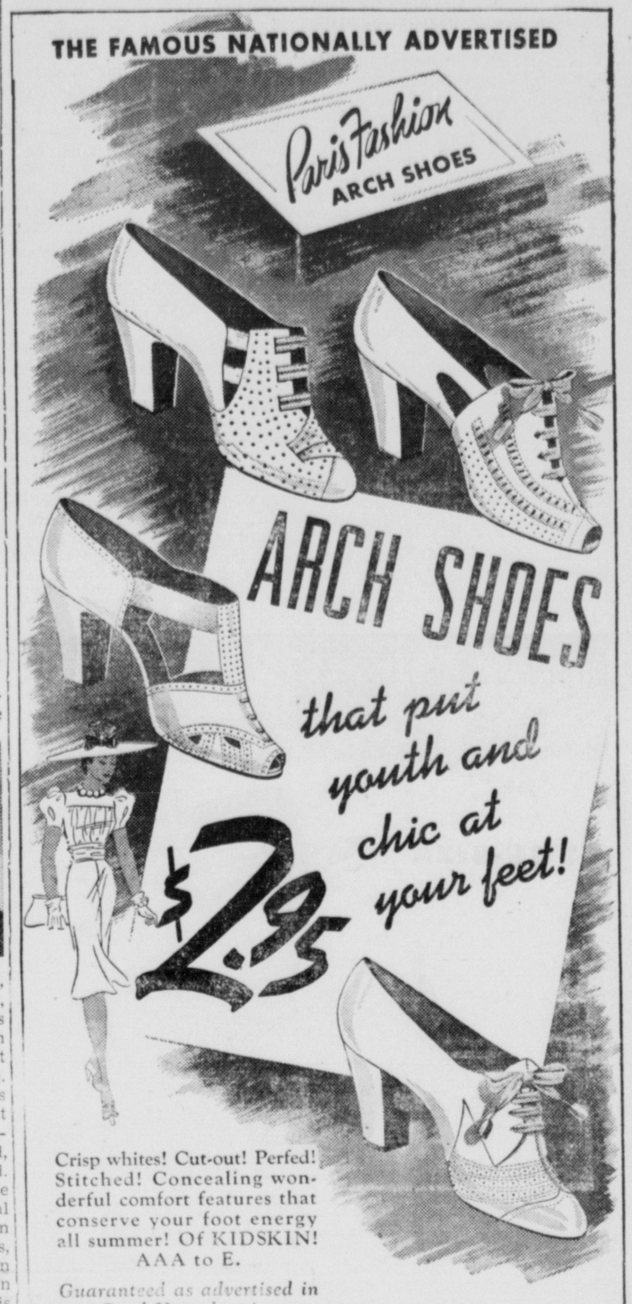

For over five years we have examined many of those who are "shopping for health." Most of them have been interested primarily in how cheap can it be restored—not how well. It has been our privilege to know several of this type. Today they still make the rounds of physicians' offices, spending many dollars, annually, and their health just where it was years ago. Many professional men call them bargain hunters. But there are no bargains in health. The best advice and treatment is still far short of being perfect when human suffering is concerned. When surgery is indicated, the best surgeon is none too good. When medicine is wanted the best, not the cheapest, medical doctor should be called. When pressures exist on delicate nerves, only one skilled in the detection and adjustment of pressure can correct this condition. Health is priceless. Too often but little can be done by those best qualified to treat the case. What can be expected of those whose ability is reflected by the fee they feel their services are worth?

MYSTERY SHIP FOUND SUNKEN OFF U. S. COAST

Washington, July 19.—Government scientists discovered a mystery ship today at the bottom of the ocean eight miles off Brigantine Inlet, on the New Jersey coast.

The vessel's location did not fit into any recent unsolved mystery of the sea. It was discovered by the crew of the Oceonographer, a survey ship of the Coast and Geoditic Survey, which was dragging for undersea menaces to ships.

The wreck was found in about 60 feet of water and the highest part of it was about 35 feet below the surface. Experts said the wreck might endanger large ocean-going ships and would have to be broken up.

SEMO 4-H CLUB CAMP AT IRONDALE THIS YEAR

The annual 4-H Club camp for the Southeast Missouri District, which includes New Madrid County will be held at Irondale Boy Scout Camp this year, rather than Arcadia, according to an announcement just received by the agents from the committee in charge of location. Those selecting the location are of the opinion that the facilities at the Scout camp will adequately take care of the whole group from Southeast Missouri rather than having two camps like last year. The camp will be opened at 1:30 on Monday, August 21, and will be continued through Thursday morning.

Cost of this year's camp is as follows: Enrollment fee, $3.50; transportation, $1.00; lunch on return trip, 25 cents, and incidental, 10 cents, making a total of $4.80. It is suggested that everyone take his lunch for Monday rather than buying something. The group will stop on the way at noon. This will take care of all expense except what each one may desire to spend for refreshments. However, it is suggested by the agents this be held to a minimum as past experience shows that there is likely to be less sickness and more regularity of habits if the youngsters do not eat too many nicknacks and drink too much soda water between meals. Parents are urged to cooperate in this respect.

Sugar beets, botanically speaking, belong to the same species as the garden beet. Although they contain less than 20 per cent sugar, they furnish nearly one-half of the world's supply of that commodity.

Funny the proverbial absent-minded professor never thought of trying this one. Whitey Long of Elk City, Ok., lighted a firecracker with a cigarette. In a moment of dreamy preoccupation he tossed away the cigarette, put the firecracker in his mouth. Now he is minus a tooth and has severe lip lacerations.

The Antarctic composes half of the earth's unexplored territory. Other great areas are in the Arctic regions, many islands of northern Canada, and large areas in the Canadian mainland, northern Siberia, Tibet, Arabia and high mountains of the Himalayan chain, Africa Australia, and South America.

THREE CCC YOUTH HURT IN COLLISION

Three members of the New Madrid CCC Drainage Camp had an automobile accident Friday, July 14. Raymond Page of Lilbourn, owner and driver, Albert Williams and Cletus Williams of Charleston, enroute to East Prairie to play in a softball game, were going over the levee east of LaForge when a collision occured with an on-coming truck in the middle of the road. The boys were taken to the hospital at Cairo, and were returned the following day to the camp hospital. Page and Ab Williams were the least injured in the wreck, while Cletus Williams sustained a broken left arm, fractured in three places.

MISSOURI FARMER KILLED BY BULL

Higginsville, Mo., July 19.—John Dittmer, farmer of near Concordia, was killed today when he was knocked down and gored by a bull as he was taking cows back to pasture. The farmer was found by his son, Edwin, a quarter mile from the house.

He was a trustee of the Board of Directors of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Concordia. Surviving are his mother, his widow, four sons, two brothers and three sisters.

NEW MADRID FARMERS ON STONEVILLE TOUR

New Madrid County was very well represented on the Stoneville Tour this year, by seven gin managers and farmers out of a total of thirty-five attending from the Missouri Cotton Counties, according to County Agent Broom. Farmers were somewhat in the majority, there being four out of the seven. This seemed to be true of the other counties represented, also. Those who attended reported a good time and they felt the trip was well worthwhile both from an educational and pleasure standpoint. Those attending were: J. K. Robbins, and Lloyd Turner, New Madrid; Bill Baker, LaForge; Arline Avery and C. B. Alsobrook, Jr., of Marston; C. S. Smith of Malden; Bert Femmer, of Gideon, and County Agent Broom.

Property owners will find a wealth of information in a booklet published especially for them by the Federal Housing Administration. Ask your local Better Housing Committee for a copy of the "Property Owners'" Booklet.

VITAMIN "A" NEEDED FOR NIGHT DRIVING

Can you see in the dark? When you step from the lobby into the semi-darkness of a movie theatre, do you have difficulty adjusting your vision? After facing the glare of automobile headlights in night driving, can you see the road ahead?

Night-blindness has been the cause of an alarming number of traffic accidents, and science has traced it to a condition resulting from dificiency of vitamin A in the diet. Milk is exceptionally rich in vitamin A, and thus for automobile drivers milk-drinking is a form of insurance.

Serious accidents often result from such minor hazards as a faulty basement stairway. Take advantage of the liberal financing plan made available by the National Housing Act to put your house in good condition.

Every type of business will benefit from the National Housing Act. It is to the interest of every business man to support his local Better Housing Program.

RED SPIDER DAMAGES COTTON

R. Q. Black of Oran reports a field of cotton heavily infested with red spider on his farm, seven miles southwest of Oran. Farmers are urged to watch their cotton carefully for these insects, because it require much less expense to stop them when they are still in small spots.

These insects are not much larger than a pin point, but they are very prolific. It requires them about two weeks to complete a life cycle. They are spread by the wind, by plowing through the infested spot, by walking through the spots; they travel very little of their own accord.

Method of control recommended is a thorough dusting of the infested area with finely ground sulphur. Apply about 6 to 8 pounds per acre.

Floors very often make or break a home. Do yours need resurfacing? An expenditure of this kind may prove a wise investment now that the National Housing Act has made credit available to property owners on such liberal terms.

A fight ensued in which young Heisserer was considerably cut up with a knife and a razor. Friends of the white youth immediately took steps for revenge and for a time feeling ran high. Monday when the negroes visited the relief office they were told in no uncertain terms to move on and later in the day to move out which they promptly did. A number of stitcher were required to close the mound on young Heisserer's body.

TOUGH TASK FOR WINDMILLS

WINDMILLS have a much more difficult time of it here in Curacao than they do in their homeland, Holland. Very little water comes naturally to Curacao, little Dutch isle lying just off the coast of Venezuela. There are only a couple of springs, and very little rainfall. Much of the water is brought to the island in ships and bought by the inhabitants, or is distilled from the sea. Besides this, Curacao—largely of volcanic origin—is rocky and hilly, rimmed round with limestone cliffs. Yet in spite of all this the island is one of the most spotlessly clean and attractive places in the whole Caribbean.

Gardens have been planted and carefully tended. Buildings have all been designed along Dutch lines—some with steep-roofed gables, narrow fronts, and red tiled roofs; others with columns, porches and Dutch domes. And the colors which nature has withheld in the form of trees and vegetation, man has supplied by painting buildings in bright blues, yellows, and reds—so that they look like confetti scattered along the waterfront.

Furthermore business booms on the island for here much of Venezuela's oil is refined. The Port of Willemstad is one of the most popular on the globe—with more than 5600 ships annually docking at her pier—and last year was included in the itinerary of the regular weekly 18-Day Caribbean cruises from New York.

HARVEST LESPEDEZA HAY NOW FOR RESULTS

J. T. Huey, Fred Black and and other farmers of Scott County are harvesting lespedeza for hay. Harvesting hay now will insure a better seed crop this fall than would have been secured had no hay been harvested, says County Agent Lane.

Because of the nature of its growth lespedeza begins shedding the bottom leaves when it has reached a height of about four inches. When this leafless area reaches a height from the ground high enough to clear a mower blade that is the time the hay crop should be removed. With a normal stand lespedeza six inches high will yield one ton of hay per acre. The hay dries quickly; hay cut in the morning may be baled in the afternoon.

MISSOURI NIGHT CLUB TO BE REVIVAL SCENE

Hayti, Mo., July 15. — The Okeena Night Club on Highway 84, seven miles west of here, will be the scene of a revival meeting, starting next week, according to the Rev. E. J. Morgan, living near the night club, who will conduct the services for three weeks, assisted by other ministers in this area.

The Rev. Mr. Morgan, who has attacked the night culb from time to time from pulpits in churches near by, said he had told the owner that he wishes his business would fail. The club was closed sometime ago, and the owner, the Rev. Mr. Morgan declared, told him that he intended to reopen, but in the event business did not improve over what it had been before, he would close the club and turn it over complete with chairs, lights, fans and other equipment for a revival meeting.

The anticipated business did not materialize and the night club owner made good his promise, the Rev. Mr. Morgan said.

6 INJURED AS TRAIN WRECKS FARM WAGON

Poplar Bluff, July 15.—Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wolverton and their four children were injured, the children critically, when a team of mules Wolverton was driving became frightened at a train today and ran across the railroad tracks.

Wolverton said at a hospital where he and his family were taken that the mules, hitched to a farm wagon, ran across the tracks ahead of a Frisco passenger train.

He and Mrs. Wolverton were thrown out of the wagon, but their four children, Bethel, 13; Roy, 4; Martha, 3, and Willia, 16 months old, were pushed along ahead of the train as the wagon was wrecked. Their escape from death, he said, was miraculous.

HERE'S PROOF that it's Cool in the Kitchen

MAKE THESE DISHES AHEAD OF TIME

It's a grand feeling, when you are giving a dinner or luncheon to know that your last minutes before the meal is served will be passed in tranquil coolness instead of in a mad scramble in a hot kitchen. You can assure yourself of this comfort if you choose dishes that may be prepared hours ahead of time and packed in the refrigerator. Here is a luncheon menu that requires a magically short time for last-minute preparation.

Ice Tomato Juice
Jellied Vegetable Salad
Cold Sliced Baked Ham
Marmalade Biscuits
Frozen Apple Sauce
Cookies
Hot Coffee

Make your vegetable salad the night before. Bake the ham the day before and in the morning slice paper thin and place in the ice box wrapped in wax paper so that it will remain moist. Prepare the biscuit dough and form biscuits in the morning ready to pop into the oven 15 or 20 minutes before serving. Freeze apple sauce in the morning.

JELLIED VEGETABLE SALAD

3 tablespoon gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 quart canned tomatoes
2 or 3 onion slices
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
2 tablespoon chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 cup shredded cabbage

Soak the gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Boil the tomatoes and onion for 5 minutes, strain through a fine sieve. Pour the hot tomato juice over the softened gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add the salt and sugar and chill. When the gelatine mixture is slightly soft, add the finely chopped vegetables and mix well. Add more salt if needed. If the mixture is not tart enough add a little lemon juice or vinegar. Pour into wet custard cups and place in refrigerator. When ready to serve turn out on crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

MARMALADE BISCUITS

Roll baking powder biscuit mixture ¼ inch thick. Cut in ovals 6 inches long and 3 inches wide. Make ½ inch cuts one inch from and parallel with ends. Put 1 teaspoon of marmalade in center. Bring one end of dough through hole in other end. Bake in a hot oven.

If you do not wish to heat the oven to prepare these biscuits you may serve date nut bread in place of them.

DATE NUT BREAD

1½ cups dates
1½ cups boiling water
2 tablespoon shortening
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
2¾ cups pastry flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup walnut meats chopped
½ teaspoon vanilla

Wash and stone dates, quarter, pour boiling water over them. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool, add egg, flour sifted with soda, cream of tartar, nuts and vanilla. Beat well, turn into greased bread pan and bake in moderate oven for 1¼ hours.

FROZEN APPLE SAUCE

Drain 4 cups apple sauce. Add 1 cup shredded pineapple, 2 tablespoons finely chopped preserved ginger and ½ cup steamed chopped raisins. Freeze in trays in automatic refrigerator until about the consistency of a sherbet. Serve with crisp sugar cookies or plain white cake.

PINEAPPLE CHARLOTTE

18 to 24 small strips sponge cake
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoon sugar
½ cup cubed canned or fresh pineapple
10 maraschino cherries

Stand 3 or 4 strips of cake in each sherbet glass. Whip the cream, add the sugar and fold in the pineapple. Place in glasses and let stand in refrigerator for 1 hour. Sprinkle with chopped maraschino cherries.

PEANUT BRITTLE ICE ICE BOX DESSERT

Stir 1 1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk and 3 tablespoons lemon juice together till mixture thickens. Put ½ cup peanut brittle through food chopper, using coarse knife. Combine two mixtures. Line an oblong pan with wax paper, cover with graham crackers. Put in layer of peanut brittle mixture, repeat graham crackers till mold is full. Let stand 12 hours. Unmold. Slice, serve with whipped cream.

CATCHES HUSBAND

Grays Harbor, Wash., July 15.—Mrs. Richard Meserve's catch while fishing made her husband speechless.

Making a cast, she hooked him through the tongue.

Use Your Refrigerator in Preparing Summer Menus

Your automatic refrigerator will prove a valuable aid in the creation of cool and colorful dishes for summer meals. Not only are such dishes fine in flavor but they have the great advantage of being prepared in advance. Salads, meat loaf, desserts—all may be prepared with the aid of this efficient adjunct to modern housekeeping.

JELLIED BEEF BROTH

But 3 pounds of lean beef cut in small pieces into 3 quarts of cold water. Add 1 small onion, 1 carrot, 2 tablespoons chipped celery, 2 sprigs parsley and simmer for 2 hours. Strain through cheesecloth, add salt to taste and beaten white of 1 egg. Boil until clear, strain. Add 2 tablespoons gelatine dissolved in cold water to each quart of stock. Pour into individual molds.

HAM MOUSSE

1 tablespoon gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup boiling water
2 cups chopped cold boiled ham
1 teaspoon mixed mustard
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt (if needed)
½ cup cream, whipped

Soak gelatine in cold water about 5 minutes, dissolve in boiling water. Cool, add to chopped ham, add mustard, paprika, salt and whipped cream. Turn into mold and chill. When firm unmold and garnish with tomatoes, hard-cooked eggs, and lettuce or parsley.

BEEF LOAF

2 pounds lean beef
1 cup diced salt pork
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped parsley
1½ cups milk
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
4 dashes tabasco sauce

Put the meat through grinder. Fry the diced salt pork until light brown and crisp and remove pieces from the pan. Make a sauce of the flour, milk and 3 tablespoons of pork drippings. Cook the celery, parsley and onion for a few minutes in the rest of the pork drippings and add to this the bread crumbs and seasonings. Combine all the ingredients and use the hands to mix thoroughly. Lay on a piece of parchment paper on a rack in an open roasting pan. Mold the meat loaf on the paper with the hands. Bake in a moderate over for 1¼ hours. Remove from the paper and chill. Slice very thin and serve with watercress garnish.

JELLIED CHEESE SALAD

1½ tablespoon gelatine
½ cup boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup evaporated milk
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup cold water
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoon grated horseradish
½ cup chopped nut meats

Soak gelatine in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add the salt and sugar and cool slightly. Add the lemon juice, the milk, the mayonnaise, cheese, horse-radish and nut meats. Pour into single or individual molds and chill. Unmold and serve on lettuce with additional mayonnaise.

Crochet This Table Runner For National Honors

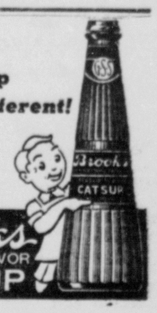

DAINTY table runners will vie with heavily impressive bedspreads for the nation-wide honors of the Third National Crochet Contest this fall. In the 1938 Contest the championship was won with a small filet tablescarf done in medieval design. And here is a pattern measuring 21 x 10 inches, calling for only three or four balls of mercerized crochet cotton, that may well take a prize. For a small summer hall console table it will take a proper place in your home besides. Directions for crocheting it, and details of The National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Bureau, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify runner No. 7118.

HOT SANDWICHES FOR QUICK LUNCH

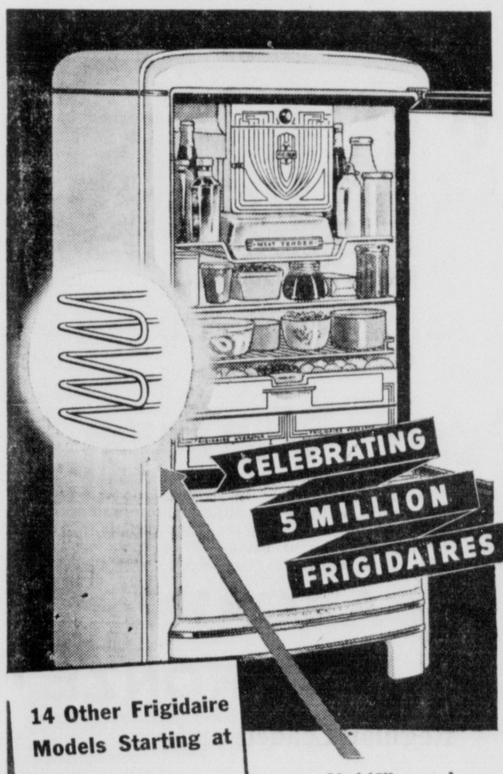

Here's a quick and easy kind of hot sandwiches which will "hit the spot" after a game of golf or hours at the beach or any other vacation diversion. It is a satisfying lunch or supper dish on any day, says Inez S. Willson, home economist. If your emergency shelf of ready-to-serve foods is as well supplied as it should be, you'll be able to serve this "quick snack" on any occasion.

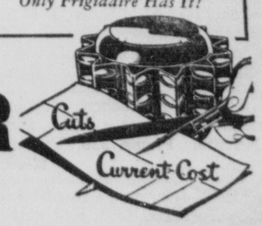

Toasted Sausage Sandwiches:
Ready-to-serve sausages.
6 slices buttered bread
6 slices tomato
6 slices American cheese

Place a slice of tomato on each piece of buttered bread. On top place a thin slice of American cheese. Cover with ready-to-serve sausage slices. Pork sausage links which have been partially cooked may be used instead. Place under broiler or in a hot oven until the sausages are well browned, the cheese melted and the bread toasted.

OPPORTUNITY COLUMN

Dear friends:

It's practically impossible for anybody to do personal canvassing for a buyer, regardless of what you have to sell, unless you can devote your entire time to that purpose.

And anyway, it is so unnecessary to expend time and energy that way when the cost of a few cents for a Want-ad will bring the customers quickly.

Let the Want-ads do your canvassing for you. They are silent workers and never spoil a sale by over-talking.

WANTED BY U. S.

Henson denied helping burn the cash register. "Peck" and "Rip" earlier had parted company with the other pair. The prisoner said he and Barnes had "bummed" from Chicago to Sikeston, and had been around here several days. He said Barnes was wanted by federal officers for allegedly stealing a truckload of army clothes in Illinois and selling them.

The other two negroes, one described as tall and slim and the other as very short, had toured with a medicine show operated by Tom Saylors, who lives east of the Henington body works, officers learned. Lately, the pair had been sleeping in a truck at the Saylors home, but the owner had ordered them to find more permanent lodging.

Officers plan to question Henson about attempted burglaries of two Sikeston homes and the South Side grocery over the week end, and a theft last week at a Morley store. Henson waived preliminary hearing on a charge of burglary and larceny at the North End Grocery, owned by Russell Walker, and was taken to the Benton jail when he could not post $1000 bond.

The Sikeston Better Housing Program, now under way, is bringing capital, labor, and materials together in a practical manner so that the property owner can make needed improvements. Now is the time to do the work.

Mr. and Mrs. John Swinney and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Swinney visited a short while here Sunday afternoon with the men's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edith Swinney, en route to Big Spring near Van Buren, Mo., to spend their vacations.

Oran Quiet

when he arrived in the town. Remarks had been made in Oran that the sheriff's force failed to respond to the first calls for officers.

HOMES ABANDONED

After the fracas Monday night, when negroes in five houses were were driven out of the city, the homes stood open and deserted Tuesday. Windows and furniture were smashed. Mattress and feather beds had been slit and their stuffing strewn over the floor. Chickens wandered unattended in pens and some strolled through the houses.

One or two of the houses were reported to be owned by the negroes. Most of the houses were occupied by two families, so an estimated 40 negroes abandoned the dwellings, only negro homes inside the Oran limits. Where the negroes went, no one could say.

The effigy hanging on one porch consisted of an old coat, stuffed trousers and a pair of good leather boots fastened to the trousers. They were placed on the stick framework, and a hat was put on top. The dummy was hanged on the front porch of one negro home.

ST. LOUIS YOUTH NAMED

Officers learned that one of the main white ringleaders in the mob was a St. Louis youth who had been visiting in Oran. This person has left Oran since the Monday night affair. He and several young men of Oran were considered responsible for keeping the conflict alive.

Only rumor can give the reason for the beginning for the clashes. Some persons said it began when a white man or white woman was shoved off a sidewalk downtown by a negro.

NEW MADRID FARM BUREAU PICNIC AUG. 10

New Madrid County Farm Bureau will hold its second annual basket picnic on August 10, as decided by the board at its regular monthly meeting, according to Charley Hawkins, secretary.

No definite arrangements have been completed as yet, but it will probably be held at Bullocks' Grove again on Highway 61 between 62 junction and Marston.

Hawkins stated that although the Farm Bureau is sponsoring the picnic, everyone in the county is cordially invited and urged to attend. It is the desire of the Farm Bureau that Farm and Town families alike come out for a day of recreation, fun and old time get-to-gether with your neighbors, and of course everyone is asked to bring well-filled baskets.

There were some 150 persons who attended last year. All reported a good time and asked that another be held this year.

There was one mistake in the program of athletic and rodeo events at Arizona's all-Indian powwow at Flagstaff. The Indians were allowed to present their rain dance. Result was a downpour which soon made the pow-wow grounds a mire, anent which a stoical redskin tersely commented, "Ugh, rain dance too good."

Balloting Begins to Pick Players For Inter-League All-Star Game

Game Between Teams Chosen by Fans Will Be Played August 8

Get ready for the big annual softball poll.

Beginning with this issue of The Standard, ballots will be carried so that Sikeston fans may select their ideal American and National League players and managers for the big inter-league all-star clash August 8.

Those people who heretofore have been content to sit in the stands and whose only authority has been some informal shouting will be the ones to name the players for each position. A manager for each league will be chosen.

Ballots may be turned in at four drug stores, Malone's, Heisserer's, City Drug and Bowman's, or at the soft drink stand at the softball field. Those sent by mail should be addressed to Dr. W. M. Sidwell of the softball committee.

DEADLINE AUGUST 5

The deadline for voting is midnight Saturday, August 5.

The team will be picked in the order of the player's vote popularity, and selections as near as possible will be placed in their customary playing position.

Standings of each league will be published from time to time.

The Nationals are overdue. Last year the American Leaguers won, 8-4, and in 1937 the Americans took it, 15-9.

In the counting last year Jimmy Lam and Ray Bandy tied for the highest vote in the American League, and Allen Swaim led the National. The year before Shorty Crain topped the American and Smokey Sutton the National.

MILLERS WILL PLAY DEMPSTER'S

The preliminary game to the all-star clash will be the outgrowth of a minor feud. The Millers, who have swept all before them in the "ham" league, have remarked from time to time that they could conquer some of the teams in the major leagues, including Dempster's in the list. Dempster's took up the challenge, so for the first time in history of Sikeston softball a team of the organization league will play one of the upper brackets. The outcome of this game, with interest being what it is, may prove a bigger drawing card than the all-star game itself.

To Play Bluff Return Game

Dempster's team, reinforced with several players from other Sikeston softball clubs, will go to Poplar Bluff this Friday night to play a return game with all-stars of that city.

An all-star team here recently defeated Poplar Bluff, 6-4.

Pitcher—Marshall or Law.
Catcher—Sutton.
First base—Clark or Lockhart.
Second base—Lambert or Jones.
Third base—Price Marshall.
Shortstop—Bray.
Center field—Miller.
Right field—Weeks.
Short center—Hale.

Martha Rouch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Rouch of Morehouse, was taken in the Albritton ambulance to the Lucy Lee Hospital at Poplar Bluff Tuesday night for a major operation.

Welch Wins, Kansan Sets Roberts Down

George Bennett of Salt Lake City substituted for Mike Nazerian, detained in police court at Nashville, Tenn., for biting a chunk out of a referee's ear, in the Legion matches Wednesday night, but his opponent, Joe Welch, made George wish Nazerian had come instead. Welch won in two straight.

The Oklahoma bouncer pinned Bennett in 14 minutes after a barrel roll, then came back in four minutes with a head scissors and body slam to conclude the match. Bennett is a wrestler but not the man to tame Welch.

Another substitute, Bill Canny, heavyweight champion of Kansas, fared better. He replaced Buddy Knox, of Carthage, against Rough Red Roberts and won the last two falls.

Canny started out to wrestle according to the regulations, but Roberts, one of the leading roughers in the circuit, cured the Kansas of abiding by the rules. Canny gave up in the first round, but in the second he was canny enough to pin Roberts in two minutes, despite the rough-housing of the Arkansan. In the third Canny won in 14 minutes with monkey flips.

Mike Meroney said earlier Wednesday that Nazerian would be here provided he could post bond for nibbling on the referee's ear at Nashville.

ISCO Hands Hiway First Defeat, 11-3

An epoch-making event took place Tuesday night at the softball diamond.

Highway got beat.

That's news. Furthermore, it was the first time in his mound history that Jimmy Law was driven from the box.

The power behind this assault was none other that the Shoe Factory. After his team was thoroughly subdued the night before in a one-hit game, Manager Froggy Vinson promised vindication against the Highway. He delivered. It was 11-3.

While the Shoe Makers were rapping the ball for 12 solid hits, the Highway juggled and muffed the ball for nine errors. The Road Makers landed seven safeties off Bennett.

For three innings its was a game as close as a sausage skin. Each team scored three runs in the first. The next two frames saw only one hit apiece and no runs. It was the fourth that set the Shoe Factory rambling. On two hits, four errors and a walk, the team in green collected five runs. Two more hits in the fifth, and two more errors, added two more. Another run came in the sixth.

Highway meanwhile managed a hit in the fifth and two in the sixth, but advanced men only to second base.

After allowing 10 hits, Law retired in favor of Ray Marsh. Sam Vinson of the ISCO hit three singles and a double in four tries. Altogether, 21 Shoe Factory men got on base. For the two state patrolmen on the Highway team it was a race riot Monday evening and a base riot Tuesday evening.

For the record books, the loss was the first for the Highway aggregation in city play since August 16, 1938, when they fell before the Flower Basket, 3-2. Counting the city series last year, which they took in a clean sweep, Highway men had won 11 straight games until Tuesday night. The team lost three games last season and only one the season before.

Truckers Toss In Sponge in Third Inning

After Company K had wore down the bases for 24 runs in three innings, the scoreless Truckers decided tomorrow was another day and the game was called by agreement Tuesday night.

In those three innings, Guardsmen drove the ball almost everywhere for 16 hits. Some of the Soldiers spent a good part of their time running around bases. For instance, Price Marshall socked a homerun and a double in the same inning, the first, and smashed two hits in the third inning, a record of four in four in only two innings.

Company K picked up 11 runs on seven hits the first frame, dropped down to three scores on three hits the second but came back for 10 more runs on six safeties the third.

Potashnick gained one hit off Johnny Marshall, a single by Matthews in the first. Ten errors by the team did a lot in allowing the big Guard score.

Grocers Miss ISCO Shutout By Home Run

Only one hit—a home run—was issued Billy Simmons as his North End Grocery team set back the Shoe Factory Monday evening, 3-1.

The Grocers used five hits and four errors in their part of the batting, while only two Shoe Factory men got to third base and two to second.

North End had already laid aside three runs when the home run came. In the first Nelson walked and counted when another play went for an error. Two hits in the second failed to avail the Grocers, but in the third Nelson opened with a double, Lee hit into an error and Simmons doubled, scoring the first two.

Sam Vinson knocked the terrific four-base wallop that deprived Simmons of a no-hit shutout, making it in the fourth.

In the third an error and two walks loaded the bases for ISCO, but two timely strike-outs stopped this threat. Simmons fanned eight and walked six.

Y Goes Into Second Place, Beating Lodge

Jack's Y uncorked an eight-run surge in the last two innings, breaking a 3-3 tie that stuck until the sixth, and displaced the Odd Fellows for second place in the National League Monday night, 11-3.

Until the rally, the teams after every inning stood on even terms. Hill doubled and counted on a passed ball for the Y in the second, and Cox singled, traveled to third on Foster's two-bagger, and likewise scored on a passed ball, tying the score in the same frame.

In the fourth Hill walked and converted on Watson's double. Watson came in on James' two-sacker. Ragains singled for the Lodge in the same inning, and two errors brought him around. Dick Swaim, who had gained first on one of the errors, came home on Chaney's swat for two bases.

In the sixth the Y got into its victory stride. Hill singled and again scored on a passed ball. Kindred walked, and Watson's single added the second run of the inning. The final drive, in the seventh, added six runs. In this session, Dickerson, Kindred and Watson smacked doubles, and Mow and Manager Lancaster singles.

The Y made 12 hits off Mize, and Buck Carter allowed five.

Don't start out with a car that needs attention—your may have to lose a lot of time en route.

Let us check your car today. We will tune it up and get it in shape to make your trip—and you can keep smiling mile after mile.

Why not drive in today? Our experts will look your car over, tell you what may be needed and the cost of putting it in the proper condition.

You will find our prices very reasonable—and we use only genuine Chevrolet parts in replacements.

Don't take a chance this year and have your vacation spoiled by a "balky" engine or defective part on the chassis — a few dollars spent now may save you many dollars later, and perhaps a life.

Tune Up Engine

Maybe all that it needs is to clean the spark plugs, adjust the carburetor or replace diaphragm in gas pump—whatever it needs, have it done now.

Check Wheels

You may start with new tires but if your wheels are out of line, a tire will wear out within a few miles. It is economy to have them checked.

Check Steering

The safety of you and your family depends on the safety of your steering gear and brakes. Don't take chances—it doesn't pay.

Wash and Polish

Have your car looking its best. Let us wash and polish it. The paint will look better and last longer if taken care of.

Change Oil & Grease

Grueling miles on the road demand the best greases and oils. We use them, and our experts know how to get them to the parts that require them. The cost is very reasonable.

CHOOSING THE NEW CAMERA

For sharp pictures of fast-moving vacation-time games, you'll need a camera with high shutter speeds. A fast lens is helpful, too, when light conditions are adverse.

ABOUT this time of year—and especially with vacations in the offing—many of us feel the need of a finer camera, with greater picture-taking ability.

A fine camera is about as easy to operate as any other, once you are familiar with it. But there is a difference in usefulness between the finer camera and the inexpensive model. Under adverse conditions, especially on dull days or with moving subjects, the inexpensive camera is handicapped. It may fail to get the very picture you want most. But under the same conditions, the fine camera performs capably—insuring good pictures within much wider limits.

In choosing your finer camera, consider these points carefully, so that you can select a model which exactly fits your picture-taking needs:

If you want to be able to take pictures outdoors under all daylight conditions, bright or dull, early morning or late afternoon, choose a camera with a fast lens—an f.6.3, f.4.5 or faster. For night snapshots by ordinary electric light, without "flood" lamps, get a camera with f.2 lens. If "flood" lamps are used, a slower lens will do.

If you want to take pictures of moving subjects—or those likely to move—choose a camera which has a precision shutter with high speeds. A shutter speed of 1/400 or 1/500 second is needed for sports and fast action shots; 1/200 for moderate action; and 1/100 for snaps of slow action or subjects such as babies or pets which may move suddenly and unexpectedly.

Some camera shutters now have built-in self-timer devices, which enable you to appear in pictures taken by yourself. Naturally, the self-timer is an advantage in a vacation or family camera.

Now for picture size. If you expect to have your pictures finished as contact prints for album use, don't choose a camera that takes too small a picture. If, however, you plan to make enlargements, it's safe to pick a camera in the "miniature" group. And, if you want to take full-color transparency pictures, for large-size projection on a home screen, a miniature camera is just what you need.

It's wise to obtain your finer camera well in advance of your vacation, and practice using it. Since these fine cameras are precision instruments, see that yours receives proper care. If treated well, such a camera will give long and meritorious service—service that far outweighs its cost. Just ask the camera hobbyist who owns one!

Washington Comment

The word "Washington", which holds its accustomed place at the head of the column, is something of misnomer this week, since the copy is being prepared in Van couver, British Columbia, a young city, as cities go, having been on the map but fifty-four years. During that time, it has assembled a population of three hundred and twenty five thousand, yet it remains a city of contrasts. One can get a moderately priced room in a ten million dollar hotel. In the foreground, from the tourist's window, can be seen the changing traffic signals that bespeak the bustle of a busy and up to date metropolis. A little more remote, but clearly visible, are the log booms, saw mills and sawdust burners of the still-continuing lumber days. Behind all, rise the eternal mountains, still crested with a portion of the winter's snow, and accessible in most instances only afoot, or by pack animal and trail. Moving in the shadow of these heights is a water-carried commerce that streams away to every port of the seven seas.

There is talk here of the "depression", the ingenuity of the tax collector is in evidence, and upon the whole, the dividing line between Canada and the United States does not seem to run between national troubles and problems that are essentially different. To those accustomed to the Washington vehicular snarl, in which fender contends with fender and bumper smites bumper, British Columbian traffic seems mild, and driving circumspect and considerate; yet the conservative Canadian brethren are not satisfied and are in the midst of a safety-first campaign to better conditions that on our side of the boundary would be regarded as a close approach to the ideal. Vancouver is heated up over the invasion of the salmon grounds by the Japanese, a matter that has given the United States some concern, especially as to Alaskan waters, but on the whole, the American salmon trouble does not go much deeper than trying to find the can opener.

The course that Administration plans have to travel, like the course of true love, seldom runs absolutely smoth, as Presidents Republican and Democratic can testify. Mr. Roosevelt, therefore, did not find himself in an unknown predicament when the Senate foreign relations committee voted to put aside until the next session, consideration of the neutrality bill: yet it was a setback for the White House nevertheless. Congress sometimes has raised its foot with good grace, after having set it firmly down. Again, the foot has remained where it was planted in the first place, a good example of abiding by an original planting being the payment of the veterans' bonus. The President is represented as intending to go right ahead with the neutrality fight. Some of his generals would discharge the committee and battle out the issue on the open floor. With an adjournment-minded Congress on the one hand, and an Administration eagerly pressing for action and not particularly concerned about adjournment, on the other, there are side issues which, of themselves, and independent of the merits, are sufficient to give pep, to say nothing of downright bitterness, to the doings of concluding portion of the session. According to common report, Congress has earmarked enough labor of the "must" variety to satisfy even those who think that the body on Capitol Hill draws its pay and gives little in return. Among the measures scheduled for consideration before closing time are extension of the powers of the Tennessee Valley Authority, limiting political activities on the part of federal employes, the lending bill and amendments to the social security act.

The Work Projects Administration is an organization which, upon the whole, has been looked upon with wide favor. If a man wants work, perhaps it is up to the government to supply it. Upon the other hand, a job, under existing conditions, is a gift horse that should not be looked too critically in the mouth. There is general disapproval of strikes on public work projects. Still stronger is the condemnation of the killing of a Minneapolis policeman during a violent demonstration against the WPA. Both Congress and the Administration are to be commended for lack of interest in fomented disorders based upon the theory that the federal government is a slave driver and a penny pinching boss.

HEAVY RAIN RUINS ANNUAL GOLF TOURNEY

Charleston, Mo., July 20.—A combination of rain, wind and an electrical display caused postponement of the second annual golf tournament and barbecue scheduled for last Sunday. The new play date was moved up one week, to Sunday, July 23.

Thirty out-of-town players appeared here in spite of bad weather. One of the first automobile loads carried a player from Lexington, Ky., and three from Paducah. Five men from the Cape Girardeau club were here by 8:15 o'clock, ate breakfast, and later returned home when the tournament was definitely postponed. Other players came from Poplar Bluff, Dexter, and several clubs in the "Boot Heel" section of Missouri.

"We regret the inconvenience caused by this postponement," announced Ernest Moxley, president of the Charleston Club, "but in view of the circumstances that was all we could do."

'MIRACLE IF EUROPE GETS BY THIS SUMMER WITHOUT WAR'

New York, July 17.—Joseph E. Davies, arriving today for a vacation from his post as Ambassador to Belgium, said he would back President Roosevelt by "foot, horse and dragoon" if he ran for a third term.

"The stronger you make that, the better," said Davies, but he added: "I don't think the President wants to run. If he became a candidate, it would be by being compelled to."

Asked about the possibility of war in Europe, the Ambassador said:

"I believe a preponderant majority feel if they get by this summer, it will be a miracle. The people are resigned and fatalistic, tragically so."

Why be a Ham in Carving One? Expert Shows Easy, Modern Way

If they snicker when you start to carve, you'll be comforted by these kind words from Max O. Cullen, carving authority. "It's easy to learn the right way, and the right way is the easy way," says Cullen, who is shown at the right explaining to Pete Smith, producer of motion picture shorts bearing his name, and Ann Morriss, M-G-M player, the fundamentals of carving a ham, during the recent filming of "Culinary Carving," an educational short in which Cullen was featured.

Proper tools and a sharp knife are of first importance, says the expert. Then you can proceed with confidence, if you will follow his simple directions as shown by the diagrams and instructions below.

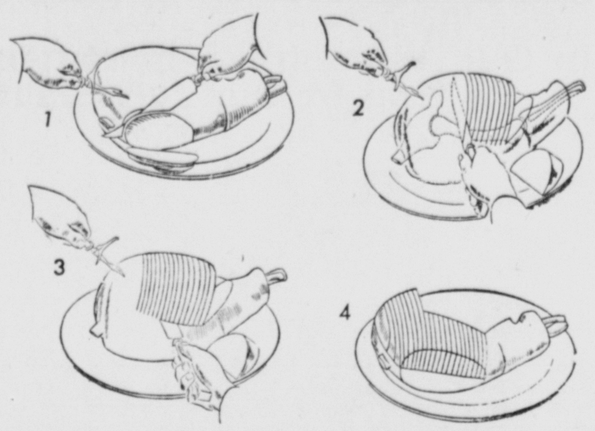

1. Place ham with fat side up, shank end to carver's right. Cut two or three slices parallel to the length of the ham from the smaller meaty section.

2. Turn the ham so that it rests on the cut surface. Holding firmly with the fork, cut a small wedge shaped piece from the shank end. Then proceed to cut thin slices down to the leg bone until the aitch bone is reacned.

3. With the fork still in place, release the slices by running the knife along the bone and at right angles to the slices. For additional servings, turn and carve other side of ham.

4. If more servings are required, the ham is turned back in its original position on the platter with the fat side up and the slices are carved at right angles to the bone. These slices are not so large as those from the cushion section, but they make attractive servings for second helpings.

Moths Don't Take A Vacation!

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

Remember this when you close your house to take your vacation. It may be the signal for the busy season of the moths in your household. They get in their best—or worst—work when undisturbed in a quiet, dark place. So before starting on your holidays, go around the house and check up very carefully to be sure that your possessions are well protected against these destructive little pests.

You have the choice of a number of different methods which are effective for defeating the moth. But none of these will do a good job unless it is effectively used. Few people seem to know what these effective methods are. Some manufacturers and sellers are pretty casual, too, in the way they try to tell you. I am dismayed by department store advertisements which say: "Just hang this in your closet. It will release a vapor fatal to moths."

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

If properly used, this vapor is fatal to moths, their eggs and the larvae. But used in this casual way, the only good it can do is give you a false sense of security. To be fatal to moths, the vapor must be present in a strongly concentrated form. This becomes possible only when you use a sufficiently large quantity of the vapor-producing material. Then, to keep the vapor from escaping and weakening, and moths from entering, the closet must be kept as airtight as it is possible to make it.

This is easily done by covering the cracks around the closet door, including the one along the floor, and even the keyhole, with gummed paper or the sealing tape used by fumigators, and sold in drug and department stores. Hang in one closet all the woolen clothes you wish to store, seal it, and keep it sealed until the things stored in it are needed.

The larger the closet, the greater the quantity of vapor-producing material or fumigant will be needed to get the desired strength of fumes. A pound of fumigant for a very small closet measuring 2' x 2' x 7', or 28 cubic feet, gives good protection. A closet 3' x 3' x 7', or 63 cubic feet, will need 2¼ pounds, and so on.

These fumigants or vapor-producing materials are made of paradichlorobenzene or naphthalene and are usually sold under brand names. They come in cake form and in loose crystals or flakes. The latter are sprinkled evenly on the top shelf and floor of the closet. Because of the smaller surface exposed, those in cake form give off their fumes more slowly. Therefore they may not be quickly effective, and a greater amount may be needed to give prompt protection. Weigh these cakes before using them and compute the amount you need, according to the size of your closet. It takes three or four days to fumigate a closet after it is sealed.

Woolens, such as your blankets and rugs, may also be fumigated by sprinkling them generously with one of these fumigants and then wrapping them very closely in heavy paper. Don't think that your woolens are safe if you put them in dresser drawers and sprinkle in some moth balls or other fumigants. So much of the fumes will escape through the cracks around the drawers that there seldom remains sufficient strength to give complete protection.

MILK CASH INCOME

Three-fourths of the farms of America contribute to the annual production of the nation's milk supply, and according to government figures, the cash farm income which they shared for 1938 was $1,430,000,000. By this figure milk made the best record of the year as a producer of farm cash income.

Compared with the year before, most of the crop totals of 1938 fell off. Estimated receipts were $3,160,000,000, which is only 82 per cent of the $3,846,000,000 realized in 1937. Milk, however, came up to 93.5 per cent of the 1937 figure.

THE CARE AND EATING OF CARROTS

The carrot is a stringy, off-color, flavorless vegetable, much favored as a diet by rabbits, burros, goats and such undiscriminating animals. Latterly someone has made the great discovery that somewhere in the innards of the carrot is something called a vitamin which is not seen, smelled, tasted, or felt, but must be accepted on faith as being there.

As a result the carrot has definitely gone high society on the menu. This is somewhat unfortunate, because the carrot does not lend itself gracefully to human consumption. Even the dietary experts, who write the menus on the woman's page, recognize this.

The result is a sustained effort, praiseworthy for its determination and endurance, but thus far, to us at least, lacking in tangible achievements, to devise some way to serve the carrot so that it is fit to eat. Douse carrots in butter and brown sugar and cover them with chopped peanuts; run carrots through a food chopper and dilute them with real food like grated cheese and buttered bread crumbs; cook carrots in salt water, butter them and embalm them in vinegar—these are a few of the recipes suggested. And when all that is done the carrot still remains—well, a carrot.

What we really deplore is the woeful waste of ingenuity, imagination and industry in a hopeless struggle. No matter how disguised it is with unguents and condiments, no expert is required to detect a carrot—the natural food of the rabbit, the goat, or the burro but not of man.

Wherefore we offer our own carrot menu: Fry a couple of tender spring chickens, provide a heap of mashed potatoes and a big bowl of chicken gravy, some watermelon, corn bread and butter. Then take your carrot. Throw it as far into the back yard as you can heave it and sit down and enjoy your meal.—Kansas City Star.

They laughed when he sat down at the piano—. But that's another story. In this one Mayor Bardwell of Burns, Ore., did not sit down at a piano. Instead, while viewing a WPA project he stooped over and picked up a weather-worn wallet. A group of near-by WPA workers leaned on their shovels and guffawed merrily, scoffed: "Throw it away; it's been looked over at least 15 times." Red-faced, but stubborn, Bardwell pulled the dusty zipper. Their laughter froze when, wide-eyed, the Mayor extracted $110 in currency.

Right, both these husbands were wrong. In a Chicago courtroom last week appeared two wives. One, Mrs. Margaret Taylor, complained that she couldn't keep her husband home at night. The other, Mrs. Eva M. Barletta, grumbled that she couldn't get her husband to go out at night. Both were granted a divorce.

The State Board of Health, through the Food and Drug Division has just opened a drive for a more thorough compliance with the laws regulating hotels and rooming houses. All inspectors were called in and instructed to see that proprietors and owners of hotels and rooming houses were necessary information about requirements and what constitutes reasonable time to meet these requirements.

"I am going to see that every hotel and rooming house in the State is inspected for infractions of the law in regard to the comfort and safety of its guests," said Dr. Harry F. Parker, Commissioner. The inkeeper has an obligation to the travelling public and if he is to continue in business he must live up to that obligation."

"Safety regulations as set out in the law in regard to fire equipment must be met. These regulations are not unreasonable or expensive in most cases. Some buildings not suited for occupancy as hotels must be reconditioned or closed. I am not going to have lives endangered in them. The State has its obligations to the public as well as the proprietor in watching after the traveling public."

"I have also given instructions for thorough inspection of all sanitary conditions in the hotels especially as to the kitchens and as to those who prepare the food. Contaminated food and dishes can cause much illness, especially during the summer months when foods spoil so easily."

"I do not intend to relicense hotels and rooming houses that do not meet the requirements after they have been given a reasonable time in which to comply," said the Commissioner.

Do Not Take Chances

At this time of the year especially, it is imperative that you be careful in the selection of the Dairy Products you use . . . milk, cream, butter and the other dairy products. Now milk is not the only carrier of epidemics and communicable diseases, but it is one of the first suspects when an epidemic breaks out. Typhoid, diphtheria, colitis, and Malta fever are a few of the more common ones.

The City Health Inspector of a neighboring city in Missouri was in our office last week inquiring where a certain milk producer or dairyman lived. The inspector said three cases of typhoid had been traced to this dairyman, and he wanted to inspect his farm. The dairyman had been "bootlegging" a little milk into the town at cut-rate prices. Pity the poor children who are suffering now because the mother wanted to save two cents on the gallon of milk over the prevailing price of milk in that town. And the milk in that particular town is pasteurized.

We have made a lot of improvements in the Dairy Plant we have here in Sikeston. Yes we have improved the appearance, but the underlying motive for the remodeling was to make our milk cleaner, safer and more wholesome. Pasteurization will make milk safe, but we must also have CLEAN milk.

July and August, especially, are months in which you must be careful about the Dairy Products you use.

★ FASHION PREVIEW ★

AS the perfect costume for dining and dancing on the roof terrace, Good Housekeeping for July selects this romantic frock of blue-and-white, cotton organdie, printed to look like lace. The dress has a white organdie collar and neckline interest is heightened by a nosegay of red flowers. White and blue draped crepe-de-chine sandals, white bag and a bracelet of Bermuda orange blossoms complete the picture.

FOUR-POINT BUCK KILLED NEAR POPLAR BLUFF

Sherman Carter of Chicago, Ill., son of Mrs. Lilly Carter of this city this morning killed a deer—but not intentionally.

Carter with his wife, Pauline Credit and Pete Price were driving along the Farm to Market road that leads from Highway No. 67, near Greenville to Williamsville about 1:30. At what is known to Wayne county residents as the "old deer crossing" a four point buck and a doe leaped in front of the car. The buck hung one of his rear legs in the front bumper and was killed.

One headlight on the car was smashed and a fender was bent. Carter brought the deer to Poplar Bluff and called Conservation Commission agent Loren Lewis at Dexter. Lewis was scheduled to arrive here this morning to take charge of it.

The buck weighed about 175 pounds and its horns were in the velvet. The meat will probably be turned over to hospitals.

Carter has been visiting his mother here.—Poplar Bluff American.

WEDDING PARTY 'FUN' DOESN'T AMUSE LAW

Philadelphia, July 16.—Five gay young blades of the upper social bracket were arrested today—accused of pelting limousines and the law with stones.

To pep up a fete for some newlyweds, the socialities started winging stones at passing cars.

When law officers hove into sight they, too, were showered. The officers collared the miscreants and carted them—top hats, white ties, tails and all—off to headquarters.

In their wake came a bevy of excited young postdebs in evening gowns.

Justice of the Peace Ernest Dupille held each prisoner in $30 bail, with the comment: "I'm going to fine them good and plenty. They ought to be ashamed of themselves."

Mrs. Buford Baber and children of Dexter were guests of Mrs. Jennie Stubblefield and daughter, Miss Lucille, Tuesday.

Arrest and conviction of Glen Lineberry, operating under the name of the Brookfield Food Storage Company, at Brookfield, on charges of storing game in a commercial establishment was announced this week. A fine of $50 and costs of $13.25 were assessed against Lineberry for the 5 ducks and 17 quail held illegally.
